Bradley Reveals Pact Defense Plan

Slight Relief Due Sunday; Three Dead, 19 Collapse

Cool Air Mass Moves Eastward As D. C. Mercury Equals Year's High

Three deaths superinduced by heat and another possibly so were reported yesterday as the temperature equaled the season's record high of 96.2 degrees on the 13th day of the heat wave. At least 19 persons collapsed from the heat.

Though the torrid wave will continue through today, some slight relief was foreseen by Government weather forecasters, with possibilities of thundershowers late today and a small drop in the temperature Sunday and Monday. But the superheated weather is due back Tuesday, they said.

Found Dead on Floor

One man whose death, according to Dr. A. Magruder Macdonald, District coroner, was caused at least indirectly by the heat was Paul A. Doland, 46, of 1448 Girard st. nw. He was a building guard for General Services Administration.

Henry C. Shade, 69, of 1328 Trinidad ave. ne., a bakery truck driver, returned to his home from work about 2 p. m. yesterday, feeling faint. He was treated for heat prostration, and died about 7:30 p. m. at his home.

At Suburban Hospital, Milledge Holston, 46, 1524½ Marion st. nw., another heat victim, died at 10:40 p. m. He had been admitted to the hospital for heat prostration during the afternoon.

Edward C. Gardner, 47, of 1403 28th st. nw., was found dead in his home by a maid. He had a history, police said, of high blood pressure, but had no treatments recently. They said heat may have caused his death.

Those who were stricken here yesterday were:

VA Chief, In Wisconsin, Releases 600 Here

From the cool deck of his yacht at Hudson, Wisc., where he is vacationing, Maj. Gen. Carl R. Gray, jr., Veterans Administrator, stepped into the heat picture in Washington last night to relieve 600 sweltering workers.

The workers are part of the VA, at Tempo Bldg. J, near the Reflecting Pool. They are on the night shift, going to work at 4:15 p. m. The day shift had been dismissed early, but E. G. Joseph, in charge of the night group, declined to dismiss. Three girls went out in an ambulance before 5 p. m. Four more followed in the evening.

The Washington Post telephoned General Gray at Hudson and apprised him of the situation. He telephoned to Joseph immediately. The workers were dismissed.

Weatherman Can Prove It

Washington's Heat, Humidity Not as Bad as Many Cities

"So much of it's mental! If these people who think Washington has such terrible weather would come up to my office I could show them by maps and figures just what I mean."

A communication, from Edwin F. Anderson, 4 Duvall dr., which arrived yesterday at The Washington Post, prompted the observations by R. C. Schmidt, meteorologist in charge of the National Airport office of the Weather Bureau.

"My wife and I have recently come to Washington from the Middle West to make our home here. We are much impressed by the amount of uncomfortable weather," Anderson's letter said. "Inquiry made as to the reason for the prevailing high humidity has

Senate Approves Miss Cockrill As New Judge

The Senate yesterday approved Miss Edith Cockrill's nomination to be judge of Juvenile Court here.

The nomination cleared without discussion following unanimous backing for it by the Senate District Committee.

Miss Cockrill was appointed for a six-year term in a new position created by Congress after Juvenile Court Judge Fay Bentley became a voluntary patient at St. Elizabeths. Judge Bentley's position is abolished by the new law at the end of her term in 1952.

WWDC Arranging to Buy WOL for About $300,000

Sale of Radio Station WOL to Station WWDC is expected to be arranged this weekend, it was learned last night.

Purchase price is said to be in the neighborhood of $300,000. The sale of physical facilities only is involved.

Ben Strouse, vice president of the Capital Broadcasting Co. and general manager of WWDC, said week-long negotiations with Luther Hill, general manager of the Des Moines Register and Tribune and who also represents the Cowles Broadcasting Co.—owner of WOL—probably would be concluded this weekend.

Application for Federal Communications Commission approval probably will be made Monday.

WWDC's wish to reach a wider audience is said to be the motive for the purchase. WWDC, at 1000 Connecticut ave. nw., now operates on a frequency of 1450 kilocycles with 5000 watts. WOL at 1627 K st. nw., operates on a frequency of

Plasterer Tenders Set Strike Call

Monday Walkout Slated by Union Unless Demands Are Met on Wage Hike

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

Already hit by a strike of readymix concrete truck drivers, the Washington area's construction industry yesterday was faced with the threat of another walkout Monday.

Plasterer Tenders' Local 571 announced its 200 members would walk out on Monday morning unless the Employing Plasterers Association agreed to a 12½ cents an hour increase in pay.

Representatives of the subcontractors and of the Laborers District Council, which negotiates for the plasterer helpers, will meet this morning in an attempt to reach a settlement. The tenders are presently receiving $1.75 an hour.

Concrete Strike Continues

There was no break yesterday in the two-day-old walkout of the concrete truck drivers.

Some contractors, in an effort to avoid further delay in their construction projects, planned to mix their own concrete on the job site, but others deferred from the action for the lack of equipment and because of the extra expense involved.

The concrete truck drivers, affiliated with the AFL Teamsters, walked out Thursday after rejecting an employer proposal of 10 cents an hour increase in pay retroactive to July 11. The drivers are demanding 15 cents an hour, retroactive to May 15.

Thus far the strike has been put into operation against the three largest concrete producers, Howat, Maloney and Super Concrete, who have 170 drivers and trucks among them. Union men are still on the job with four smaller companies, Patuxent Sand and Gravel, Silver Hill Sand and Gravel, District Concrete and Virginia Concrete.

Pay Demands Reported Met

A union spokesman said that the four smaller companies had not been struck because they had informally agreed to paying their union men 15 cents more an hour retroactive to May 15.

However, C. J. Shepherdson, of Virginia Concrete, denied emphatically yesterday that his company had made any commitment on 15 cents.

"We did say we would pay our drivers the Washington rate," Shepherdson said, "and that's what we're doing right now, paying $1.35 an hour."

District Concrete had no comment on the union's claim of an informal agreement; officials of Patuxent and Silver Hill companies could not be reached.

Meanwhile, George R. Raylor, representing the Ironworker Employers Association, and Leslie Myers, representing the union, yesterday announced an agreement between the subcontractors and the structural iron workers, whereby the 450 AFL mechanics will receive a 10 cents an hour raise beginning Monday, and 10 cents more beginning March 1, 1950. The ironworkers have been getting $2.75 an hour. The contract will run two years.

Senate Unit Approves Aid Measure

Funds Unchanged But Farm, Spain Riders Rewritten, Tied In to Bill

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The Senate Appropriations Committee last night approved a bobtailed version of the $5,647,724,000 foreign aid bill in a new attempt to run the Senate rules gantlet.

Money totals for second year Marshall plan funds were left substantially unchanged, but highly controversial farm surplus and Spanish aid riders were rewritten to comply with Senate rules and tightly tied into the measure.

Cut out of the bill entirely, in a retaliatory move, was a whole string of important House legislative amendments, but these can be reoffered on the Senate floor, and put back by a majority vote.

Whether the move cracked the log-jam on appropriations was still an open question, but at least it ended the committee stalemate and moved the blockaded bill back before the Senate for a showdown.

The Appropriations Committee vote followed a day of dire warnings that each of the remaining money measures would be bounced back into the committee unless the Senate agreed to accept the so-called "crippling" riders by a majority vote.

Senate leaders backed by such senior members as Senators Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.) and Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) flatly refused to accept legislative riders on money bills unless they are subject to either points of order or a two-thirds vote.

Lucas in No Hurry

Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) said Congress can adopt stop gap money bills "one after another" and stay here indefinitely if necessary to meet a funds stalemate.

Said Lucas: "The chamber in which we meet is about the coolest place I have found since I have been in the Senate. It is cooler in this chamber than it is in Illinois. If the Senate desires to stay here interminably and consider appropriation bills or any other bills, I will be very happy to accommodate Senators."

Senator John L. McClellan (D., Ark.), author of the rider earmarking two billion dollars of ECA-Army funds for purchase of American surplus farm products, had just hinted that other bills than foreign aid-ECA might be recommitted if his and other legislative amendments are subject to points of order.

McClellan "Satisfied"

McClellan told newsmen he was "entirely satisfied" with what the Appropriations Committee did last night. If the Senate accepts the proposed committee procedure, he said, he won't attempt to sidetrack other money bills.

The impasse was precipitated three days ago when a field day of Senate technical rulings and votes landed the foreign aid bill back in committee. Core of the controversy was a power struggle by the Appropriations group. Amendments changing the basic law, if tied to money bills, are banned by

Chinese Seize U. S. Consulate At Shanghai in Back Pay Row

By The Associated Press

More than 100 Chinese seized control of the American consulate general offices in Shanghai yesterday to enforce back pay demands against the United States Navy, the State Department reported.

An official dispatch said the Chinese invaded the offices at 7:20 a. m., (Shanghai time), locked the gates at 3:30 p. m. and prevented 13 Americans and 30 Chinese on the consulate staff from leaving.

The department was advised that police flatly refused to intervene and that the Communist military control commission's alien affairs bureau also failed to take action. John M. Cabot is the consul general at Shanghai.

The besiegers were described as former Shanghai employes of the Navy, which pulled out before the Communists occupied the city late in May. They are demanding pay for the period since their jobs ended, plus separation and other bonuses.

Friend of Vaughan's Is Questioned Twice In '5 Per Center' Quiz

By The Associated Press

Dapper John Maragon yesterday demanded that columnist Drew Pearson be called to testify in the Senate investigation of "five percenters."

"I should be delighted to testify," Pearson replied in a statement.

Maragon said Pearson accused him in a July 20 column of being "not only a five per center but a 50 per center."

The Malta-born Jack of many trades—he won't say what he is now—emerged beaming from a closed-door session of the Senate's special investigation subcommittee headed by Senator Hoey (D., N. C.).

The Senate group is looking into allegations that persons claiming influence with officials have been telling businessmen they could get fat Government contracts in return for a fee.

Maragon, who used to ply the shoe-shine trade in Kansas City and met President Truman there, talked to newsmen after being questioned for the second time in less than 24 hours by Senate investigators.

With a big smile, he said:

"I am happy. I am not mad at anybody. We just talked about my personal affairs. I am happy to be here. When you have been accused of being a 5 per center or a 50 per center, you want to straighten it out."

He said he had asked the Senators to hale Pearson before the

Catch in Throat Lasts 58 Years; Prune Seed Found

Salisbury, Md., July 29 (AP).—For 58 of her 64 years Mrs. Blanche Hitchens has had a catch down in her throat.

Some times it seemed to move up a little bit. When it did, she says, she went as long as eight days without eating or drinking.

Mrs. Hitchens never went to see a doctor about her trouble.

Recently she came down with a sore throat. Dr. Zach Waters examined her, ordered an operation.

Disarmament Talk Idle Now, Johnson Says

'Forces Loose I Would Not Trust a Moment', He Tells House Group

Secretary of Defense Johnson said yesterday there is no point to considering the subject of "disarmament" in the light of present world conditions.

"I am suspicious of all the disarmament talk," he told the House Foreign Affairs Committee yesterday, in response to a question by Representative John M. Vorys (R., Ohio).

"There are forces loose in the world that I would not trust for a moment so far as America's disarming" is concerned, Johnson said, "and we might as well say that on the record now as later."

He said he would take "nobody's word" on this, with respect to "certain people's disarming."

Our hope for peace, he said, "is the strength of American arms, our arms, and the strength of the American economy."

Representative Vorys, who had phrased his question in a "friendly" manner, was somewhat taken aback by the form of Johnson's reply. Generally, defense spokesmen have stated that this question is not for them to decide, for defense is their prime concern.

Vorys had noted, "We have got a proposition before the United Nations that we will disarm when the rest will, provided there is inspection and so forth."

"This," said Vorys, referring to the Administration's proposed $1,450,000,000 arms program which was the subject of Johnson's testimony, "does not change that, does it?"

"We fell for that once," Johnson replied, and then he went into his amplification.

Johnson made some reference to the Baruch plan for atomic control, which was not entirely audible to listeners at the hearing, and also referred to the difficulties involved in "inspection" of armaments unless there is wholehearted cooperation.

Russia has rejected the United States plan for atomic control, although this Nation is still an active participant in disarmament

Virkus is president of the Conference of American Small businesses and a former Illinois State legislator.

After two days of closed committee sessions, the dissident Republicans recommended a labor policy based on government purchases in the open market.

F. D. Roosevelt, Jr., to Marry Socialite Marine Veteran

New York, July 29 (U.P.).—Representative Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., is engaged to marry blonde Suzanne Perrin of New York, who served during the war as a woman marine, her mother announced today.

Miss Perrin is the daughter of Mrs. Lee James Perrin of 45 East 66th st., and the late L. J. Perrin, who was senior partner in the law firm of Appleton, Rice and Perrin.

Roosevelt, who won a special election in May to fill the congressional seat of the late Sol Bloom, was divorced by his wife, the former Ethel du Pont, in Reno in June.

Miss Perrin, a pretty socialite who is listed in New York's Social Register, attended the Chapin School in New York and was graduated from Westover School in Middlebury, Conn. During the war she served for two years in the Marine Corps Women's Reserve.

Roosevelt, reached at his New York office upon his arrival from Washington, said:

"The statement stands for itself. Miss Perrin is not here and I'm purposely not having a press conference. I have always felt that my personal life should not be a matter of public record."

No date was set.

Young Roosevelt, 34, and a likeness of his father, married Ethel du Pont in 1937 at her home in Wilmington, Del. They have two children, Franklin D., 3d, 11, and Christopher, 8.

Two Area Men Die in Crash Of Plane on Lanham Farm

Two Washington area men were killed last night when their two-seater plane crashed on a Lanham, Md., farm fronting on Good Luck rd.

Dead were Joseph K. Yanka, 27, of 53-Q Ridge rd., Greenbelt, Md., and John M. Brug, 21, a Navy photographer's mate third class stationed at Naval Air Station Anacostia.

George Jackson, a farmer, who witnessed the crash, said he saw the plane when it was about 150 feet in the air and coming down. The right wing hit first, he said, then the plane nosed into the earth. Both men were thrown clear of the plane and were killed instantly.

Yanka, a machinist at Naval Ordnance Laboratory, White Oak, Md., had a pilot's license for about three years, it was reported. Brug, whose home was in Brooklyn, N. Y., was a student pilot.

The plane was a rented Fairchild PT-23. Mrs. Frances Yanka said she believed her husband

Atom Bomb, Key Weapon, Is Assigned To America

Proposal Gives The 'Hard Core' Of Ground Power To West Europe

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Army Chief of Staff Omar Bradley yesterday unveiled the United States proposals for strategic defense of the North Atlantic area, with the atom bomb as the "first priority" for security.

In a defense concept unprecedented in peacetime, the plan calls for interlocking division of defense responsibility among the North Atlantic Treaty powers.

It would establish "strategic bombing," including "our ability to deliver the atomic bomb," as the chief mission of the United States.

This Nation also would contribute its naval power to help keep sea lanes clear, while the "hard core" of ground defense would be the manpower of Western Europe.

Others Approve Views

General Bradley said the other two members of the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, Air Force Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg and Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, concur in his views.

This strategic approach, Bradley said, formed part of the "assumed factors" on which the Joint Chiefs based their recommendations for the $1,450,000,000 cash outlay for foreign military aid, now before Congress.

After testifying on that program before the House Foreign Affairs Committee, the three military leaders left here at 5:48 p. m. yesterday for Europe aboard the President's plane, Independence.

In a 10-day trip, they will attempt to work out with military leaders of European members of the alliance an outline of plans for the join. defense council to be established under the treaty.

Presumably, the American Chiefs of Staff will attempt to gain agreement to the strategy outlined by Bradley, who emphasized they are assumed principles, not commitments:

"First, the United States will be charged with the strategic bombing. We have repeatedly recognized in this country that the first priority of the joint defense is our ability to deliver the atomic bomb.

"Second, the United States Navy and the Western Union (England, France, Belgium, The Netherlands

France and Italy yesterday completed parliamentary action on ratification of the North Atlantic Treaty. The French upper house approved it, 284 to 20; the Italian Senate, 175 to 81.

Signature of the Presidents will complete ratification.

The treaty will go into effect after ratification by the Netherlands, last of the seven founding nations to consider the pact. Debate is scheduled for next week.

Milk Prices Due To Go Up a Cent Here Next Week

The Maryland & Virginia Milk Producers Association yesterday announced an increase of 50 cents a hundredweight in the price of milk sold to greater Washington dairies, effective on Monday.

Dairymen generally indicated they would up retail prices by one cent a quart on Monday or shortly after.

The resulting price of 21½ cents a quart for home delivered grade A milk will be the highest in Washington's history. The prevailing store price, now about 19 cents, is expected to go up the same amount.

A producers' spokesman said the rise from $5.56 a hundredweight to $6.06 was a seasonal increase which was unusually early because of drought conditions on the pastures.

House Committee Backs FEPC, 14-11

By The Associated Press

A divided House committee yesterday recommended creation of a Fair Employment Practices Commission, but Southern opposition and a crush of session-end business made its enactment this session most unlikely.

The House Labor Committee approved the bill 14 to 11. Representative Powell, Negro Democratic Congressman from New York who wrote the bill, said Committee Chairman Lesinski (D., Mich.) would take the necesary formal steps to by-pass the Rules Committee and bring the measure up before the House about August 22.

That date is only a week or so before the most generally discussed time for adjournment. Even if the bill cleared the House, it is certain to encounter strong opposition from Southerners in the Senate, and a filibuster if it ever reaches the Senate floor.

The bill would prohibit discrimination in employment and labor organizations because of race, color, religion or national origin, and would establish a permanent commission to enforce those rules.

It contains strong enforcement provisions the Southerners find particularly distasteful.

FEPC is one of President Truman's "civil rights" measures. Another, an antipoll-tax bill, sailed through the House Tuesday by a 273-to-116 vote. It, too, is expected to gather dust in a Senate pigeonhole.

Powell said if adjournment comes before the House reaches a vote on FEPC it will be made the first order of business at the second session of the Eighty-first Congress. No further hearings or committee action would be necessary.

Segregated Areas

White Pupil Costs Nearly Double Negro

In States with segregated schools, white children get an education almost twice as expensive as that for Negroes, the Office of Education said yesterday.

The agency released a study of 1945-46 enrollments in the 17 States and the District of Columbia, where segregation of white and Negro pupils is practiced.

It said the average expense for each white pupil in daily attendance was $104.66 a year, and each Negro pupil, $57.57.

In 1947, when Negro students formed 44.8 per cent of the District school population, 44.2 per cent of the total school budget was allocated to Negro schools.

Funds available for administration and operation of schools were split 38.40 per cent for Negro schools and 61.60 per cent for white schools. The District allocated 72.27 per cent of funds for new construction to Negro schools and 27.73 per cent to white schools.

The average teaching salary in the white schools in the segregated areas was $1640 a year and in the Negro schools, $1134. In the white schools each teacher had, on the average, 28 pupils, and in the Negro schools, 35.

The average length of school term in the white schools was 175 days and in the Negro schools, 170 days. In Mississippi, however, the averages were 182.6 and 140.7 days, respectively.

The average number of days attended by each pupil enrolled was 149 in the white schools, 139 in the schools for Negroes.

The survey counted 109 institutions for the higher education of Negroes. They had a full-time teaching staff of 4401, and an enrollment of 57,505 students of college grade and 5906 graduate students.

Hard-Hit Britain Down to Her Last 54 Millionaires

London, July 29 (AP).—Britain is down to her last 54 millionaires, the Government reported today.

Revenue commissioners consider a man a millionaire if he has an annual income of 100,000 pounds ($400,000) or more.

Only 70 persons in Britain were left with a net income of more than 6000 pounds ($24,000) for the year, after paying taxes.

Out of 21 million income taxpayers, 18,375,000 made less than 500 pounds ($2000) and 2,030,000 had less than 150 pounds ($600) left after paying taxes.

The income-tax rate is 45 per cent. In 1937-38 Britain had a record total of 105 millionaires.

Slight Drop In Jobless Claims Noted

The Federal Security Agency reported today that new claims for unemployment insurance "dropped moderately" last week.

It said 316,487 "newly unemployed" filed for insurance benefits during the week ended last Saturday, the smallest number since June 18.

During the week, 2,167,555 unemployed filed for continued unemployment benefit checks. This was a drop of about 15,000 compared with a week earlier.

Lewis a Ham, a Bore, Corny, Senate Banking Hearing Told

Tyre Taylor, counsel for the Southern States Industrial Council, yesterday asked Congress to cut John L. Lewis "down to size" and deliver the people from his "ham acting" and "corny utterances."

He testified before the Senate Banking Committee which is investigating alleged "monopolistic" practices by Lewis and his United Mine Workers in the coal industry.

Lewis has not yet replied to a committee invitation to testify, but the UMW Journal yesterday dismissed the invitation in its lead editorial with a succinct: "Nertz." It noted that the investigation was being conducted by a subcommittee headed by Senator A. Willis Robertson (D., Va.), who "comes from a coal-producing State."

"The false pretense charge of the United Mine Workers being a monopoly in restraint of trade is unadulterated sham—a political shenanigan," the editorial said.

Taylor said the UMW has an "absolute" labor monopoly in the industry and, like other operator spokesmen, appealed to the committee to bring unions under the antitrust laws. Then he concluded with an attack on Lewis himself.

"In addition to all his other offenses against the general welfare, which should impel Congress to trim him down to size, John L. Lewis has become an insufferable bore," he said. "His acting is ham, his utterances corny, his posturings pompous and silly. From this, too, a lot of long-suffering citizens would welcome deliverance."

A. R. Long, representing the Alabama Mining Institute, told the Senate committee the three-day week would increase production costs and coal prices.

U. N. Gives Up 3-Year Fight On A-Control

Lake Success, July 29 (AP).—The United Nations Atomic Energy Commission today gave up a three-year struggle to agree on international atomic control. It put the deadlock squarely up to the Big Five powers and Canada, who begin top-secret talks August 9.

The commission voted, 9 to 2, to stop work until the six countries can find some basis for agreement. Delegates say there is no sign of a break in the East-West impasse.

The Soviet Union and the Soviet Ukraine voted against the majority. Their delegates demanded to know why the majority wanted to "kill" the commission, stop its work, "lock the door and throw away the key."

Dr. H. R. Wei, commission chairman for July, responded:

"Time is running out. The atomic armaments race is on. It is the duty of this commission to tell the world that the work cannot be done now."

Glasses to Aid Cross-Eyed Put On U. S. Market

Southbridge, Mass., July 29 (AP).—The American Optical Co. today announced eye glasses for cross-eyed people. It is easier to see through one lens than the other.

Cross-eyed people form the habit of using only one eye for seeing. Gradually the non-working eye loses its ability to see details.

The new spectacles blur the glass over the good eye. That eye can still see but has to work harder. The eye that has been out of training thereupon goes to work, too, and slowly regains its lost power.

Berlin Airlift Calls It Quits on Monday

Berlin, July 29 (AP).—The Berlin airlift will go into cold storage starting Monday.

American and British officials announced today the greatest air-freight operation in history will be reduced gradually until it is cut out entirely October 31.

For nearly a year—from June 26, 1948, until the Russians lifted the Berlin blockade May 14 it was the only means of keeping two million West Berliners supplied with food, fuel and raw materials.

The decision to retire the air cargo operation was taken because adequate supplies have been stockpiled since the Russians have permitted rail, highway and water traffic to be resumed from the western zones.

But the Western Allies made it clear they will be prepared to restart the airlift on short notice if the Russians adopt new blockade tactics against the four-power city, 100 miles inside the Soviet zone.

The gradual reduction which starts Monday, will permit some fliers to head back to the United States in September.

The cutback program calls for a daily schedule of 3700 tons for August, 2100 for September and 1000 for October.

American and British pilots have averaged 8000 tons of supplies daily since the airlift got into full swing. Last Easter weekend the planes flew nearly 13,000 tons into Berlin.

Lieut. Gen. John K. Cannon, U. S. Air Forces commander in Europe, called it "a proud moment for us all." He said the end of the airlift signified "to free peoples everywhere the successful termination of a lengthy and difficult task by the combined forces of the United States, Britain and France." France cooperated in the airlift, although no French planes were used.

It signified, too, that the Western Allies would not bow to the Soviet pressure tactics. It was the big convincer for the Russians.

The airlift was expensive in lives and money. Seventy airmen—31 Americans and 39 Britons—were killed. In addition, seven German civilians were killed in plane accidents.

It was estimated the operation cost the United States about $1,500,000 a day. The British reported June 15 their share had cost $34,400,000.

Airlift officials listed these statistics:

Total gross short tons carried by British and American planes: 2,214,075 in 274,718 flights.

Aircraft assigned to the airlift: American, 211; British, 117. Tons of food, coal and other supplies carried:

Food—U. S., 296,303.1; Britain, 237,377.6.

Coal—U. S., 1,333,768.5; Britain, 139,238.6.

Miscellaneous—U. S., 65,326.1; Britain, 134,422.9.

Masaryk, Benes

Two Czech Stamps Due For Discard

Prague, Czechoslovakia, July 29 (U.P.).—The Ministry of Posts announced today that postage stamps bearing the portraits of Thomas Masaryk and Eduard Benes, the fathers of the Czechoslovak republic, would become invalid after October 31.

Masaryk served as President from the day a provisional Czechoslovak government was set up in Paris on October 1, 1918, until he resigned in favor of Benes in 1935. He died September 14, 1937.

Benes took the leadership just as the shadow of German Nazism started to darken his country. He was exiled during the war, but came back only to see the Communists seize power in February, 1948. He resigned in June, 1948, and died last September 2.

A few weeks after the Communists took charge they started to minimize the historical importance of the Thomas Masaryk-Benes team. Their portraits were taken from most public buildings and replaced by those of Communist President Klement Gottwald and Premier Josef Stalin of Russia.

Gambling Ring Figure Freed Under Guard

New York, July 29 (U.P.).—Dennison Duble, Cincinnati banker involved in a multimillion-dollar policy racket, was paroled under constant police guard today lest an attempt be made on his life to keep him from talking.

Duble, 67, former secretary of the Cincinnati Clearing House Association, was charged with conspiracy to contrive a lottery and ordered held for grand jury action. He was paroled to detectives after Magistrate Morris Rothenberg was told that "sinister figures" in the case made that course advisable.

Duble is alleged to have manipulated the daily totals of the clearing house so the gambling ring would have to pay off to the fewest possible number of holders of policy slips.

Mother Urges Clark to Accept Post on Court

Dallas, July 29 (AP).—The 84-year-old mother of Attorney General Tom Clark said today she told her son to go ahead and accept the appointment to the United States Supreme Court.

"Tom called me Thursday afternoon to ask me whether he should accept the appointment," Mrs. William H. Clark, sr., said.

"But he knew all the time I would say yes," she added with a chuckle.

"Maybe he'll have more time to visit me after he becomes a judge. They take a vacation in the summer, you know. Tom gets home to Dallas once in a while, but he never stays long enough."

She said she did not plan to go to Washington for her son's ceremony of taking the oath of office as a Supreme Court justice.

"I guess Tom's reached the end now," she mused. "There's no where else for him to go. But it's a good place to stop."

Hawaii To Form Stevedore Firm To Reopen Ports

Honolulu, July 29 (AP).—Senate and House agreed today on terms of a bill to put Hawaii into the stevedoring business and try to reopen the islands' strikebound ports.

The territory would set up its own stevedoring operation instead of seizing struck firms. This Government entrance into a strikebound industry without seizure is believed without precedent here.

The proposed bill bans hiring any striking longshoremen or using employes and equipment of struck firms "unless necessary."

World Bank Lends Dutch 15 Million

The International Bank for Reconstruction and Development yesterday announced it had granted a 15-million-dollar loan to the Finance Corporation for National Reconstruction (Herstelbank) of the Netherlands.

Purpose of the loan, it was announced, is to finance imports of equipment for reconstruction or modernization of plant in 24 different projects. The projects, the World Bank said, affect virtually every sector of Dutch industry. The loan is guaranteed by the Netherlands government.

The loan is for 15 years with an interest rate of 3 per cent, plus a 1 per cent commission to go into the bank's special reserve fund. Payments, beginning in the fourth year, will amortize the loan at maturity.

Announcing the loan, the bank said:

"By continued effort on the part of the Dutch people, economic conditions in the Netherlands have improved substantially during the past year. Production has risen, inflationary pressure has decreased, and progress has been made in reducing the deficit in the balance of payments. The major need of the Dutch economy at present is for modernization and expansion of industrial plants, and raising of productivity which still remains below the prewar level. The Dutch population is increasing at the rate of one per cent a year, and one of the major objectives of the Dutch investment program, which the bank's loan will assist, is to provide a livelihood for the additional population.

"The loan is in accordance with one of the bank's main purposes—namely to aid in the reconstruction of economies of member nations and to encourage the development of their productive facilities and resources. The loan also follows the bank's policy of supplementing the European Recovery Program by assisting in financing projects which involve permanent additions to Europe's productive capacity.

"The Herstelbank intends to finance with the proceeds of the loan the hard currency requirements of 24 projects for the ceramic, chemical, pharmaceutical, electrical, paper, textile and engineering industries.

"Total investment in the projects will be the equivalent of 80 million dollars, of which about 18 million have already been spent. The Bank will supply a total of 15 million in United States dollars, Swiss francs, and Belgian francs. The balance, which will be provided from Dutch sources, will be in guilders, sterling and other soft currencies.

"Among the commodities, the production of which will be increased or modernized as a result of the loan are: container glass; household glassware; Portland cement; phenol; sulphuric acid; potassium ferro-cyanide; phthalic anhydride; ammonium sulphate; anthracene; naphthalene; creosote coal tar; coal tar pitch; benzene; soda ash; ammonium chloride; urea; table salt; sodium hydroxide; chlorine; copper oxychloride; aniline dyes, formic acid.

Oxalic acid; sodium sulphate; streptomycin; Diesel motors; crankshafts; chains; rubber, polythene and saran yarn cables; transformers; generator wire; turbo-generators; electrical traction apparatus; coated paper; paper bags; yarn; cotton and woolen fabrics.

Truman Picks Advisory Group To Assist in Reorganization

President Truman yesterday established an Advisory Committee on Management Improvement to assist him in improving the Government setup.

Thomas Morgan, president of the Sperry Corp., heads the group.

In a statement, the President said the committee "will assist me in planning an effective management improvement program on a Government-wide basis and in reviewing progress and accomplishments under it."

Named to serve with Chairman Morgan in this new step in the Administration's reorganization program were:

Lawrence A. Appley, New York, president of the American Management Association; Vincent Burke, First Assistant Postmaster General; Oscar Chapman, Undersecretary of Interior; Herbert Emmerich, Chicago, director of the Public Administration Clearing House; Edward Mason of Cambridge, dean of the Harvard Graduate School of Public Administration; Otto Nelson of Princeton, N. J., vice president of the New York Life Insurance Co.; James Palmer of Winnetka, Ill., executive vice president of Marshall Field & Co.; James E. Webb, Undersecretary of State; Gordon Clapp, chairman of the TVA, and Stephen Early, Undersecretary of Defense.

Budget Director Frank Pace, jr. will meet with and advise the committee.

The President said he was acting to assure "that there shall be a continuous and systematic effort throughout the executive branch to evaluate and improve the effectiveness and economy of Government operations."

He signed an executive order that he said was designed to "improve internal agency organization, identify and eliminate overlapping or unnecessary activities, simplify or modernize procedures, and assure that management shall be effective in its day-to-day direction and supervision of operations."

The executive order provides that department and agency heads shall (a) review their programs to assure the President that they are being carried out effectively and economically, (b) provide periodic appraisals of operations, (c) give priority to activities "promising greatest benefits" for the money expended, and (d) report periodically to the Budget Bureau on results achieved.

Mr. Truman directed the Budget Bureau to (a) review plans of all the departments, (b) assist Government agencies in improving their operations, (c) make appropriate arrangements for handling problems involving more than one agency, (d) provide an interchange of information on management techniques, and (e) report periodically to the President on progress made.

OHE Funds Slash Voted

By the United Press

The Senate yesterday voted 45 to 42 for $2,407,000 cut in funds for Housing Expediter Tighe E. Woods on the ground that he is decontrolling rents and doesn't need the money.

But it rejected a proposed $2,600,000 slash in funds for the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, the Nation's chief aviation research organization. Both Republicans and Democrats pointed to Russia's recent jet display as warning that the United States must not lag in air research.

The Senate is working on a $7,636,000,000 money bill carrying funds for 33 independent Government offices for the 1950 fiscal year, which began July 1. The bill includes funds for Woods and the NACA. Final action on the bill was delayed until next week.

Woods' allowance was cut from $24,075,000 to $21,667,000 at the suggestion of Senator Styles Bridges (R., N. H.), backed by Senators John W. Bricker (R., Ohio) and Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.). Bricker and Cain argued that the larger sum would give Woods 553 new employes at a time when rent control is supposed to be on the way out.

Senator John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.) argued that the added employes are needed to carry out new duties handed Woods under the new rent-control law.

Bridges also sought to pare the NACA budget by $2,600,000 from the $43,610,000 recommended by the Senate Appropriations Committee. Senator Virgil Chapman (D., Ky.) said that "any Senator who heard the secret testimony . . . on this measure would never vote against the appropriation." Senator Bridges' move was snowed under on a voice vote.

Radioman Slain, Sheriff Aide Gives Up

Alice, Tex., July 29 (AP).—W. H. (Bill) Mason, 51, veteran newspaper and radio man, was killed today.

Deputy Sheriff Sam Smithwick, about 60, surrendered on a murder charge. Mason, program director of Alice radio station KBKI, yesterday referred to the deputy in a broadcast as owner of a building which houses a dime-a-dance palace.

One bullet from a .45 caliber revolver cut through Mason, near the heart, as he climbed from his automobile in the warehouse district. The dying Mason crawled 50 yards for help.

Mason had worked on the New York Times, the San Francisco Examiner, the Oakland Times, Oakland Post-Enquirer and the old San Francisco Call.

He was investigator for Earl Warren, before Warren became Governor of California.

Later Mason was public relations director in Akron for the General Tire and Rubber Co.

He came to Alice in 1947.

Survivors include Mason's wife, Vera, of Alice; a son and daughter by a former marriage, Burton Mason, 22, of Alice and Mrs. Marilyn Krones, 21, of Manchester, Conn.; his mother, Mrs. Clara S. Mason, 72, of Minneapolis, Minn.; a brother, Elden Mason, executive of the National Blood Bank in Washington, D. C.; two sisters, Mrs. Katherine Hurd of Hayward, Calif., and Marion Tigerdson of Minneapolis.

Truman Exempts Black From Retirement

President Truman yesterday exempted Eugene Black of Texas from compulsory retirement as a judge of the U. S. Tax Court.

The exemption by executive order is for an indefinite period but not extending beyond Judge Black's present term which expires in 1956.

Judge Black has been on the court since 1929 and reached the retirement age of 70 last July 2. He was a member of Congress from Clarksville, Tex., before he was appointed to the court.

3 Soap Firms Rule Prices, Senators Told

By The Associated Press

An independent manufacturer said yesterday breaking up of what he called a "soap monopoly" of three big producers would result in a 40 per cent drop in soap prices.

Ernest O. Gillam, head of a Fort Worth, Tex., soap works, told a Senate Agricultural subcommittee the big three are Lever Bros., Proctor & Gamble, and Colgate-Palmolive-Peet Co.

The committee is seeking to determine the reason for current low prices on inedible fats and oils, principal ingredients in soap manufacture.

If the monopoly were dissolved, Gillam said, "you would see hundreds of small soap factories springing up all over America. You would see higher prices for fats and oils."

Other results, he said, would be a more stable price and more local labor, with less being spent for freight.

Gillam said the three major soapers do 85 per cent of all the business in this country and spend 58 million dollars a year in advertising. This amount was deductible for income tax purposes, he added, and was in excess of their reported net profits.

Klan Chief Allowed Court Order Extension

Birmingham, Ala., July 29 (AP).—Klan Chief William Hugh Morris today was given additional time to comply with a court order that he bring secret KKK membership rolls before a grand jury.

Judge George Lewis Bailes told Morris today he could have until 9:30 a. m., Monday to clear himself of a contempt charge first brought last July 7.

Indonesians, Dutch Agree On Cease-Fire

Batavia, Java, July 29 (AP).—Dutch and Indonesian Republican leaders agreed today on a cease-fire order to clear the way for formal peace and independence talks next month at The Hague.

The agreement marked the successful end of truce talks started last spring by the United Nations Commission for Indonesia. Details were not made public immediately.

Republican Premier Mohamed Hatta said orders would go out soon to Republican guerillas to stop fighting Dutch troops.

Premier Hatta said he expected to leave August 6 for the round-table conference in the Netherlands capital. The Dutch proposed the conference to work out a formal peace settlement and plans for establishment of an independent Indonesian nation under the Dutch crown.

Pleads Innocent in Slaying

New Orleans, July 29 (AP).—Louis Eugene Hoover pleaded innocent today to charges he murdered millionaire James Mahoney of Bristol, Va. in a hotel room here last February 21.

75 Hungarians Enter U. S. With Forged Documents

By the United Press

At least 75 Hungarians, many of them victims of Communist persecution, have reached the United States illegally on papers forged by a Paris passport ring, it was revealed yesterday.

Chairman Walter (D., Pa.), of a House Judiciary Subcommittee studying immigration problems, disclosed that immigration officials have rounded up the Hungarians and reportedly are looking for more.

He said all are being held at Ellis Island on a technical charge of stopping off in the U. S. too long. All had genuine transit visas allowing them to stay 29 days in this country while on the way to another.

Some of the Hungarians, Walter said, had genuine Hungarian passports, but they were all stamped with fraudulent visas, obtained in Paris, authorizing their entry into Cuba, Venezuela, Costa Rica, Paraguay or Honduras.

Some of them, he said, admitted paying the Paris ring up to $1500 for the fake visas.

Walter emphasized that none could be suspected of subversive activities. He said they are "decent, honest people" and that many were victims of Communist persecution.

They apparently "jumped the gun" in an attempt to enter the U. S., he said. Some might have been able to come over later as displaced persons, he said.

Atom Cooperation

The President's sensible and candid statement on the atomic energy conferences of the past fortnight sheds needed light on what until now had been made mysterious and ominous by silence. Its pledge of consultation and cooperation with Congress should resolve what threatened to become a dangerous impasse.

There appears to be no crisis in atomic energy and no rupture among the three nations, the United States, the United Kingdom and Canada, whose partnership produced the miracle of nuclear fission. Continuing cooperation among the partners is essential to the security of all of them. This cooperation involves exchange of scientific and technical information and collaboration on matters of raw material supply. The United States can strive for a monopoly in this field only at the price of a perilous kind of isolation.

It is altogether proper, however, that Congress should share in determining the nature and the terms of the international cooperation. The President's recognition of this should bring full reassurance to Capitol Hill. "It is essential," he said, "that action in this field which so vitally affects the security of the country be based on a wide area of agreement between the executive and legislative branches of the Government." Further exploratory talks with the United Kingdom and Canada are to take place. The conduct of these talks is, of course, within the executive province. As they progress, there will be further consultations with the Congress.

"In these consultations," said Mr. Truman, "we shall have to decide together what course of action it is wisest to take." This is responsible presidential leadership and should elicit from the Congress a response based on statesmanship rather than on chauvinism.

"All Asia"

Those like Governor Dewey who forecast so lightly the Chinese communization of "all Asia" unless the United States stops the Communists in China skip over the physical and political geography of Asia, not to say a million or more particular facts. Asia covers the great land mass of the Old World, stretching from well within the Arctic Circle to places just north of the Equator in southern Arabia, Ceylon and the Malay Peninsula. This dizzily vast area is three times the area of the United States, separated, moreover, by seas and oceans, jungles and deserts, and mountains of inaccessible height. The constituent countries are, as to many of them, loosely organized societies and lag in communications and the implements of industrial civilization. The people number seven times the people inhabiting continental United States—people of all races and religions, unlinked by any other desire than to earn their daily bread. Most of them, in addition, are seething with unrest, and this unrest is particular unto themselves. Their leaders and would-be leaders are unrelated to one another, mutually unreconcilable, and anxious only to retain or win power in their respective bailiwicks. For instance, the Indo-Chinese dislike the Chinese, and Ho Chi-minh and Mao Tze-tung have about as much use for each other as a couple of rattlesnakes.

One person in Asia who would be upset by Governor Dewey's fleeting glance at the crystal ball if it were anything more than an hallucination would be Premier Nehru. But we doubt that he gave the New Yorker's views more than passing notice. He has more practical affairs on his doorstep to attend to. There was much the same cursory reaction to the Chiang Kai-shek-Quirino-Syngman Rhee formation of a Pacific Pact to fight communism. Nehru noted the event, said it was interesting, but that India was preoccupied with other things. Yet nobody could say that Nehru is not concerned with seeing communism uprooted. Communism is making trouble for him within India's borders. But his nonchalance toward the Chiang-Quirino-Rhee pact seems to indicate a view that this triumvirate will not help him to combat it.

It is difficult to figure out exactly what Governor Dewey wants to send to China: arms or Americans or both. If Americans are due for dispatch to the Chinese morass, south, southwest, east, or west, let us remember the fate of the great Khans who thought they could clean up China. After a term of years there was nothing left of them but Chinamen. We want our Americans to remain Americans and our America to stay America. Perhaps the Governor wants arms sent instead of Americans—more arms. This is the news, doubtless, that Mao Tze-tung awaits. He has thriven on American war booty, and the sight of equipment "Made in U. S. A." entering Peiping, Tienstsin, and Shanghai with the Communist troops is eloquent of what Secretary Acheson on Monday mildly called the unfeasibility of military assistance in China—unless, that is to say, the United States is intent on seeing the Chinese Communists overrun "all Asia." Mao Tze-tung has an Alexander-sized job in overrunning all China, and there are ways and means of enhancing his difficulties without military adventuring, such as the use of political and propaganda means and the maintenance of diplomatic unity.

Testimony On Arms

Members of the high military command led by Secretary Johnson testified yesterday to the worth of MAP in terms of the American security. There was no lack of unification in their position. Attention will probably be focused upon the evidence of the man who has come to be regarded as a great example of a democratically minded general as well as of wisdom, Omar N. Bradley. General Bradley put in perspective the issues that arise in any arms program for Europe. He seems to share the Napoleonic view that morale is to materiel as 3 to 1. It is the will-to-resist that counts—that incredible spirit that in the recent wars marked the Finns in the 1939-40 conflict with Russia and in the days after Dunkirk covered the British with undying glory. In these postwar days the quality has sagged everywhere in Europe except, perhaps, in noncombatant Turkey.

It is the consensus of the high command that morale among the 150 million people in the European nations covered by the Atlantic Pact is returning. The witnesses yesterday did not give what to us is the signal instance of this—that those nations authorized their leaders to sign an alliance with North America which would put them in some jeopardy if the Russians decided to attack. This is a sign of courage as well as of prudence, a sign of faith in themselves. It is General Bradley's contention that this morale would be completely rebuilt by MAP. And how important that is to the United States! "Our friends in western Europe live within the boundaries of our own defensive frontiers." It follows that the defense of those frontiers is a vital concern of the United States, and this concern is registered in the Atlantic Pact. It would be half-way security not to arm the alliance. Only as this country itself shows confidence can it expect confidence on the part of Allies who are situated on the firing line. General Bradley drives home this American responsibility. America is precisely at the same stage as Britain was when Pitt called upon his countrymen to save the world by their example and themselves by their exertions.

One question that has bothered us hitherto has been whether we and they are united in strategical dispositions and in division of effort. There is absolutely no point in sending arms to any nation in Europe which is not prepared to yield to a single command for the defense of Europe. General Bradley contributed some light on this problem. The principle has already been laid down that "the man in the best position, and with the capability, should do the job for which he is best suited." This is what the economists call specialization of function. General Bradley gave instances of the application of this principle, and it may be said that already there is more military than economic integration in Europe. In the common security there should be no relaxation in extending the application of this principle. That this is the aim is indicated by the fact that the joint chiefs flew to Europe as soon as they had testified yesterday in behalf of MAP.

On Junking Junkets

This is the season for congressional junkets. A considerable difference of opinion exists concerning the actual benefits in the way of legislative wisdom to be derived from these excursions. At one time last year more than a third of the entire membership of the House of Representatives were unable to answer roll calls because they were in places far from Washington on some inquisition or other. Many of their colleagues felt that this was overdoing a good thing. So did the armed services, which, after reckoning up the number of pilots, the quantity of gasoline, and the wear and tear involved in transporting Congressmen, announced that they weren't going to do any more of it—except perhaps in cases where the junkets gave some promise of tangible benefits to the National Military Establishment.

For the benefit of our readers, who may be trying to make up their minds about the value of legislative junkets, we pass on the following etymological notes on the word junket.

The word, it seems, is derived from the old French jonquette, which originally meant a basket made of rushes. Thus it is cognate, through the Latin juncus, with the bird called the junco and with the flower called the jonquil, the one symbolic of flight and the other of the holiday spirit. Presently junket came also to mean a kind of cream cheese made in a jonquette. Evidently these junkets were considered quite a luxury, like truffles or caviar nowadays, so that in time the word came to signify almost any dainty or delicate dish, and then any kind of elegant feast. Thus by the seventeenth century the verb "to junket" meant to gather for some kind of Lucullan repast. Swift, in one of his angry moods, speaks of servants who pilfer tidbits from their masters' tables by day to junket with by night.

About 180 years later both the original and derived meanings were combined in "junket basket," that is, the kind of basket used to carry food to a picnic. And so "to junket" meant to make a picnic, and that seems to have been the common usage when the word was first employed by some anonymous journalist to describe investigations made far afield by congressional committees.

Clark And McGrath

President Truman is right, of course, in saying that a man's faith has nothing to do with his qualifications to be a justice of the Supreme Court. It would certainly be a grievous mistake to withhold appointment from any well qualified jurist on grounds of his religious affiliation. But it is time to get away from the idea that any particular Supreme Court appointment should go to a Catholic, a Protestant or a Jew so that the new member will be of the same faith as his predecessor. The only really important point is the nominee's judicial temperament, learning and experience.

In rejecting one false criterion, however, the President has tripped over another. For his selection of Attorney General Clark to succeed Justice Murphy is not based on the highest judicial standards. Mr. Clark has many admirable qualities, but he has not been an outstanding Attorney General. His courageous prosecution of John L. Lewis and his zeal in antitrust suits are offset by his careless handling of the Eisler case and his more serious lack of good judgment in advising the President as to his emergency powers under the Constitution. It is highly improbable that his name would have appeared on any list of distinguished jurists such as a conscientious President usually assembles before making an appointment to the Supreme Court. Mr. Truman needs to be reminded that a man's good fellowship has nothing more to do with his qualification to sit on our highest tribunal than has his faith.

As for Senator McGrath, who is the President's choice for Attorney General, we have no doubt that he will run the Department of Justice ably if he accepts the post. But here again the impropriety of designating the chairman of the Democratic National Committee to head the prosecuting arm of the Government must be noted. The President was so insensitive to the necessity of keeping this quasi-judicial post free from political influences that he said he did not know whether Mr. McGrath would resign his political post if he accepts the Attorney Generalship. Combination of the dominant party chairmanship with the Department of Justice would be a high price indeed to pay for the elevation of Mr. Clark to the Supreme Bench.

We have no doubt that Mr. Clark will be conscientious on the bench, and as his experience broadens with the years he may become an outstanding justice. Certainly he has at times shown the requisite independence and sense of public duty. But one's hope for the future does not minimize the present disappointment over the President's failure to do his best. He has treated a great coordinate branch of the Government as if it were an institution for the reward of his personal favorites. The fact that this keeps the court overweighted with former executive officials, leaves it politically lopsided, and seems to close the door of our highest judicial body to the greatest legal minds of our time, appears to have been lightly disregarded.

Anti-Communist Oath

The steel workers union has at last decided to comply with the anti-Communist oath requirement of the Taft-Hartley Act. During the past two years President Murray and other union officials, although waging war against Communists in their own organization, have refused to take the oath as a matter of principle, hoping that the act would soon be repealed and the oath provision dropped. The disappointment of those hopes and the near certainty that any new labor legislation eventually passed will retain the anti-Communist oath provision—and, indeed, probably extend it to employers—make further resistance a futile gesture of defiance.

However, the compelling reason for the union's capitulation is that its activities have been seriously hampered by its inability to use the services of the National Labor Relations Board because of noncompliance with the provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act. At present its name cannot appear on ballots in representation elections conducted by the NLRB. As a result other complying unions have made inroads on its preserves and its organization drive has suffered. The steel workers union has also been deprived of the privilege of bringing charges of unfair employer practices to the board's attention. The union is now involved in a controversy with the steel companies over the admissibility of pension demands at this time. If that dispute is not settled by mutual agreement after the President's special fact-finding board makes its recommendations, the union, by qualifying for recognition, might bring charges of unfair practice against the companies.

This partial catalogue of the advantages enjoyed by unions complying with the law indicates that, despite the law's defects, it is not one-sided, promanagement legislation designed for the benefit of employers alone. Recalcitrant unions are discovering that fact and beginning to realize that the policy they have been following of setting themselves above the law is a form of self-penalization that does nothing to further their political campaign for repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act.

"Press Intimidation"

Your editorial in the July 24 issue entitled "Press Intimidation" is slightly below the belt. To attack me, you deliberately ignore my main point in criticizing Judge Kaufman, presiding judge in the Alger Hiss case, for his efforts to intimidate newspapermen covering the trial. Here are the facts:

In my speech on the House floor July 13, I noted that Judge Kaufman had warned the press that he did not know what he could do about extremist views expressed in the press "but after the conclusion of this trial that subject should be considered, either by the court or through some other method."

The Washington Post chose to ignore the portion of my speech in which I said: "Of course, the judge has a perfect right to protect proceedings before him from any outside interference or influence that would be prejudicial to justice. Had Judge Kaufman limited himself to that area, he would not be subjected to criticism by me now. The bench is amply empowered to handle such matters. He went far beyond his authority. What did he mean by 'some other method'?"

The attitude of The Washington Post may now be "Gee whiz, we didn't even know that we'd been hurt," but it was not the attitude of responsible newspapermen covering the trial at that time. To them the implication was clear that Judge Kaufman was using the words "or through some other method" for calculated reasons.

I, as a newspaper publisher, did not pretend to read Judge Kaufman's mind; I only read his words. They went beyond judicial propriety and the boundaries of his court.

We have had 17 long years of intimidation by "some other method." This is supposed to be a Nation of laws and legally prescribed procedures. The whole trend in the Federal judiciary has been away from law and toward that realm of findings by the elite for which there is neither legal precedent nor law.

If The Washington Post is not aware that this same trend enabled Hitler and Mussolini to rise to power, and now enables the Communists to control a huge part of the world's population, I, at least, am, and intend to continue my fight against it despite such pieces of shallow editorial whimsy as yours of July 24.

Potential Demand

Representative Fogarty and others of its critics have characterized the Barden bill as "unfair" because it allocates funds on the basis of each State's total school-age population, while it confines those funds to the use of the public schools.

The public schools are for the use of every child. Obviously, it is the duty of each State to be prepared to meet the potential demand of its total school-age group for educational facilities—for every child, regardless of what school he may attend, has an unquestioned right to a public education. In American practice, the State does not have the privilege of delegating this duty to others; nor has it the right to assume that, because private institutions have accepted a share of the burden, they will continue to carry it—for the State cannot prevent them from yielding up at any time, through policy or necessity, their accustomed responsibilities. Since Federal aid is theoretically designed to assist the States in their basic educational efforts, it is certainly logical that it be apportioned on the basis of potential demand. To deduct nonpublic pupils from this potential demand would be a tacit admission of dependence upon the continuance of private facilities, and of the consequent obligation to support them.

As a practical example of "potential demand," we have the recent North College Hill (Ohio) affair, in which the Catholic church threatened to close its school unless public support were given it. The public authorities refused the support, and, during the summer, provided facilities for the expected influx. As might have been supposed—but not relied upon—the threat was largely bluff, and the church continued its school. Such threats and their possible fulfillment—are implicit in the economic and social stresses of the time.

Mrs. Katherine Moncure

In your July 18 issue you carried an obituary of the late Mrs. Katherine Moncure who had been connected with Emergency Hospital.

It referred to her aid to Sumner Welles. True, he was one of her many notable patients, but it told nothing of the greatest part of her work and the ones to whom her loss is most overwhelming and poignant—the little people, the plain people.

For many weeks, even months, I was a patient in the hospital and under Mrs. Moncure's care. Even the poorest, regardless of creed or color, were tended by her or under her supervision just as tenderly as the greatest patient she ever cared for.

Education Bill Bias

Apart from the question of whether Federal financial aid to education should include money for parochial schools or not, the Barden bill for Federal aid to education is a bad bill. For it would turn over the Federal funds to the States without any restrictions against the expenditure of those funds by States where there are separate segregated schools for whites and Negroes, in a manner which might further discriminate against the schools for Negro children.

This is important because in some Southern States the dominant white voters literally rob the Negro children of their fair share of school funds. For example, in 1946 (the last year in which figures have been published by the United States Office of Education), there were five States, Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia and South Carolina, which spent less than half as much to educate a Negro child as for a white child; one, Louisiana, which spent only 1/3 as much per Negro child; and one, Mississippi, which spent only 1/5 as much.

The Barden bill would not prevent Federal funds from being expended in a similar unfair manner, while the bill for Federal aid to education passed by the Senate provides that where there are separate schools for whites and Negroes the proportion of the Federal money spent for Negro children shall not be less than the proportion that Negro children bear to the total number of children, and without worsening the proportion of State funds spent for the Negro schools. In that way, the Federal funds would considerably reduce the discrimination in educational opportunities from which Negro children suffer in such States as Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Alabama, Georgia, Florida and South Carolina.

Marshall Heights Redevelopment

The letter from I. G. T. in your July 25 issue on Marshall Heights omits many of the pertinent facts.

Let us examine the primary reasons for selecting Marshall Heights as the first redevelopment site.

First, it lacks adequate sewer and water facilities which, rightly, the property owners have demanded. To supply these would mean an outlay of about $165,000 by the District government. But the present street system, which takes no account whatever of the very hilly topography of the area, would make the job an extremely difficult one. In addition, the cost of connecting these facilities to each house would in a large number of cases prove prohibitive to the owners, again because of the street layout.

Many of the lots are only 20 feet wide, yet so deep that much of the land is wasted. While some of the homes are undeniably substantially built, the majority are very far below minimum constructive standards.

In the strict sense of the words, Senator Flanders is right in saying Marshall Heights is not a city slum. There is no congestion—in fact, three times as many families could be housed there without in the least crowding the area, and it is in general owner-occupied, both of which are not usually true of city slums. On the other hand, it fits all standard definitions of a rural slum.

Any redevelopment plan which would start out with the congested central slum area of Washington, would immediately run into a snag. People would have to be evicted from these buildings in order to get them torn down and decent dwellings erected. Where would you put these people while this was being done? But in Marshall Heights, the vacant land could be built on before any demolition took place. The present residents could temporarily move into these units while the rest of the site was redeveloped. Then after these families moved into their permanent homes, the units built on the vacant land could be used as a kind of revolving fund of houses, and made available in turn to those displaced by clearance of the central slum areas.

It is for these reasons that Marshall Heights cannot be considered the sole concern of those now living out there. It affects all slum dwellers in the District, and becomes their main hope that redevelopment here can some day become a reality.

On the other hand, it is unquestionably true that a way must be found to assure all those homeowners an opportunity to remain owners. Perhaps the answer may lie in the formation of a housing cooperative, perhaps in the formation of a group of public-spirited individuals to underwrite a financial plan for the individual purchase of homes.

For the sake of the elimination of slums in the Nation's Capital, the answer must not be to leave Marshall Heights as it is.

Mrs. Feddup Rebels

MRS. FRANCINE FEDDUP, who is frequently goaded by human behavior to scream aloud, has broken her recent parole. She was before Judge Parmalee Pudd yesterday having been arrested at a meeting of the Porcelain Pigeon Fanciers Society where her screams caused a police riot call.

"What set you off, Mrs. Feddup?" asked the judge.

"Your honor, I suddenly realized there soon wouldn't be an ordinary human being left in the world—that everyone would be an 'ist,' a 'crat,' an 'an,' an 'ik,' a 'pro' or an 'anti.'"

"You sound a little subversive, Mrs. Feddup. What was this meeting about?"

"It was to decide whether or not this country should share atomic information with the British. Afterward we were to have punch and chocolate brownies——"

"I trust," interrupted the judge, "a sound, realistic pro-American decision was reached."

"They didn't get to the question, your Honor. You see there was unfinished business as to whether the club emblem should be worn on the left or right lapel, and the meeting split into left and right wing factions and we got involved in the cold war. Speakers were calling each other radicals, reactionaries, Communists, imperialists, New Dealers, Dixiecrats, proletarians, antediluvians, infidels, fanatics, pinks, reds, psycopaths——"

"That will do," broke in the judge, "Why did you scream?"

"I GOT to thinking your Honor, how everywhere I went I was being put into the filing system of some great steel cabinet. I couldn't express an idea on any subject without someone telling me that was the party line of the Reds, or the NAM, or the AMA, or the bimetallists or the Confucionists or the vegetarians. I couldn't speak to an acquaintance, be seen reading a book, or take a stand on how to eat fried chicken without being classified as a rightwinger or a leftwinger. I couldn't discuss a public question without some ideological file clerk popping up to ask whether I was pro-labor or anti-labor, a Fair Dealer, a New Dealer, a Dixiecrat, an Old Guard, a 'real' Democrat, or a 'real' Republican."

"Well, which are you, Mrs. Feddup?"

"That depends, judge, on the question at issue."

"That is a dangerous approach. You should take a definite stand on the side of decency and sanity."

Mrs. Feddup hastily clapped her hand over her mouth. "On top of that," she resumed after a minute, "I happened to think how I was being cross filed. If I spoke of the future wonders of atomic energy without mentioning the bomb 'secret' someone would ask me suspiciously if I were a physicist. If I admitted I made my beds every morning, I was labeled as a perfectionist. If I took tomato juice instead of a Martini at a party, I was straightway a prohibitionist. If I spoke with feeling of something I believed in, I was at once a propagandist. If I deplored the cold war between this country and the Soviet Union, or the widespread rowing over religion, or even the recent fight of the panther and the gorilla, I was a pacifist.

"WHAT'S MORE I was fed up with the way people everywhere I went were blithely disposing of anyone who didn't agree with them by saying, 'Oh, he's a pink,' or a 'leftist' or a 'Tory' or a 'politician' or a 'militarist' or a 'theorist' or a 'dogooder,' or what have you. And I also was fed up with all this smart aleck, superficial appraisal of public men in one or two words; with this labeling of complex human beings, who are mixtures of good and bad, as if they were specimens in a zoo, or jars of preserves on a shelf."

"But Mrs. Feddup——"

"Just a minute, judge. I got to thinking about how I was being filed away as this or that as if I would never change or grow.

"And as I heard all these silly people trying to label each other it seemed as if hundreds of file clerks were coming toward me with card indexes and rubber stamps and—well I let 'em have it!"

"Mrs. Feddup," said the judge, "your remarks have been very eccentric. I just don't know how to classify them. Why don't you take up some genteel interest, join something?"

"I did join the Porcelain Pigeon Fanciers at your suggestion, your honor, when I was paroled."

The judge wiped his brow wearily. "I suppose Mrs. Feddup," he said, "that being the kind of woman you are, and with the world in the state it is, there's only one thing for you to do. I'll dismiss you on condition you find some way to put your brain, such as it is, in storage for the rest of the summer."

Daylight Saving Lament

After two long months of this intense, wilting heat, I find myself wishing we could shift back to God's time for the rest of the summer. With standard time our homes cool (a bit, at least) an hour earlier, thus enabling us to get an hour's earlier sleep, to help fortify us against the intense heat of the following day.

It is to be hoped that all involved in changing our time, will remember this summer's heat, and let us remain on God's time hereafter.

British Dollar Crisis —Bridging The Gap

An interesting correspondence is running in The Times, of London, on the permanent solution to be formulated for the so-called dollar crisis in Britain. The following is one of the letters, written by W. R. Watson-Smyth.

LIEUT. COL. St. Clare Grondona's fanciful suppositions of "passive resistance" to the dollar problem and its consequences to the American economy are interesting in that they expose, ad absurdum, the widely held fallacy that the crisis is, or will become, as devastating to the United States as to ourselves.

IT IS TRUE that our withdrawal from the cotton, tobacco and other markets in America would present that country with very grave difficulties. The question is: Would those difficulties prove so great that she would be obliged permanently to trade with us at a loss? The idea of saddling America with the responsibility of selling our goods, sent to her in exchange for her primary products, is a tacit admission of our failure to make their quality and price sufficiently competitive in her markets to ensure their sale by us. A position might easily arise whereby subsidies would have to replace tariffs on British imports to achieve sales. Furthermore, once the spur of competitive sales was removed from British exporters, what check, other than pious resolutions, would there be on prices?

The fallacy of the argument lies, of course, in the "three alternatives" which Lieut. Col. St. Clare Grondona offers to the cotton growers. They may, he says (a) flood the home market, (b) pile up or destroy their crops, or (c) send them to Britain to be sold for sterling. Unconsidered, apparently, is the fourth possibility that they might discontinue growing cotton if they found themselves unable to obtain a profit in strict dollar value. The changeover made necessary by such a decision would be very expensive no doubt, but so are the present loans, etc., to Britain, and the money, from the American point of view, might seem better spent on internal reorganization of production rather than on permanent subsidization, open or concealed, of British imports.

THE BARGAINING counter of a "buyer's strike" may be powerful enough when used against a country dependent on exports for its essential needs, such as ourselves, but it is nowhere near as omnipotent as your correspondent assumes in regard to a virtually or potentially self-sufficient country such as the United States. It is this very self-sufficiency allied to efficient American production which forms our stumbling-block. Obviously there is no absolute necessity for such a country to export at all and the only incentives for her to do so are to obtain in exchange more competitively priced goods than her own and, even then, she may well decide, and often does, that it would be wise to erect a tariff wall and thus remove even this possibility.

RATHER THAN face the expense and upheavals of reorganization, America finds it worth her while to "subsidize" us at present as a temporary measure. Except in so far as it effects her future military (and capitalistic?) security—and this is by far the most powerful card in our hand—we must face the fact that there are no reasons, other than sentimental ones, for her to continue, as a permanent feature of her economy, to trade with us on any but a strict value-for-money basis. Such a basis can only be achieved by greater efficiency of production and vigorous selling in American markets by Britain, coupled with the abandonment by the United States of the "protective" tariff weapon.

There are two alternative solutions of the dollar gap, if this basis is unobtainable. One is to buy our needs from non-self-sufficient countries who will take our products in exchange—virtually an Imperial preference policy. The other is to accept a much lower standard of living. Let us try them in that order, realizing that "wishful thinking" is still a dangerous pastime and that neither specious pleading nor economic legerdemain will ever make the "gap" vanish. Working must supplant dreaming now.

Truman Goes To Shangri La To Cool Off

Thurmont, Md., July 29 (U.P.).—Escaping from Washington's heat, President Truman today drove to Shangri La, presidential retreat near here. Five minutes later he was cooling off in an icy mountain pool.

Acting as his own chauffeur, Mr. Truman drove an open gray convertible through the Maryland countryside and up the winding road leading to the rustic lodge on Catoctin Mountain where President Roosevelt often relaxed during the war years.

Accompanied by Secret Service men, members of the White House staff and reporters, Mr. Truman planned to spend the weekend getting a lot of sleep. He will return to Washington sometime Sunday.

The President was recognized by only a few persons during the two-hour journey.

Just outside the Capital, a marine private tried to thumb a ride and his face broke into an incredulous smile when he saw Mr. Truman behind the wheel.

A youth changing a tire and four lads sitting at a small town crossroads were the only others who recognized the President. He waved to them gaily.

Riding in the car with him were James Rowley, head of the White House Secret Service detail; Presidential Secretary William D. Hassett, and Joseph G. Feeney, the President's legislative assistant.

Other members of the White House staff planned to arrive later.

Quenille Cabinet Wins Test by 3 Votes

Paris, July 29 (AP). — The French middle-of-the-road government barely withstood an assault from the combined forces of the right and left today.

By the slim margin of 289 votes to 286, the National Assembly backed the cabinet of Premier Henri Queuille on a ballot to defer full-scale debate on the issue of vacation bonuses.

Advice Given Merchants On Sales Tax

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter
(Seventh in a Series)

The new District sales tax may be a headache to the customers but to the dealers it's a worse one.

Dealers already concerned about dwindling sales now will have to face additional worries in their new role as tax collectors starting Monday.

The first step they must take is to apply for a free certificate of registration for the tax. Application forms are available at police stations and fire houses on a 24-hour basis and at banks and the District Building during working hours.

The next step, after the certificate is issued, is to prepare resale certificates for suppliers. Unless these are furnished, the suppliers are expected to collect the sales tax even though the materials purchased are destined for resale.

Exemptions on Utilities

The third step is to file for whatever exemptions the firm may be entitled to on purchases of utilities. This is done on an application for specific exemption. The number of the specific exemption certificate issued is required by the utility companies before tax exemption is granted.

Retailers who have not applied for their registration certificates yet are in for a hard time since it will take several days for their applications to be processed. The number of the registration certificate is necessary for the resale papers.

Merchants will have a lot of leeway in maintaining records of tax collections. They should remember, however, that the act presumes that all receipts from sale of personal property are from taxable sales and subject to tax. The contrary must be established by the dealer.

This points up the need for maintaining careful records of sales to exempted groups such as semipublic institutions, diplomats or governmental units, and sales of items on the tax-exempt list. Sales below 14 cents are not considered exempt although dealers cannot collect tax and these must be included in the gross receipts on which taxes are paid.

First Payment Due Sept. 20

The first payment of the tax will be due September 20 and the forms for making it will be mailed out to dealers starting September 1. Payment may be by check or money order made payable to the "Collector of Taxes, District of Columbia," and mailed to him at the District Building, 14th and D sts. nw., Washington 4, D. C.

Several dealer groups are helping members get set for the collections. The Merchants and Manufacturers Association has prepared printed tax rate cards in two sizes—one for inclusion in sales books and the other for placement on counters—and these are for sale to members and nonmembers.

The District Pharmaceutical Association has prepared placards explaining the tax collections and exemptions on items sold in drug stores. It has also arranged for purchase of "tax tabulators" which will be attached to cash registers to indicate to customers that the tax has been collected.

Problems and Answers

Some expected problems and the answers are:

Q. What items may be legitimately deducted from the sales price before computing the tax?

A. Trade discount, cash discount if payment is made at the time of sale, excise tax, and transportation charges, if all are separately stated.

Q. Should 5 and 10 cent stores collect tax on separate sales to the same person in one day?

A. No. Combined sales made in a place of busness, whether or not at different counters or departments, on the same business day are subject to the tax on the total, not on the individual sales.

Q. When are containers such as cartons, bottles or boxes subject to the sale tax?

A. When they are purchased for consumption of the dealer as in the repeated use of a case in delivering soda water or when they are used in rendering services as in laundering shirts. If they are purchased for use in delivering items, they are taxfree.

Pays Tax on Own Brooms

Q. Does a retailer have to pay a sales tax on brooms and mops used in keeping his store clean?

A. Yes, he is the consumer.

Q. If I rent specially-made uniforms for my clerks is the rental subject to tax?

A. Yes, since you will have control over the garments "for a period extensive enough to result in substantial consumption of the property." If the rental is on a common type of uniform which is used by many stores, no tax is applicable.

Q. Are rentals of business machines subject to tax?

A. Yes, in those cases where it is of specialized type and cannot be purchased outright. Common types such as typewriters or adding machines are subject to tax.

Q. May I as a dealer absorb the sales tax for my customers?

A. No. It is unlawful to do so, say so or advertise this.

Q. How is the tax levied on installment sales?

A. A merchant may either remit the tax due on the total amount of the sales prices of the taxable retail sales made during the month or pay the taxes as collected with each periodic payment. Once a method is adopted, the dealer must stick to it unless authorized to change.

Q. What are the requirements of a bona fide contract on which a sale is tax exempt?

A. It must have been entered into before May 27, 1949, in writing with a liability on both parties to carry out their terms at a fixed price. Further, if the transfer of the title or possession of an item takes place before August 1, the sale is exempt, except for any amount payable after August 1.

Q. Is the sales tax collected on an item later returned subject to refund?

A. Yes, if the return is made within 90 days of the sale date.

Q. If a customer buys a made-to-order suit, but does not select the material until after August 1, is the sale exempt from tax?

A. No.

Q. Are persons on a waiting list for electrical appliances who buy them after August 1 cleared of obligation to pay a sales tax?

A. No, this is not considered a sale until the merchandise is delivered and payment made.

Q. If a merchant orders a year's supply of brooms for his own use at a fixed price, are the individual deliveries free of tax?

A. No. If he orders and pays for them before August 1, they are.

Day Sets Record

Car Owners Rush to Save Title Tax

More than 1500 District motorists yesterday rushed the Traffic and Vehicle Division to obtain auto titles before the 2 per cent excise levy becomes effective Monday.

Traffic Director George Keneipp extended the closing time from 3:30 p. m. to 4:30 p. m. to accomodate the hundreds of persons who had been waiting hours to beat the added cost of putting their cars on the road.

"Yesterday was the biggest day's title business I've ever had," Keneipp said last night.

Under the new District revenue act, autos are exempted from the sales tax but are subject to an equivalent 2 per cent tax payable on issuance of a District title.

Residents who already own a car with District tags will not be required to pay the tax.

The levy will be figured on the "fair market value" of the vehicle. For instance, if you own a car valued at $1700, your District title will cost you $34.

Meanwhile, two other tax deadlines bore down on Washington residents last night.

Personal property tax returns must be in the mail and postmarked not later than midnight Sunday to avoid the 20 per cent penalty.

And the 3000 persons who failed to pay last year's personal property taxes, which should have been settled last March, will start receiving notices of seizure Monday.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Strengthening Tito

TO ENABLE Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia to go on standing up to the Soviet Union is a major objective of the United States and Great Britain in eastern Europe. So long as Tito is off the Communist reservation—and his war with the Cominform is growing hotter—Russia is hampered in her plans to consolidate the military and economic resources of the Soviet sphere. Obviously, the chances for peace are thereby increased.

Childs

This policy has been the source of a closely guarded controversy at the highest level here in Washington. It came about as a result of Yugoslavia's application for a license to purchase a steel rolling mill in this country.

Shortly before he went on a brief visit to Yugoslavia, Ambassador Sava N. Kosanovich was told that the necessary export license would be issued. That was based on the conviction of experts in both the State and Commerce Departments that it was a "calculated risk" in the interests of peace.

Steel engineers of the New York firm of H. A. Brassert were already in Belgrade making a survey and British engineers are also at work. While terms of payment had not been worked out, the hope was that this could be negotiated on a basis of private trade, since Yugoslavia is sending to this country increasing shipments of lead, copper and other minerals.

ALL THIS appears to have been premature, since in a late phase of the discussions Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson asserted himself. As he has done in several instances, he stepped into what had been considered up to that point a matter of foreign policy.

Johnson was opposed to permitting Yugoslavia to buy and import the steel mill. Yugoslavia, he said with characteristic finality, was behind the Iron Curtain, and that was enough for him.

Finally, Secretary of State Dean Acheson, with experts from State and Commerce, met Johnson to argue it out. According to some of those present, it was an extraordinary session.

Johnson is reported to have made the flat statement that the proposed mill would increase the steel capacity of Russia and the satellites by 5 per cent. To those in the Commerce Department familiar with steel production, this was a startling statement. Soviet Russia today can produce annually an estimated 17 million metric tons and the satellites, exclusive of Yugoslavia, perhaps another nine million tons.

The export license sought by Yugoslavia calls for an expenditure of about three million dollars over all. A mill of that size, as the experts figured it, would certainly not add 5 per cent to the steel potential of eastern Europe.

In skilled and lawyer-like fashion Acheson argued the case for strengthening Tito so that Yugoslavia can resist the tightening cord of economic blockade applied under Russian orders to all the satellites. While that blockade is causing some economic hardship, it has not seriously weakened the regime of Marshal Tito. It has, however, delayed the grandiose plans for industrialization Tito has orated about.

This, it seems to me, is a question in which sentiment and emotion should enter as little as possible. If, as a purely practical matter, Tito can be sustained, then Russia's position in Europe is weakened. To deny Tito even this small lifeline will make the Kremlin rejoice.

The International Bank is about to send a mission to Yugoslavia as the result of an application from Belgrade for a loan to develop mineral resources. But because of the way in which it is set up the Bank must proceed slowly.

THE CONTROVERSY over the Yugoslav steel mill bears some resemblance to the question of whether or not this country is to share atomic information with Great Britain and Canada. Both are calculated risks. Both are risks proposed in the interest of ultimate peace and security in the world. In the end President Truman will probably have to decide whether Yugoslavia is to get a steel mill.

Those who oppose these risks—or, for that matter, any risk—seem often, whether they realize it or not, to be acting in the belief that war is the only way out. To accept that belief is, it seems to me, to deny that there is any hope left.

16 on Bus Trip To Canada Get Food Poisoning

Niagara Falls, Ontario, July 29 (U.P.).—Sixteen of 25 persons, all from Elkridge, Md., on a charter bus tour were stricken with food poisoning today shortly after crossing the Rainbow Bridge into Canada.

All 25 were taken to Greater Niagara General Hospital for emergency treatment. Hospital spokesmen said "several" of the 16 were unconscious. All were members of an Elkridge (Md.) Baptist church who left Baltimore on the tour to the falls yesterday morning.

Police said that the tourists began vomiting and collapsing in the bus shortly after the vehicle pulled away from the Rainbow Bridge. They were to have returned to the United States Saturday.

City Health Officer Patrick Andrews confiscated packages of potato chips which the visitors said they purchased in Baltimore and in Batavia, N. Y. Andrews said he believed the potato chips had become rancid in the extreme midsummer humidity.

Strip Poker in Paris Hotel Jails Annapolis Girl, 16

Paris, July 29 (U.P.).—A 16-year-old American girl was under arrest here today for staging a strip poker game so wild that it shocked even her neighbors in the Bohemian Latin Quarter.

The girl, who can be identified only as Betty, of Annapolis, Md., because she is a minor, was arrested May 17 and later brought before a French examining magistrate charged with "public indecency."

The magistrate, M. Cosnard, said Betty told him she arranged the game with three French boys and a girl whom she met in a cafe.

It was hot and stuffy in the little hotel room, he quoted her as saying, so they left the windows open and the shades up while they got down to their poker.

By 4 o'clock in the morning, the magistrate continued, all five were down to the scantiest bits of attire, if that. Neighbors were shocked and telephoned police.

Betty was quoted as telling police officers who arrested her, "I guess I had too much to drink."

She is in the Prison de la Petite Roquette until investigation is completed.

Betty had brought an aunt, who is in a convent in Paris, as a character witness. The aunt, an American, told the magistrate:

"I am quite sure that my niece is a moral young lady."

Cosnard rejected her testimony.

"You are probably completely unaware of these things," he told her. "I think you should refrain from making such flat statements until you learn more."

Senate Committee Approves Streamlined ECA Measure

Senate rules. But Appropriations committeemen insist on the right to write in legislation if the House does so.

What the committee did last night was rephrase the contested legislative riders to at least technically conform with Senate rules. In their new form they can't be knocked out on parliamentary points of order, the committee claims. That means they can be passed by a majority vote instead of a difficult-to-muster two-thirds count.

Three Amendments Redrafted

Redrafted as limitations on spending, rather than new legislation, were these three amendments:

1. The McClellan farm rider. In its original form this required ECA and the Army to purchase two billion dollars worth of American surplus farm products. The new version not only technically complies with Senate rules, but cuts the amount of farm purchases 10 per cent to conform with the 10 per cent cut in other ECA funds.

2. The Spain amendment. This originally earmarked 50 million dollars which could be used as a loan to Spain or not spent at all. The new version accomplished the same purpose with this language: "50 million dollars shall not be available for any other purpose than assistance to Spain."

3. The so-called Morocco amendment. This bars use of ECA counterpart (local currency) funds to any participating country that violates a treaty with the United States. It is designed to meet complaints of American businessmen in French Morocco that they are being discriminated against.

74 Million Restored

Restored to the bill was 74 million dollars previously lopped from ECA appropriations for the last quarter of the 1949 fiscal year. The Senate early this week voted to erase the cut and the committee let the Senate action stand.

Other-so-called legislative riders were left out of the bill, but Chairman Kenneth McKellar (D., Tenn.) said they would be offered the floor. Under this procedure they must be approved by a two-thirds vote if a point of order is raised.

Left in this status was an amendment permitting ECA to borrow 150 million dollars for use on credit terms. If it isn't approved, it means another cut for ECA. Without it, ECA would receive only $3,628,380,000 for the 1950 fiscal year. If the amendment is adopted, ECA will get $3,778,380,000, still 10 per cent less than its request.

One of the amendments Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) has termed "crippling" was also left to take its chances on the floor, clearly subject to a point of order. This directs ECA Administrator Paul Hoffman to "review" dismantling orders on some 20 German chemical plants.

Earlier, in an informal opinion from the Senate rostrum, Vice President Barkley invited the committee to bring back the bill to the Senate without any of the disputed amendments.

Barkley suggested that in this way all of the amendments could be offered from the floor on their own merits, but each would be subject to points of order. He said his ruling three days ago, which over-ruled a point of order against the McClellan amendment after the Senate voted it "germane," was based on a precedent Henry Wallace made when Vice President.

He added he personally thought the ruling "illogical." The Senate overrode the ruling and that started the strange parliamentary wrangle.

Barkley spoke up yesterday after Senators Kenneth S. Wherry (R., Nebr.) and Carl Hayden (D., Ariz.) tried and failed to get the Senate's unanimous consent to dispose of the disputed amendments by a simple majority vote.

Byrd blocked the Wherry-Hayden move with an objection. The Virginian said he did not want to hold up the foreign aid bill but said the Senate would be "abdicating" its legislative and policymaking functions if it allowed the Appropriations Committee to put legislation in money bills. Senator Taft told the Senate he agreed with Byrd.

Arrests Increase 31% For Counterfeiting

Arrests for counterfeiting in fiscal 1949 increased 31 per cent over the previous year, Secret Service Chief U. E. Baughman reported yesterday.

Most offenders were newcomers, leading agents to believe only a few old-timers are still active.

Baughman said the neophytes have yet to learn there is "little or no profit in home-made money." By the time they pay commissions to distributors, their only reward is a 15-year prison term, he said in his annual report to Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder.

Bradley Announces U. S. Plans to Defend Atlantic Treaty Area and Luxembourg—signers of the 1948 Brussels Treaty) naval powers, will conduct essential naval operations, including keeping the sea lanes clear. Western Union and other nations will maintain their own harbor and coastal defense.

Other Duties Assigned

"Third, we recognize that the hard core of the ground power in being will come from Europe, aided by other nations as they can mobilize.

"Fourth, England, France, and the closer countries will have the bulk of the short-range attack bombardment and air defense. We, of course, will maintain the tactical air force for our own ground and naval forces, and United States defense.

"Fifth, other nations, depending upon their proximity or remoteness from the possible scene of conflict, will emphasize appropriate specific missions.

In approaching the arms aid problem, Bradley said, the Joint Chiefs of Staff "have followed the principle that the man in the best position, and with capability, should do the job for which he is best suited."

'Sense of Urgency'

Essence of the strategy proposed, he said, is that:

"There is a formidable strength, and an obvious economy of effort, resources and manpower in this collective strategy, when each nation is capable of its own defense, as part of a collective strategic plan."

General Bradley did not mention Russia by name in his statement, but said "the spectre of another would-be master attempting to enslave our presently allied peoples has given a sense of urgency to our plans.

He said, "We face a long period of tension" without attempting to estimate how long aid would be required beyond the proposed program.

Johnson Testifies

Secretary of Defense Johnson, who testified earlier, said he could not state what further arms aid would be required, but declared, "personally, I think you're in for a program that will run four or five years."

Half the equipment that would be supplied under the immediate legislation would come from this Nation's reserve stocks, European members of the treaty would receive nearly $1,100,000,000 in aid, with Greece, Turkey, Korea, Iran and the Philippines receiving a total of $300,580,000.

The "temporary withdrawal of additional equipment from our reserve stocks," said Johnson, "will not appreciably weaken our own armed forces" because "we plan to replace the equipment which is drawn from our war reserves.'

Throughout subsequent questioning of Johnson, House committee members made it clear, as they had the day before when hearings opened, that they were agreed on the principle of military aid—but expected to see some effective unified command plan for carrying it out.

Meeting Is Closed

At the end of the day, those who would comment to reporters said they still had not been satisfied on this score, despite their discussions with Johnson and the Chiefs of Staff.

After General's Bradley's public statement, Committee Chairman Kee (D., W. Va.) suggested the group go into executive session.

The oJint Chiefs then met with the committee in closed session for nearly three hours.

Representative Kee later announced they gave "detailed answers to some of the highly important questions which had been deferred from earlier open meetings because of security reasons."

Several members told reporters, however, they expected far more information than they received.

Representative Vorys (R., Ohio), who said before hearings began he favored some form of aid but felt the program involved "too much too soon," was asked if he now has the same view.

"They Don't Have a Plan"

"Yes," he said, "I still feel that way. There is yet no plan or promise other than that contained in the treaty itself."

"They don't have a plan at all," said Representative Judd (R., Minn.).

"If they can't convince those of us who favor some form of aid," said Judd, "how will they convince those who are opposed to aid?"

As for General Bradley's defense proposals, he said, "Those are assumptions; they haven't cleared them with the other people. I had hoped that plans were further along."

Judd, who in the open hearing called for assurances of joint defense planning before funds are allocated, said:

"I agree with the dentist who said he always tried to get the fee while the patient's tooth was aching."

While Secretary Johnson said the defense staff already established by the Western Union constitutes a basis for planning, Representative Fulton (R., Pa.) challenged the ability of one member of the Western Union's planning staff—France's General De Lattre de Tessigny.

Some of the things he has heard about General de Tessigny, who heads the joint ground command, have "shocked me," said Fulton. He has "about four cars he runs around in," said Fulton, and is "the type who has not accepted orders in the last two wars."

Secretary Johnson said he would not discuss personalities, while Representative Lodge (R., Conn.) said his brother worked with the general in a liaison spot in the last war and thought highly of him.

Representative Fulton told Secretary Johnson that describing the arms plan as "a $1,450,000,000 program" was misleading, inasmuch as it includes "excess" weapons costing 450 million dollars and charged to the program for "rehabilitation" cost of 75 million dollars.

"The total figure then is $1,825,000,000," Fulton said. Johnson replied that the 450 million dollars worth of goods was bought at wartime prices, is "surplus" already paid for, and has been "charged off on our books."

Johnson declined to discuss, in open hearing, whether defense of Korea, for example, is of greater importance to the United States than China. Several committee members have called for inclusion of China in the aid plan.

On the Senate side of the Capitol, meanwhile, Secretary Acheson met with Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Connally (D., Tex.) and Senate Armed Services Committee Chairman Tydings (D., Md.).

Their committees will hold joint hearings on the bill, which is faced by opposition from Senators Vandenberg (R., Mich.) and Dulles (R., N. Y.) who have said that unless it is redrafted for a far less costly outlay on a shorter-term basis it will not pass the Senate.

Acheson was said to have discussed with the two Democratic Senators plans to be discussed abroad by the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The first stop on their defense tour will be Frankfurt, Germany, where they will consult with John J. McCloy, United States High Commissioner for Germany, and others. Later they will visit London, Paris and Vienna. Accompanying them is Maj. Gen. A. M. Gruenther, director of the Joint Staff.

General Bradley, in his prepared statement, said yesterday:

"In two years, a foreign policy for this Nation has evolved which normally would take a quarter of a century."

The European Recovery Plan and our ratification of the Atlantic Pact, he said, have strengthened the bill of the free people of Europe to resist Communist aggression.

"Military aid will rebuild the morale of their armed forces, which will be inevitably reflected in their over-all national morale."

"Opportunity to Gain"

The Joint Chiefs of Staff, he said, "looked searchingly at this program" to determine, "what does it do to improve the security of the United States?"

They visualized it, he said, "as an opportunity to gain, at a minimum expense, additional measures for our own security."

Representative Kee said that Gen. George C. Marshall has been invited as next witness before the House committee when hearings resume Monday.

Pepco, Transit Net Increase In Six Months

By S. Oliver Goodman

Potomac Electric Power Co. and Capital Transit Co. yesterday reported substantial increases in net income for the first six months this year.

Net earnings of Pepco totaled $2,339,969 for the first half this year, an increase of $476,834 or 25.6 per cent over the same period last year. The 1949 figure includes a $88,200 income tax refund applicable to other years.

The transit company showed net of $517,356 for the first half, a gain of $140,743 or 37 per cent over the corresponding 1948 period.

June net of Pepco rose to $310,884, against $204,090 last year. Operating revenues of $2,829,099 were 17 per cent higher, while operating expenses of $1,731,634 were 3.5 per cent heavier. The June increase in income was the sixth consecutive month of rising net, reflecting the higher electric rates authorized in July, 1948.

June net of Capital Transit totaled $76,829, a gain of $32,850 over the same month last year. Operating revenues of $2,368,603 were up $104,457, while operating expenses of $1,893,795 were up $93,184. The lower trend in revenue passengers continued, with number of riders showing a decrease of 11.8 per cent for the month.

VETERAN RETIRES: Resignation of James M. Green as a director of the American Security & Trust Co. was announced yesterday by President Daniel W. Bell. Green served on the board for 42 consecutive years. At the time of his retirement, he was chairman of the trust investment committee and also had served as a member and chairman of the executive committee. During his long career, Green was active in local real estate business as well as in the banking field.

ODD LOTS: Peoples Drug Stores, Inc., declared regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents a common share, payable August 1 to stock of record September 8 . . . Card playing apparently shows no slump—U. S. Playing Card Co. voted an extra dividend of 50 cents a share in addition to quarterly disbursement of same amount . . . Simplification plan of West Penn Electric Co. has been approved by the SEC . . . The New York Trust Co. announced plan to absorb the Fulton Trust Co. of N. Y. in a cash transaction . . . Railway employment dropped steadily from 1,361,000 in July, 1948, to 1,198,000 in March, 1949, and began to pick up a little bit in April and May.

NEW PEAK: Washington bank clearings in July set another all-time high of $313,135,645 for that month, a gain of $6,139,000 over the same 1948 month. In the first seven months, local check transactions aggregated $2,191,411,000, against $2,097,001,866 in the corresponding period last year. Yep, it was also an all-time high for the seven-month period, according to George H. Bright, manager of the Washington Clearing House Association.

EARNINGS: Radio Corp. of America reported net income of $10,122,049 or 61.6 cents a common share for the first six months this year, compared with $10,850,288 or 66.8 cents a share in the same 1948 period. Other earnings reported:

Youngstown Area Steel Production to Pick Up

Youngstown, Ohio, July 29 (AP). Sharon Steel Corp. starts up its Farrell Works steel plants next Monday as Youngstown district steel plants begin snapping out of their July slump.

Operations here are rising four or five points next week to about 77 per cent as steel plants generally report a little better volume of steel buying now that many of the fabricator's "mass vacations" are over. Other steel districts also are reporting operating rises this week.

New York Cotton

New York, July 29 (AP).—Cotton futures turned easy today in slow trading. Scattered liquidation met only scale-down mill buying and short covering. New crop months eased on a statement by Senator Anderson of New Mexico that the new farm bill will probably contain a modernized parity formula which would slightly reduce the support price of cotton. This would apply to 1950 cotton crop.

After the close of trading the Department of Agriculture announced the mid-July cotton parity was 30.26 cents a pound, or 12 points under the June figure. The 1949 crop loan will be based on the mid-July parity, and the parity indicated that the loan will be 29.43 cents a pound for middling ⅞-inch, basis Memphis. The 1948 crop loan was 30.74 cents. Final prices were unchanged to 65 cents a bale lower.

Miller Denies He Attended CIO Meeting

Richmond, Va., July 29 (AP).—Francis Pickens Miller tonight challenged Attorney-General J. Lindsay Almond, jr., to produce the proof Almond says is available to show Miller took part in a "secret" meeting with CIO leaders at Roanoke in August, 1946, prior to Miller's becoming a candidate for Governor.

Miller's statement, issued from Newport News, where he was campaigning, reiterated his denial that he attended such a meeting—a denial rejected by Almond Thursday with the comment Miller could find proof in Roanoke newspaper files.

Almond "will find nothing" in those files to support his charges, Miller said today, and should therefore "withdraw the statement he has made."

Miller Is CIO Choice, Battle Says

Roanoke, Va., July 29 (AP).—The labor issue popped up again here tonight in the race for nomination for Governor in the Virginia Democratic primary Tuesday.

In a speech prepared for delivery over a radio station here, State Senator John S. Battle charged that Francis Pickens Miller has "talked out of both sides of his mouth" on labor support and Virginia's labor laws.

Battle added to his previous charges against Miller by quoting "an affidavit" he said bore the signature of "Frank Nesbitt, president of the local Front Royal, Va., Textile Workers Union of America," which stated Miller attended a meeting on February 19, 1949, of the Political Activities Committee of the CIO in Richmond.

Battle gave his own stand as favoring maintenance and enforcement of the State's present labor laws—the so-called right to work law; utilities labor relations act and the law forbidding violence on picket lines. He charged Miller and candidate Horace H. Edwards had evaded the issue.

Tonight Battle devoted his time to Miller. He said he would deal with Edwards in a radio address tomorrow night from Petersburg.

D. C. Changes Target Block For Cleanup

The Commissioners yesterday discarded the city block selected two weeks ago as target for the Baltimore plan of slum cleanup and chose another area for an immediate start.

The original site—the blocked bounded by 8th, 9th and V sts. and Barry pl. nw.—was dropped when officials learned that it was zoned predominantly commercial.

The new site on which District officials will focus cleanup attention will be two adjoining blocks bounded by U, V and 17th sts. and Florida ave. nw.

William H. Carey, director of the Bureau of Health Engineering, described the new experimental block as one "in a state of progressive blight and not yet a real slum area."

He said 60 per cent of the 120 dwellings in the two blocks are rented, the rest owner-occupied.

In another development, the Washington Housing Authority announced formation of a joint committee to promote more effective enforcement of minimum housing standards. Represented on the committee are the Board of Trade, Home Builders Association, Washington Real Estate Board, Washington Building Congress and the Federation of Citizen Associations.

Potter's Field Reopening Is Approved

The Board of Public Welfare yesterday approved temporary reopening of the District Potter's Field, but said it wa snot in favor of "expanding" it.

The Health Department had requested reopening of Potter's Field for approximately 18 months because the crematorium on the Gallinger Hospital grounds is to be torn down to make way for a new pediatrics and crippled children's building.

A new crematorium is to be built to replace the present one. The second deficiency bill contains a $57,500 allocation for this purpose.

Potter's Field, between the Home for the Aged and Infirm and the industrial home for Negro boys in Blue Plains, has been used only once since the secret burial of a group of executed German saboteurs in 1942.

The welfare board said that if the field were continued in use indefinitely it would eventually take up space which it felt was needed for other purposes.

In other action the board declined an offer from Providence Hospital to rent property at 408 Third st. se. at $1.00 a year for use as a nursery because of the cost of fitting the property up and because the board is planning to ask the District Commissioners to permit deficiency spending of approximately $59,000 to open the Lincoln building, 5200 Loughborough rd. nw., to house 150 children.

Rita Reported Expecting

London (Saturday) July 30 (UP). A Daily Mail Paris dispatch early today quoted a member of the family of Indian Prince Aly Khan's family as sayin gthat his bride, the movie star Rita Hayworth, was expecting a baby.

Previous Vote To Fix Party Label Tuesday

Richmond, Va., July 29 (AP).—Attorney General J. Lindsay Almond, jr., today delivered a formal opinion in which he held in effect that party loyalty will determine who may vote in the Virginia Democratic and Republican primaries next Tuesday.

Such an opinion was asked by Bentley Hite, a member of the House of Delegates and chairman of the Sixth District Republican Committee. In his formal reply, the attorney general called attention to opinions given in 1948 to Hugh B. Marsh, Fairfax County Commonwealth's attorney, and to Edward T. Haynes, member of the House from Richmond.

These, Almond said, "are still the official opinions of this office . . . and there have been no rulings or opinions rendered by me which have in any way changed these official rulings . . ."

"It follows, therefore," he added, "that a person who in the last preceding general election in which he participated voted for the nominees of one political party for State offices or for United States Senators or Congressmen is not entitled to participate in the primary of another political party.

"However, the vote of a person for presidential electors does not affect his party status or his right to participate in a party primary."

The Sixth District Republican Committee voted at a special meeting to request the attorney general for a formal opinion.

Shed Damaged In Hall, Md. By $12,000 Fire

Fire of undetermined origin early yesterday causend an estimated $12,000 damage at the S.&F. Lumber Co., Inc., plant at Hall, Md.

Firemen from 10 Maryland towns fought the blaze 45 minutes, bringing water from a stream 2 miles away, to bring it under control.

The damage was limited to a saw mill shed, lumber and machinery. There were no injuries.

The blaze was discovered about 5:45 a. m. in the shed. The estimate of the damage was made by George E. Frisco, secretary of the lumber firm.

Fire companies responding to the blaze were: Hillside, Capitol Heights, Boulevard Heights, Bowie, Clinton, Upper Marlboro, Riverdale Heights, Glenn Dale, West Lanham Hills, and Landover Hills.

Edwards to Speak In Arlington

Horace H. Edwards, one of four candidates in Virginia's Democratic gubernatorial primary next Tuesday, will speak at 8 p. m. today in the Washington-Lee High School, 4035 N. 13th st., Arlington.

One on the Aisle—

'Summertime' A Gentle Yarn

By Richard L. Coe

"IN THE GOOD OLD SUMMERTIME," at the Capitol, is light, gentle and easy to take. Judy Garland and Van Johnson are the stars.

As its title proclaims, this is an escape-the-heat picture, and it certainly afforded one viewer his pleasantest two hours out of the last 48. It's got songs of the past, gentle humor, Chicago of 1905 and a winning little story that taxes neither you nor anyone in the cast.

Van works in a music shop and gets his romance from a pen pal who wants to be admired, like "The Girl From Jones' Beach," for the intellect. This suits Van. Into the music shop one day comes Judy Garland, into whom he'd barged a few hours before on the steps of the postoffice (clew!). Van doesn't want her to work there, but S. Z. Sakall, the boss, gives her a job when she sells a harp.

Naturally Van doesn't associate Judy with the object of his treasured letters nor does Judy think Van's the least bit desirable. There's no need to tell you how this works out, but to the credit of all, it's pleasant, non-energy consuming.

This gentle yarn pauses every so often for Judy or Van to give out with such old-time hits as "Meet Me Tonight in Dreamland," "Put Your Arms about Me, Honey," "Last Night When We Were Young," "Wait Till the Sun Shines, Nellie" and "I Don't Care."

Judy does most of the singing, a lass whose style needs no introduction. She pouts prettily and seems to be having a good time. Johnson accents the comedy in outlining his portrait of a music clerk whose daydreams are amusing. He's his usual charming self and has a neat, light touch.

Spring Byington, Clinton Sundberg, Buster Keaton and Marcia Van Dyke, an exceptionally lovely looking violinist, have the supporting roles.

Had my typewriting hideaway been as comfortable as I was at the Capitol, this review might have made easier reading. As it is I can only say that "In the Good Old Summertime" is in tune with its happy, lazy-day title. It's a nice little picture.

THE CAPITOL'S stage emphasizes the vocal style of Yvette, whose tones are lower than you'd expect from a blonde who looks more like a soprano . . . Yvette toys with a well-received group, best of which are two numbers from "South Pacific," "Enchanted Evening" and "Wonderful Guy" . . . The slap-happy Nonchalants, with their comical Marvin, are amusing in their spoofing antics . . . Roy Douglas, the ventriloquist, swaps gags with his dummy—and the Dancing Duanos glide gracefully . . . Bob Knight, the local guitar man, completes the bill.

THE LITTLE'S W. C. Fields bill is clicking . . . Enough to add an early Saturday morning performance, at 9:05, for "My Little Chickadee," and a late one at 12:15 a. m. Sunday for "The Bank Dick."

VACATIONING Orval Hopkins, whose breezy cracks from across the desk are especially missed during this wonderful warm spell (whee!) rushes into the mails with a request to see Eddie Dowling in "The Time of Your Life" Sunday night . . . For which he's willing to leave Rehoboth three hours early . . . Okay, Hop; living to see all five of you, if only to share D. C. Dis Comforts.

JAMES W. BUTCHER of Howard University's drama staff last night directed the final offering in Hampton Institute's summer session, a performance of another Saroyan play, "The Beautiful People."

"IN THE GOOD OLD SUMMERTIME," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, produced by Joe Pasternak, directed by Robert Z. Leonard, screenplay by Samson Raphaelson, Albert Hackett, Frances Goodrich and Ivan Tors from the play by Miklo Laszlo. At the Capitol.

WEEKEND VISITORS: Betty Fields, who'll be along at the Palace next week in "The Great Gatsby," will be visiting Washington tomorrow with her husband, Playwright Elmer Rice. The Rices will come down from New York with a covey of theatrical celebrities for a gala Sunday night at the Meridian Hill Theater, where Eddie Dowling is appearing in "The Time of Your Life."

Meridian Hill Host to Broadway

A CARAVAN of Broadway stars, playwrights and theatrical personalities will come down from New York Sunday to salute the new theater in Meridian Hill Park.

They will be entertained at an afternoon reception at Hotel 2400 across 16th st. from the theater. Afterward they will attend the evening performance, closing night of Eddie Dowling in "The Time of Your Life."

Included in the groups will be: Clarence Derwent, president of Actors' Equity; Actress Tallulah Bankhead; Playwright Elmer Rice and his actress wife, Betty Field; Henry Fonda, star of "Mister Roberts"; Alfred Drake and Patricia Morison, stars of "Kiss Me, Kate," Actor Raymond Massey; Moss Hart, director of "Miss Liberty,' 'and Oscar Hammerstein, coauthor of such hits as "South Pacific" and "Oklahoma!"

Hosts for the afternoon will be Productions, Inc., which is presenting the plays at Meridian Hill Park in association with David Polland, and the newly formed Civic-Labor Committee in support of the living theater in Washington.

The theater is located at the Florida ave. end of the mid-city park on space made available by the National Capital Parks and Planning Commission. A canvas-covered stage has been erected facing some 950 seats on a graduated incline.

Congressional leaders who have been associated with efforts to return the living theater to the National Capital and who have accepted invitations for the reception include Senator and Mrs. Paul Douglas, Senator and Mrs. Wayne Morse, Senator and Mrs. Hubert Humphrey, Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas, Representative Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr.; Representative and Mrs. Jacob K. Javits, Representative and Mrs. John A. Blotnik and Representative and Mrs. Emanuel Celler.

Alexandria Church Of 1774 Is Revived

By Martha J. Hall
Post Reporter

Alexandria's 175-year-old Presbyterian Meeting House, closed for 63 years, has again become a living church.

Erected in 1774 by dissenters from the Established Church, the Meeting House on 321 South Fairfax st. served as a gathering place for patriotic and religious services in the early days of Alexandria.

George Washington's funeral sermon was preached there and the bell in the church tower tolled for four days after the first President's death.

Gutted by fire in 1835, the building was restored and later used as a hospital for wounded Civil War soldiers.

One aftermath of the Civil War was a split within the Presbyterian Church into Northern and Southern branches. Denominational dissension was reflected in the Alexandria church, and as a result, it closed its doors in 1886.

New Congregation Organized

In May of this year the Potomac Presbytery granted permission to a group from Second Presbyterian Church in Alexandria to organize a new congregation at the old Meeting House.

Regular services began again in June and for the past two weeks the building has been open to the public on weekdays. The building, which was owned by Second Presbyterian, has been deeded to the new congregation.

Work of physical restoration has been done by members of the new congregation in their spare time. Before services could be held, members went in with scrub brushes and buckets to clean up the building.

The old church has no running water, and buckets had to be carried from nearby houses. Neighbors became interested in the project, and one woman brought coffee and cookies to the workers.

18th Century Notables

Buried in the church yard behind the building are James Craik, chief surgeon of the Continental Army, John Carlyle, one of the founders of Alexandria and the unknown soldier of the Revolutionary War.

But the church yard had become choked with weeds, and names on many of the historic tombstones were almost illegible. Members went in with rakes and lawn mowers to clear out the undergrowth.

The church has no janitor, so members of the women's organizations alternate in cleaning the building each week. The congregation is scrubbing the old pews until it can afford to have them painted.

In their free time the men work on the lawn, planting new grass seed and fighting the constant growth of weeds.

Women Act as Guides

Since the building has been opened to the public, women members act as volunteer guides on weekdays and men take over the job on Sundays.

Last week W. B. McGroarty, 90-year-old Alexandria historian turned 500 copies of his book, "The Old Presbyterian Meeting House," over to the church. Money earned through sales of the books will be used for a fund to restore the church yard and tombstones.

Later the congregation plans to restore an old building next to the church for use as a Sunday school building and office. In addition, a furnace must be installed in the church building, since it has always been heated by stoves.

A committee has been appointed to seek a minister for the congregation. Until one is chosen, guest ministers will conduct the weekly services at 11 a. m. on Sunday mornings.

The Rev. W. J. B. Livingston, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Logan, W. Va., will preach at the Meeting House at 11 a. m. Sunday.

Congregation Pitches In

CLEAN UP TIME—Members of the old Presbyterian Meeting House in Alexandria pitch in and clean up the grounds of the 175-year-old building. The congregation has done much of the work of restoring the interior of the historic building, which was unused from 1886 until June, when it was reorganized as a living church

Mass Sunday For Departing Missionaries

Departure ceremonies for eight Jesuit missionaries who will soon go to India and Alaska will take place at 10 a. m. Sunday at St. Aloysius' Church, North Capitol and Eye sts. nw.

Before the presentation of the Mission Mandate, a solemn mass will be celebrated, with the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, presiding. The Rev. Russell A. Phelan, archdiocesan director of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith, will preach at the mass.

Seven of the missionaries will sail in two weeks for the Jamshedpur Mission, the mission field of the Maryland Province of the Society of Jesus. It is 150 miles from the city of Calcutta, and the state is slightly larger than Massachusetts.

About four million persons, 9000 of them Roman Catholics, live in the area, which formerly was in charge of Belgian Jesuits.

The eighth missionary will go to Alaska, to the Holy Cross Mission Orphange, on the Yukon River.

The missionaries, three of whom are native Washingtonians, are: Mr. Walter A. Cook, S. J., St. Gabriel's parish; Mr. Joseph C. Hammett, S. J., Blessed Sacrament parish; the Rev. Patrick F. Murray, S. J.; Mr. Francis J. McGualey, S. J., and Mr. Edward H. McGrath, S. J., all going to India, and Mr. Robert J. Kirsch, S. J., going to Alaska.

Receiving Deed

DEED TO NEW CHURCH—The Rev. F. L. Squires, pastor of Covenant Baptist Church, receives the deed to the church site from Dr. Clarence W. Cranford, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church and president of the D. C. Baptist Convention. George B. Fraser, president of the Executive Committee of the Southeran Baptist Convention, looks on. Construction of the new $75,000 church began last week at Nichols ave., South Capitol and Xenia sts.

Covenant's First Unit Is Started

Construction of the first of three units of Covenant Baptist Church began last week at Nichols ave., South Capitol and Xenia sts.

The Rev. F. L. Squires, pastor, said the congregation hopes the $75,000 first unit will be ready for occupancy by the end of the year.

On the first floor of the brick and cinder block colonial building will be an assembly room seating 300, a nursery, kitchen, church office and pastor's study. Sunday school classrooms and a lounge will be on the second floor.

The present plan calls for eventual erection of two more buildings on the $25,000 site. One building will be used for additional Sunday school space and for social and recreational activities. The other building will be the main sanctuary.

Covenant church will continue to hold its Sunday services in the Atlantic Theater, 21 Atlantic st. sw., while the first unit is being completed.

The church was organized in 1945. The Rev. Henry How was pastor from the time of its organization until Mr. Squires succeeded him in 1947.

Many Guest Preachers Again To Occupy Pulpits on Sunday

Included on the list of guest preachers in Washington churches Sunday are a missionary from Africa, an Army chaplain, and an official of the Washington Federation of Churches.

Dr. Walter Schutz, superintendent of the West Africa Mission in Sierra Leone, will preach at 11 a. m. at Memorial Evangelical United Brethren Church, 1700 N. Capitol st.

At 8 p. m. the congregation of Albright Memorial Church, 4th and Rittenhouse, will join the congregation of Memorial E.U.B. Church when Dr. Schutz shows motion pictures of the life of the African people.

Chaplain to Speak

At First Congregational Church, 10th and G sts. nw., Chaplain Rowland C. Adams of the Army Chaplains Corps will be the speaker at 11 a. m. Chaplain Adams, who served for 37 months in the European theater of operations during World War II, will speak on "Spiritual Astigmatism."

The Rev. Leonard S. Edmunds, director of the department of social welfare of the Washington Federation of Churches will preach at 10:30 a. m. at Universalist National Memorial Church, 1810 16th st. nw.

At Foundry Methodist Church, 16th and P sts. nw., the guest preacher will be the Rev. John Willard Flynn, district superintendent of the Cleveland District of the Methodist Church. Dr. Flynn was a classmate of Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, pastor of the Foundry church, at Dickenson College and Drew Seminary.

Dr. McCartney to Preach

Dr. Albert Joseph McCartney, pastor emeritus of National Presbyterian Church, Connecticut ave. and N st. nw., will preach at 11 a.m. at St. John's Episcopal Church, Lafayette sq. Dr. McCartney is now director of the Chicago Sunday Evening Club, which sponsors weekly religious services in the loop district of Chicago.

At National Presbyterian Church, the preacher at 11 a.m. will be Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, pastor of Pasadena Presbyterian Church, Paeadena, Calif. Dr. Blake, who will speak on "Fish, Sheep, and People," was appointed by the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A. to serve on the advisory council of the National Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Platt to Preach At Sixth Presbyterian

Dr. Charles A. Platt, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, Ridgewood, N. J., will preach at 11 a. m. Sunday at Sixth Presbyterian Church, 16th and Kennedy sts. nw.

Dr. Platt, who will speak on "How to Meet the Two Greatest Needs in Your Life," is a graduate of Missouri, Princeton and Temple Universities.

Lutheran to Hear Visiting Minister

The Rev. Roy L. Sloop, pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church, Newport News, Va., will preach at 8:30 and 11 a. m. Sunday at Reformation Lutheran Church, 212 East Capitol st.

At 8 p. m. the preacher will be the Rev. Arnold F. Keller, jr., assistant pastor, who will speak on "Where Love Is, God Is."

Speaker at Luray

Guest speaker at the sunset vesper services at 6:40 p. m. (EST) at the Luray Singing Tower, Luray, Va., will be the Rev. Lynn C. Dickerson, pastor of Harrisonburg (Va.) Baptist Church. A carillon recital by Charles T. Chapman will follow the service.

Catholic Paper Adds Blast at Mrs. Roosevelt

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt "has repeatedly shown in word and act an unfriendly attitude towards the Catholic Church," The Catholic Review said yesterday.

The weekly official publication of the Archdiocese of Baltimore and Washington supported Cardinal Spellman's criticism of Mrs. Roosevelt's stand on the Barden bill for Federal aid to public education in a front-page editorial.

The editorial said the Cardinal "is too diplomatic, too democratic, too American, too friendly to take fire easily," and "it was not the cardinal but Mrs. Roosevelt who injected the religious angle into her discussion."

One of the editorial's eight points said, "Qutte possibly Mrs. R. does not consider the Barden Bill discriminatory. But she would, unless the last few years have changed her, were the bill to exclude Southern Negro schools, or the children of known Communists, or any other class."

"We do not think," the paper said, "that the politically expedient support of Alfred E. Smith in his campaign for the presidency is sufficient answer to the position to which the Cardinal objects."

The editorial said "Mrs. R. is undeniably friendly to Communists," and added that "although her husband President (sic) knew the truth about Spain, Mrs. R. choose to lend comfort to the 'loyalist' agents of the Soviets."

Probably Cardinal Spellman didn't phrase the thing as delicately as she phrases her insinuations," the Catholic Review said, "because he was fed up on tainted tidbits served with lettuce and a dash of mayonnaise."

Education Forum Topic

"Looking Ahead with Education" will be the topic for discussion at 9 a.m. next Sunday at the International Crossroads Forum breakfast at Central YMCA, 1736 G st. n.w. LeRoy J. Maas, president of Southeastern University, will speak.

Reception To Honor Rev. Kozaki

A reception for the Rev. Michio Kozaki, moderator of the United Church of Christ in Japan, will be given at the First Evangelical and Reformed Church, 13th and Monroe sts. nw., at 8:30 p. m. Monday.

Dr. Kozaki

Dr. Kozaki, one of the first Christian leaders permitted to leave Japan after the war, was a delegate to the first assembly of the World Council of Churches in Amsterdam, Holland, last summer.

He was elected to the Central Committee of the World Council, and has just returned from Chichester, England, where he attended a meeting of the committee, governing body of the council between assemblies.

The reception will be sponsored by the Washington Federation of Churches, and refreshments will be served by the women of the host church.

The Rev. George Schnabel, minister of Albright Evangelical United Brethren Church and vice president of the federation, will preside, and the Rev. F. Nelson Schlegel, minister of First Evangelical and Reformed Church, will introduce Dr. Kozaki.

Sligo Church Preacher

Dr. Arthur Bietz, professor of religion at the College of Medical Evangelists, Loma Linda, Calif., will preach at 11 a. m. today at Sligo Seventh Day Adventist Church, Carroll and Flower aves., Takoma Park, Md. He will speak on "The Challenge of Life."

Camp Wabanna Open Aug. 1 to 8

Camp Wabanna at Edgewater, Md., on Chesapeake Bay will be open for boys and girls from Greater Washington August 1-8.

The Rev. W. A. Emmans, pastor of Maryland Avenue Baptist Church, 1350 Maryland Avenue ne., last week announced that the camp program will include recreational activities, Bible study and evangelistic services.

Children who may not otherwise attend camp may make arrangements to go to Wabanna by calling Maryland Avenue church and taking a medical examination. Those who wish to send children to camp, or to sponsor children, may make arrangements through Mr. Emmans at the church.

Mormons Set Up Alexandria Unit

The Alexandria ward, a new unit in the Washington stake of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, has been organized, J. Willard Marriott, stake president, has announced.

The new ward, which has a membership of 285, meets at 6:30 p. m. on Sunday at the Washington School, 400 Washington st., Alexandria. Officers are Horace C. Crowther, bishop; Wendell E. Thorne and J. Harold Monson, counselors; Milton Mangum, clerk, and Daniel H. Gagon and Joseph Johansen, assistant clerks.

Sunday CHURCH EVENTS

Senator Robert S. Kerr (D., Okla.), will speak at services at 11 a. m. marking the ninety-second anniversary of the Fifth Baptist Church, 609 E st. sw.

Kerr

The Senator, an active Southern Baptist layman, was elected a vice president of the Southern Baptist Convention at its annual meeting in May. The Rev. John T. Coburn, pastor of Fifth Church, has announced that a goal of $1200 has been set by the finance committee for the anniversary Sunday.

The Rev. Paul W. Yinger, former pastor of Cleveland Park Congregational Church, will preach at 11 a. m. at the church, 3400 Lowell st. nw. Mr. Yinger, who was pastor here from 1939 until 1943 when he became a chaplain with the airborne engineers, is now pastor of First Congregati onal Church, Riverside, Calif.

At the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, 1301 New York ave. nw., the guest preacher at 11 a. m. will be the Rev. John R. Gray of St. Stephen's Church, Glasgow, Scotland. Dr. Dray, now on a two-month visit in the United States, is a native of Coatbridge, Scotland, the home of the late Dr. Peter Marshall, former pastor of New York Avenue Church.

"God's Glory at Our Feet," the last in a series of sermons on Old Testament texts, will be given at 9 and 11 a. m. at Luther Place Memorial Church, Thomas Circle, by Dr. L. Ralph Tabor, the pastor.

Anthems by composers of the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth centuries will be sung by the Washington Cathedral Choir of men under the direction of Paul Callaway at the monthly all-musical services at 4 p. m.

Dr. A. Powell Davies, minister of All Souls' Church (Unitarian), returns to his pulpit at 11 a. m. and will preach on "The Strange Omission." Dr. Davies has been vacationing at Ocean Point, Me., and will return to Maine after preaching here Sunday.

West Virginia Pastor Accepts Call Here

The Rev. David Rowand of Fairmont, W. Va., has accepted a call to become assistant pastor of National City Christian Church, Thomas circle nw.

Mr. Rowand will succeed the Rev. Myron W. Christman, assistant pastor of the church, who leaves August 1 to become minister of the First Christian Church, Tuscaloosa, Ala. The new assistant is a graduate of the State Teachers College, Fairmont, and the Yale Divinity School.

34 In Wyoming

Chicago Cool As the East Swelters

By The Associated Press

The Eastern Seaboard stewed in record heat and humidity yesterday. Heat-prostration deaths rose to 72. But at Big Piney, Wyo., a chill nighttime 34 had citizens reaching for blankets.

The Philadelphia area had 37 heat-induced deaths.

The Weather Bureau offered hope a cooler air mass from the Midwest would bring relief to New England by today and to the Southern coast area by Sunday.

New York City had a sizzling 97.8, highest of the year.

Artists Can't Even Dream Of a White Christmas

New York, July 29 (U.P.).—Alvin W. Barker, Cincinnati greeting card published, today complained about a critical shortage of wintry designs for Christmas cards.

"Five years ago," he said, "I had all the drawings I needed before the Fourth of July. I haven't bought 50 so far and I need about 1500."

He suggested that artists cure their lack of imagination by renting studios in frozen-food warehouses, cold-storage plants or ice docks.

A water main broke in Boston during the 99-degree scorcher Thursday, leaving 24 communities to face 95 degrees of heat yesterday with restrictions on water supply.

Heat deaths included: Maryland, 4; Iowa, 2; Rhode Island, 1; Maine, 3; Massachusetts, 3; Virginia, 2; Illinois, 3, and New York, 6.

There was a freak hailstorm in Peoria, Ill., which caught hundreds of birds, killing them.

A cold front reduced Chicago's fever from 94 of Thursday to a comfortable 75 at noon yesterday.

The Weather Bureau said today would be a little cooler for New York, New England and New Jersey as well as the upper Ohio Valley region.

posed a settlement acceptable to more than half the claimants, but had been requested by the Communist alien affairs bureau to defer the proposal.

"The consulate general has refused to negotiate in any way while subjected to a duress of what appears to be developing as a pattern in Shanghai," a report said.

The new incident followed the siege of the officials of the American-owned newspapers, Shanghai Evening Post, by former employes demanding back pay and bonuses. The Shanghai consulate is without the protection of Marines, the State Department said.

[The United Press said Communist authorities are holding a party of United States diplomats in China because the Americans balked at demands they sign "shop guarantees" before leaving.

[Shop guarantees are an old Chinese custom whereby people departing from a Chinese city have someone remaining behind to guarantee unpaid bills.

[The Communists at first insisted guarantees must be signed by U. S. Ambassador J. Leighton Stuart and all other embassy personnel in Nanking. After a long argument, they waived the requirement for Stuart.

[But officials here said the Communists still refuse to permit U. S. Consul General Capot, William M. Olive, vice consul in Shanghai, other American officials and the pilot of the embassy plane to leave. Stuart is remaining to thresh out the dispute.]

and Brug took off about 6 p. m. from Hyde Field, Clinton, Md., and that their destination was Schrom Airport, Greenbelt.

The plane crashed about 7 p. m. on the Kerstetta farm, according to Corpl. Lee Pumphrey of the Prince Georges County police at Hyattsville, who investigated the crash. Good Luck rd. is about 1½ miles from Edmonston rd. near Lanham.

William Woodruff, 26, of 712 I st. se., treated at Emergency Hospital and released.

Four employes of the Veterans Administration at Tempo Bldg. J, near the Reflecting Pool, all treated at Providence Hospital and released:

Gloria Lockett, 25, of 2903 10th st. ne.

Dorothy Wilson, 18, of 705 Fairmont st. nw.

Mary Hall, 20, of 18 I st. ne.

Angela Ingles, 1629 10th st. nw.

As in past days, thousands of Federal and District Government workers were dismissed from non-air-conditioned offices. The number was estimated yesterday at about 70,000.

The temperature in Washington has not been below 80 degrees for more than 48 hours. The low yesterday was 80 at 4:32 a. m., with the high of 96.2 at 3:23 p. m. The mercury hung in the 90s through the afternoon.

The official forecast for today is "mostly sunny and hot with a high of 95; some possibility of a shower in the afternoon or evening."

A high pressure area, carrying considerably cooler weather, was moving eastward from Minnesota yesterday. Forecasters said that slight temperature decline here Sunday and Monday will be the result of the fringe of this high pressure area passing here.

Federal Worker Cools Off

HEAT LEADS TO OUTING—Melvin Henderson is shown looking somewhat uncomfortable in his office in the old District Building, then enjoying a picnic with his family after the Government released its workers yesterday. The others in the family are his daughter, Faith, 11; his wife, Lillian, and daughters, Janet, 5, and Dorothy, 14

Washington's Heat, Humidity Are Not as Bad as Many Cities

brought only the information that it is because of the low elevation of the District in respect to sea level. This is obviously not the answer inasmuch as there are many places in the States which are at a low land elevation and yet comfortable.

"When the reason for a distressing situation is understood, the distress can be endured with a great deal less suffering. I am sure that many Washingtonians would be more comfortable, at least mentally, in these summer days if the scientific reason for our humid weather here were known to them.

"P. S. Other than for reasons as above, Washington is a most beautiful place in which to live."

Schmidt answers with his "effective temperature" figure. This is a combination of temperature and humidity in an algebraic formula. He calls it the most accurate scientific index we have to physical weather comfort, or lack of it—84 e. t. is "extreme discomfort." Effective temperature for July over a 20-year period in Fort Smith, Ark., is 82.8; New Orleans, 82.4; Nashville, 80.2; St. Louis, 80.1; Peoria, 79.3; Louisville, 79.2; WONDROUS WASHINGTON, 78.7; Baltimore, 78.6; Pittsburgh, 76.1; New York, 75.5; Boston, 74.6.

But as to the humidity here. The main reason is not, indeed, our elevation but our nearness to "moist sources" — the Atlantic Ocean. Prevailing southerly winds bring the moistness.

Also Washington, like the rest of eastern United States, has a barometric pressure such as to make for a prevailing southerly wind in the summer, bringing the humidity from "moist sources."

Schmidt added:

"The whole East, plus the lower Mississippi Valley, Texas, Eastern Oklahoma, the Ohio Valley are in general as uncomfortable as here. Anything from here south and east of the mountains is worse than here."

We hope this makes you feel better, Mr. Anderson.

What, incidentally, Mr. Schmidt, was Washington's "effective temperature" yesterday?

Call Pearson, Senate Asked

subcommittee and demanded that the columnist be required to furnish specific evidence of his charges against Maragon.

"What did they say, John?" a reporter asked.

"That," said Maragon, "is for them to say."

A girl reporter then asked, "Well, what did the committee want to know?"

Denies Having "Clews"

"Honey," Maragon smiled, "that is something the committee will have to tell you."

Asked if he had given the committee any clews about "five per centers" operating in the Nation's Capital, Maragon replied:

"How could I give them any clews when I am not in a position to ascertain any?"

He radiated good cheer but deftly parried questions about what went on in the close-door session.

"There's nothing, nothing," he said. "We just went over what I said yesterday."

Back for Third Round

He said, however, he doubted the committee would call him back for more secret testimony. However, only a few hours later he was back before the committee for a third round of questioning.

After being quizzed at Thursday night's unheralded session with the lawmakers, Maragon told newsmen he is a good friend of President Truman's much-decorated military aide, Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan.

Vaughan himself has said he knows about 300 persons engaged in contract operations in Washington.

Asked whether the committee questioned him about Vaughan yesterday, Maragon gave his stock reply: The committee would have to answer that.

The next question was whether he knew James V. Hunt, former United States Army colonel and one time War Assets Administration employe.

"I have had no relationship with him, socially, in business or any other way," Maragon said. "Oh, he might have been pointed out to me in a hotel lobby, but I don't know him."

Hunt May Testify Later

Paul Grindle, a Massachusetts manufacturer, has said he paid Hunt $1000 for aid in seeking a Government contract. Grindle said Hunt claimed influence with two major generals—Alden H. Waitt, chief of the Army Chemical Corps, and Quartermaster General Herman Feldman. Both the two-star generals have been suspended pending further investigation.

Grindle said Hunt listed Vaughan as a good friend.

Hunt himself has denied he ever attempted to sell influence. He is reported under a physician's care for heart trouble, but may testify before the Senate committee later.

Catholics Asked To Give Reasons On Red Readings

Catholics who "because of their work or for other legitimate purposes" need to read Communist literature should submit a brief letter stating their reasons, it is explained in this week's issue of The Catholic Review, diocesan publication.

Outlining of the procedure followed the recent pronouncement by the Holy See forbidding Catholics to read Communist literature unless permission is obtained.

The letter submitted by persons seeking such permission is to be forwarded to the diocesan chancery by the pastor or one of his assistants, the Review explains.

"Meanwhile," says the Review, "those who are required by their duties to read Communist literature may continue to do so until they have received a reply from their request."

Disarmament Talk Held Idle

talks that have been under way in the United Nations since its earliest days.

The wording of Johnson's extemporaneous remarks aroused some fears among officials present that they might be misinterpreted, with repercussions in the United Nations.

In a later amplificatory statement, the National Defense Establishment announced that the Secretary's position is:

"That to date it has been impossible to obtain a realistic disarmament program in the United Nations because of Soviet Russia's attitude, together with the attitude of the satellites.

"Thus, at the present time, he does not think it realistic to expect that you can work out a satisfactory disarmament program within the United Nations. He strongly favors the adoption of a satisfactory disarmament program by all members of the United Nations.

"By a satisfactory program, the Secretary means a program which would provide adequate means for a showing that all nations are living up to its terms, such as inspection procedures and obtension of full information on disarmament procedures by neutral observers."

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

A FORWARD STEP toward clarifying the heavyweight championship muddle will be taken on the evening of August 10, when Ezzard Charles squares off with Gus Lesnevich inside the Yankee Stadium ring. The winner won't walk out with the undisputed title, but his stature will be increased.

Charles, conqueror of Jersey Joe Walcott, inherited recognition as champion by the National Boxing Association, but over in England the British Board of Boxing is ready to acclaim the winner of next month's Bruce Woodcock-Lee Savold fight as the titleholder.

POVICH

At this point the New York Athletic Commission is holding itself aloof from labeling either fight as a title affair. Yesterday they told Promoter Joe Louis that they wouldn't give their blessing to the Charles-Lesnevich bout as a title bout, and politely suggested that the winner be matched with the Woodcock-Savold winner.

It isn't all working out as Louis had hoped. When he retired he designated the winner of the Charles-Walcott fight as the champion and a consideration of his retirement was control of the new champion's match-making. That is now no sure thing.

LOUIS AND HIS PARTNERS in the new International Boxing Club must make their peace with Jack Solomons, the British promoter, who is yelling that Woodcock or Savold have better claims to the title. If the winner of his fight meets and beats Louis' champion then the control of the heavyweight scene Louis and his backers visioned will pass from their hands.

The reluctance of the New York Commission to recognize Charles is understandable and in keeping with New York reaction to anything that happens outside of New York. Charles won NBA recognition by beating Walcott in Chicago, licking the man who almost licked Louis twice. But as New York views it, something must be wrong with a fight that isn't staged under the aegis of the New York Commission.

Neither Woodcock nor Savold have title claims that stack up with what Walcott took into his fight with Charles, and the nearest thing to a legitimate champ would be Charles. The NBA was quick to recognize this, and it is a proud record it has when it stacks NBA champs against New York-recognized champions.

NINE TIMES titles have been decided in bouts involving NBA champs and New York champions and seven times the New York champions were licked. Back in 1930 the two groups didn't see eye to eye. New York was recognizing Jim Slattery as the world's light heavyweight champ. The NBA labeled Maxie Rosenbloom as the titleholder. They met, and Rosenbloom won.

New York evened the score temporarily when its feather champion, Henry Armstrong, knocked out Pete Sarron, the NBA title holder. But in 1941, the NBA mopped up in title fights involving its champs versus New York-recognized champs. In that year the NBA's Sammy Angott beat Lew Jenkins for the lightweight title, its Anton Christoforidas beat Melio Bettina for the lightheavy title, and Tony Zale licked New York's pet middleweight, Georgia Abrams. Gus Lesnevich defeated New York's Tami Mauriello for the light-heavy title.

In clashes between champions of the two groups, the NBA also triumphed. In 1942, Manuel Ortiz won the bantam crown from New York's Lou Salica. Willie Pep redeemed the New York label by winning the feather crown from Sal Bartole, the NBA champ, but Bob Montgomery, New York-approved, lost to Ike Williams who had the NBA blessing.

THERE IS NO GREAT suspicion that Lesnevich, in his fifteenth year as a professional fighter, will derail Charles on August 10. The price-makers have labeled Charles a 1-to-3 favorite, and Lesnevich in recent outings was unimpressive as a heavyweight contender. The paradox is that Charles chased Lesnevich in vain for a shot at the light-heavy title Lesnevich held, and now finds himself defending heavyweight honors against the man who side-stepped him.

There are a couple of items in Lesnevich's favor against Charles, though. Done with the light-heavies, he no longer is fohced to make weight and will stack up as big as Charles. And in his favor, too, is the fact that he is a vigorous body puncher.

Against Walcott, who apparently never threw a body punch in his life, Charles had no worries in Chicago last June. But he was worried considerably by Joe Baksi's punching to the midsection and was almost caved in by Baksi. Charles flinched too much when hit in that fight, and it didn't escape the notice of Lesnevich, a ringside observer that night.

Nats Lose 6-2 in 10th To Browns For 3 in Row

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

The Nats were not only out guessed by the Browns last night, they were also out scored, dropping the series opener in 10 innings, 6-2.

After a series of tenth inning strategical moves which were halted only when they had exhausted their supply of players at the moment, managers Zack Taylor and Joe Kuhel permitted the game to proceed.

That was the worst move the Nats could have made because the Browns scored four runs in the overtime frame and handed the Nats their third straight lacing in the latest losing streak the locals are compiling.

Tough One for Weik

The loss was pinned on the strapping shoulders of Rookie Dick Weik and even the most hardened of the 2500 wolves present would admit that it was a tough break for the 22-year-old righthander.

Making his second start of the year, the big Iowan entered the ninth inning with a dazzling two-hit, 1-0 shutout to show for his brilliant performance. The Browns, however, unseated him from his lead by presenting their eventual winning pitcher, Ned Garver, with a 2-1 advantage only to have the Nats bounce back, deadlock matters and force the overtime inning.

Weik was lifted in the 10th inning with Brownies on first and second and only one away. His exit was prompted when the Browns moved in Stan Spence, a left-handed batter, to hit for Johnny Sullivan.

Manager Kuhel countered this by bringing in lefthander Lloyd Hittle. But Manager Taylor, not to be outdone in the guessing department, yanked Spence before Hittle had made one pitch and inserted Whitey Platt, a righthanded swinger.

Hittle Wild Pitches

Hittle uncorked a wild pitch and after getting three balls on Platt he walked him intentionally. The high commands went back into action at this stage with the Browns sending Andy Anderson in to run for Platt and the Nats yanking Hittle to permit Dick Welteroth to pitch to ceanup man Roy Sievers, a righthanded swinger.

Unmoved by this, Sievers spanked Welteroth's first pitch for a two-run single. Dick Kokos followed with another single, which produced only one run, and Catcher Sherm Lollar's fly to Gil Coan in deep left drove across the fourth run of the inning.

Weik in Top Form

The Nats had no answer for this in their hat for the tenth, going down in order to present Garver with his seventh success, achieved on a nine-hit yield, the same number the Browns made.

Until the ninth when doubles by Rookie George Elder, and Gerry Priddy and a single by Paul Lehner gave the Browns a 2-1 lead, Weik was sensational.

He gave up his first hit, a single by Eddie Pellagrini, with two away in the fifth and another, a double by Dillinger in the sixth, and those were all until the ninth.

The big youngster was mowing 'em down with a jumping fast ball, the pitch that earned him his major league status but one which he hadn't been able to control until last Monday's exhibition against Pittsburgh when he won a four-hitter, 3-1.

Robertson Comes Through

Jake Early and Sherry Robertson collaborated to give Weik the 1-0 lead he owned entering the eventful ninth. Early opened the round with a woozy single to right. After Weik had sacrificed, Sherry Robertson lashed a tremendous triple against the fence in right center to score Johnny Simmons, running for Early.

Ed Stewart's double and Buddy Lewis' pinch-single padded across the Nats tying run in the ninth. Sievers gave Stewart's double a good chase and even got his glove on the ball, but dropped it. Lewis, batting for Mele, drilled his single to center after Eddie Robinson had grounded out.

Dobson Hurls Four-Hitter; Tribe Loses Half Game

Boston, July 29 (AP).—In sharply contrasting games, the Cleveland Indians and Boston Red Sox divided a day-night doubleheader, Boston winning the well-pitched afternoon contest 2-1 and the world champions crashing out a 9-3 decision tonight.

The split dropped Cleveland another half game back of the Yankees, conquerors of Chicago, 13-2.

The Indians settled the nightcap when they scored four times at the expense of starting left hander Chuck Stobbs who was unable to retire a batter.

Lou Boudreau hit Stobbs' eighth pitch into the screen in left field for a home run, scoring Dale Mitchell, who had walked on four pitches ahead of him.

Bearden Chased

A single, followed by two passes and another single, accounted for two additional runs and Tex Hughson replaced Stobbs.

The Sox counted three times in their first as they drove out the starting Gene Bearden, but Bob Feller came in and after giving up one single in that inning for Boston's second and third runs, got the side out.

The Indians added two runs in the second inning, their seventh on Bob Kennedy's homer in the third and picked up additional single scores in the fifth and eighth.

Dobson Hurls 4-Hitter

In the afternoon game, which was Boston's fifth cinsecutive victory, Right Hander Joe Dobson pitched the best he has in some time as he limited the Tribesmen to four hits.

He had a shutout until the eighth when he gave up his fourth walk, to Pinch-Hitter Thurman Tucker, who moved all the way round on Mitchell's base hit, Boudreau's sacrifice and Joe Gordon's infield out.

The Sox won the opener when they scored twice in the fourth on three of their seven hits off starter Mike Garcia.

Cards, Dodgers Play 9 Innings End Up 3-3

ST. LOUIS, JULY 30 (AP)—The League Leading St. Louis Cardinals and the Brooklyn Dodgers played to a 3-3 tie game early today in the opener of their important three-game series at Sportsman's Park.

The Dodgers tied the tense struggle in the ninth on a walk, a single by pinch batter Marv Rackley and an outfield fly by Peewee Reese.

A lucky, two-run single by Marty Marion helped the Cardinals to a 3-0 lead in the fifth inning.

The start of the contest between the first-place Cards and the runner-up Dodgers was delayed one hour and 28 minutes by rain. A near capacity crowd of about 30,000 was on hand.

Howie Pollett started for the Cards, seeking his 14th win. He was opposed by Preacher Roe.

In the fifth Marion's grounder took a sudden hop over Shortstop Peewee Reese's head, scoring Nippy Jones and Enos Slaughter after two were out.

The Cards took a 1-0 lead on successive singles in the third inning by Red Schoendienst, Stan Musical and Jones.

The Dodgers broke into the scoring in the 8th inning, getting two runs on three hits. It started with a walk to Billy Cox, who went to third on Carl Furillo's single and scored on a single by Jackie Robinson.

Gil Hodges sent the second run across with another single into left and Robinson was out going to third. At this point Pollett was taken out and Ted Wilks come in and retired the side.

The Dodgers tied the game in the ninth on only one hit. With one out Roy Campanella walked, Eddie Miksis ran for Campanella. Marvin Rackley batted for Barney and lined the ball into right field for a single, Miksis going to third. Peewee Reese lined to Russ Dierking who made a shoestring catch, then threw to the plate trying to get Miksis, but Del Rice dropped the ball and Miksis was safe, tying the score 3-3. Spider Jorgensen batted for Cox and struck out.

Chapman Gains Canadian Finals

Saint John, N. B., July 29 (AP).—Dick Chapman of Osterville, Mass., today defeated 16-year-old Laurie Roland of Vancouver, 1 up, in their semifinal match of the Canadian Amateur Golf championship.

In the other semifinal, Phil Farley of Toronto, six times Ontario amateur champion, defeated Tommy Riddell of Montreal two and one.

Tallahassee's Cellar Team Loses Its Standing in Town Newspapers

Tallahassee, Fla., July 29 (AP).—The eighth-place Tallahassee Pirates have been "dropped" from the Class D Georgia-Florida League by the Tallahassee News-Democrat.

The Baby Bucs, owned by the Pittsburgh Pirates, are mired so deep in the cellar they trail the seventh-place Cordele Indians by five and a half games and the leading Albany Cardinals by 32½.

So instead of carrying the team's name in the league standings, the newspaper now refers to it as "My, It's Dark Down Here," "Pittsburgh's Promises" and "Strike a Match."

Lindell, Johnson Tee Off

Yankees' Two Homers in 8th Beat Chisox, 3-2, Haefner Loser

New York, July 29 (AP).—Successive home runs by Johnny Lindell and Bill Johnson off Mickey Haefner in the eighth inning tonight gave the New York Yankees a 3-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox before 33,508 fans.

Gus Zernial, who broke his collar bone making a diving catch on Thurman Tucker May 28, returned to the White Sox lineup tonight as a pinch hitter.

Batting for Pitcher Haefner in the ninth he singled into centerfield. Fireman Joe Page strode from the bullpen to put down a Chicago uprising after one run had scored in the ninth. With men on first and third, Page retired Cass Michaels on a slow roller to Johnson to end the game.

Tommy Byrne and Haefner were locked in a tight 1-1 duel until Lindell and Johnson hit their homers in the eighth. Then the White Sox started to kick up a fuss.

Zernial lashed his pinch single to center with one out. After Byrne retired Pinch Hitter Joe Tipton on a foul, he walked Dave Philley. Luke Appling's single scored Chic Pieretti, running for Zernial, and Manager Casey Stengel called for Page.

Haefner, making his first start for the White Sox since he was "fired" by Owner Clark Griffith of Washington and sent to Chicago on waivers, allowed only seven hits.

It was Byrne's eighth victory. He gave only six hits, walked six and struck out six. Eleven White Sox were left on base.

Philadelphia, July 29 (AP).—The Philadelphia Athletics extended their winning streak to six straight—their longest of the year—by defeating the Detroit Tigers, 5-3, tonight as Shortstop Eddie Joost came through with a game-saving catch with the bags loaded and two down in the ninth inning.

Joost, after putting relief pitcher Bobby Shantz in a hole by fumbling Neil Berry's grounder, caught up with Pat Mulins' short fly in left and made a vest-pocket catch of the blooper.

Shantz took over for Dick Fowler when the heat got the best of the veteran right-hander at the start of the ninth.

Langston, Bundy, Hayes Reach Johnson Finals

Three more Walter Johnson Memorial Baseball School League teams yesterday made the championship round which will played off August 12 and 13 at Griffith Stadium.

The Langston Juniors, sponsored by Paragon Cleaners, nosed out Police Boys Club, 5-4, at Randall to gain the finals in the Section II 14-and-under class. Their foe will be Bundy, which routed Logan, 18-1, in another semifinal yesterday at Brentwood.

In a Section II 12-and-under semifinal, Hayes whipped Cook, 7-5, yesterday. Hayes' opponent in the ball park series will be decided Wednesday night at Banneker where Kelly Miller and Langston will meet in a semifinal at 8 o'clock.

Two other championship playoffs are slated for Griffith Stadium on the two August dates, in Section I. In 12-and-under, Rosedale plays the Bugs, while in 14-and-under, Rosedale plays the Yankees.

Swanson Scores 225-Yard Ace

For the edification of his wife—and to his own utter amazement—Irving W. Swanson, 2701 16th st., Arlington, made a hole-in-one yesterday at Army-Navy.

Swanson connected on the 225-yard No. 3 hole. His wife was his partner.

D. C. Boys Lose Out in Junior Golf

By West McLean
Post Reporter

Gay Brewer jr., Lexington, Ky., personally ended Washington's hopes in the National Junior golf championship yesterday at Congressional Country Club, when he ousted Dennis Bolster, 3 and 2, in the morning's fourth round and then eliminated Billy Wolfe, 4 and 3, in the quarter-final round.

TODAY'S PAIRINGS

Semifinals, 9:30—Mason Rudolph, Clarksville, Tenn., vs. Tommy Morrow, Shreveport, La. 9:40—James Sykes, Jenkintown, Pa., vs. Gay Brewer, jr., Lexington, Pa.

Finals, 2 p. m.

Brewer meets James Sykes, Jenkintown, Pa., in one semi-final this morning with Mason Rudolph, comedalist with Brewer from the Louisville, Ky., sector, facing Tommy Morrow, Shreveport, La., in the upper bracket match. Rudolph is from Clarkesville, Tenn. The winners meet in the afternoon final.

Brewer was only two strokes over par for the 33 holes he needed to dispose of the two Washington entries. In the morning round against Bolster the 17-year-old Kentuckian won the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh holes for a four-up lead at the point. Over the four holes he had two pars and two birdies to build up a lead that Bolster 15-year-old Gonzaga High student and District medalist never was able to overcome completely.

Bolster won the eighth hole with a birdie but slipped to a bogey on nine. The local lad looked like he might put on a show as he started the back nine by winning the tenth and eleventh holes but Brewer took the twelfth and then they halved the remaining holes as Brewer closed out the match, 3 and 2.

Wolfe, meanwhile, was defeating Randolph Carey, Denver, Colo., southpaw, 5 and 4 to gain the quarter finals. Billy, former District schoolboy champion won the first hole for the first time in four matches and added another hole on the second with a par. Carey was able to take only two holes, the seventh with a par and the twelfth with a birdie. Wolfe, however, took the thirteenth and fourteenth and a 5 and 4 victory.

In the other morning matches, Joe Turnesa, Jr., Ferndale, N. Y., and scion of the famous Turnesa golfing family beat Florian Weinhaus, St. Paul, Minn., 4 and 2 and Rudolph ousted Charles Strack, York, Pa., 5 and 4. Rudolph won the afternoon match, 5 and 4, to end Turnesa's hopes.

Morrow trounced Miles Schlaver (7-10), LOSER—Weik (1-3). UMPIRES—Passarella, Stevens, Rommel and Boyer. TIME—2:32. ATTENDANCE—2500.

'Skins' Advance Squad Leaves For Training Camp on Coast

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

En Route to Los Angeles, July 29.—It wasn't much of an accomplishment, but the Redskins were the hottest professional football team in Washington today.

They cooled off immediately upon boarding the air-conditioned Sunset Limited on the first leg of their training camp journey to Occidental College, near Los Angeles.

How much further they cool down will later depend on themselves—and other teams in the National Football League.

Thirteen players, four coaches and four reporters were in the perspiring group which launched the Redskins' ninth West Coast training tour in the 13 years they've played out of Washington. By the time practice starts Tuesday the number of players will grow to 42, 10 of whom must be released before the league season opens.

Least confident of the whole group was the tight-lipped little ex-naval officer who's head coach of the Redskins for his first season.

John "Billick" Whelchel, as a matter of fact, has yet to learn the pre-season chant of other Redskin officials—"The best material we've had in years."

His nearest thing to a glowing prediction was made several weeks ago in answer to a query about 'Skin morale. "Victories," quoth Mr. Whelchel, "are great promoters of morale."

Perhaps it was the heat, but the whole tone of the Redskins' departure this year seemed a little grim. Whelchel no doubt was wondering how the 20 rookies on his squad will produce, how he himself will produce in his first try at coaching the pros after a five-year layoff from any kind of coaching.

The players' sentiment was best expressed by John "Tree" Adams, veteran tackle, when asked who he expected to heckle now that Bob Nussbaumer has been traded to the Chicago Cardinals.

"Don't expect we'll have much time for heckling each other this year," said Long John, throwing a significant look Whelchel's way.

Harbert, Mangrum Repeat 67s to Stay Tied in Western

St. Paul, Minn., July 29 (AP).—Chick Harbert of Detroit and Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago shot another pair of five-under par 67's o remain knotted for the lead in the Western Open golf tournament oday. They have 134 totals.

Today it was Harbert who provided the rousing finish, duplicating Mangrum's flashy finish with a two-under par 3 on the 18th ole to keep him abreast of the Chicagoan.

That climaxed an amazing comeback on the second nine of the 6,557-yard, par 72 Keller course. Harbert ran into trouble on the first nine, taking a 37, but recovered to finish the second nine with a 30, the second time such a ow score has been made on Keller.

Harbert's chief trouble on the front nine was on the third hole. His tee shot landed in the center of a bush for an unplayable lie, and he took a one-stroke penalty. His second shot was 250 yards down the fairway, but his iron went into a trap. However, he recovered nicely from that and two-putted the green for a 7 on the par 5 hole.

The leaders' nearest competition came from Jimmy Demaret, of Ojai, Calif., and Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., who finished with 136 totals.

Such Crust Wins First Heat for U. S.

By Happy Walker

Detroit, July 29.—Jack Shaffer's Such Crust, driven by the Arena brothers, Danny and Joe, gave the United States a first heat victory in the International Harnsworth Trophy powerboat races here today.

Canada must beat off the United States team in tomorrow's heat or lose its challenge. If the Canadians can even the series tomorrow, a third and final heat will be run off on Monday.

The only two other Yankee boats ran into mechanical difficulty and took a back seat to Such Crust.

In the third 7-mile lap of the 42-mile heat, Horace Dodge's My Sweetie, with Bill Cantrell at the wheel, broke a water line and was towed to the pits.

Stanley Dollar's Skipalong took 12 precious minutes out in the fourth lap to repair a failing motor, but still managed to finish second in the zigzag seven-mile lap.

The Canadian challenger, Miss Canada IV, owned by E. C. Wilson of Ontario, and driven by his son, Harold, was the highly publicized mystery boat, up to the starting gun.

From then on the mystery ended, as the sleek Rolls-Royce Griffin, English powered craft just would not answer to the heady driving of young Wilson. Miss Canada did finish, however, with the explanation by Wilson that motor trouble developed during the first lap.

It remained for Arena in Such Crust to give the estimated 100,000 shoreside spectators the big thrill of the late afternoon as he gunned the Shaffer-owned Such Crust, to a new seven-mile lap record of 94.945 miles per hour.

At that, Arena failed to live up to the race predictions as his heat average time of 87.969 miles per hour failed to lower the record of 89.913 miles per hour set by Miss England II in 1931.

Bassett, Moore Gain Net Finals

U. S. Track Team Wins In Europe

Oslo, Norway, July 29 (AP).—The star-spangled American track and field team climaxed an uphill climb tonight by winning the "Little Olympics" and its accompanying decathlon competition.

The final point score was 238½ points to 224½ points over the combined Scandinavian squad which had led almost all the way through the three-night meet.

Chunky Bob Mathias, the Tulare, Calif., wizard, won the decathlon going away. Irv Mondschein of New York University was third and Bill Albans of North Carolina last in the six-man grind. Mathias had 7,346 points.

Fortune Gordien of Minnesota bettered the listed world record for the discus throw for the second time this month. His throw measured 182 feet 3 53/64 inches. The approved record is 181 feet 6 3/8 inches by Adolfo Consolini at Milan, Italy, last October 10.

8 Young Area Golfers Leave For Houston Play

Eight young area golfers will leave today for Houston, Tex., to participate in the fourth annual Junior Chamber of Commerce championships starting Tuesday.

The eight boys are Stanley Mouser, William Buppert, Billy Wolfe and his cousin Bobby Wolfe from Maryland and Richard Foster, Ray Fletcher, Dennis Bolster and Corky Sutter from the District.

The trip is being financed by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the District Golf Association and S. G. Loeffler.

D. C. Boys Stars Play Baltimore

The Washington Boys Club All-Stars baseball team, led by Coach Ollie Dryzer, journeys to Baltimore to play the Baltimore Boys Club All-Stars today at 2 p. m. at the Glenn L. Martin Stadium.

The game is a return match of the contest played under the lights at Griffith Stadium a month ago in which the Washington Boys Club trimmed the Baltimore nine 2 to 1. Bill Nolan, who pitched the Washington Boys Club to victory then, will be on the mound again today.

Two D. C. Boys Lose In Juniors

pik, Chicago, quarter finalist last year with a 7 over par round for fifteen holes but won, 4 and 3, as the Windy City lad was way off his game. eManwhile, Richard Hessemer, Houston, Texas, was advancing to the quarter finals with a 4 and 2 win over Rebel Tony Baker, Atlanta, Ga. Morrow won the quarter final match, 1-up as he slipped past a partial stymie on the final green for a par to halve the hole.

Sykes won his morning match with Jim Tewart, Hamilton, Ohio, 1-up, on the nineteenth while Ken Edwards, Fort Worth, Tex., was defeating Eugene Spilker, Clayton, Mo., 3 and 2. Sykes won the quarter-final, 1-up.

Wolfe and Brewer, playing the last match of the day and what was figured to be the top quarter-final match, were all even after nine holes as both had won two holes on the front nine and halved the remaining five. Brewer won the first three holes on the back nine, all with birdies. All three were one-putt greens with putts of 10, 4 and 2 feet.

The two halved the thirteenth with even pars and then Brewer won the fourteenth when Wolfe conceded the hole after Brewer had played only one shot. Billy topped his drive 76 yards into the rough and then hooked his second shot out of bounds. When a provisional ball also followed the other one out of bounds, leaving the local lad with a 3 while his opponent lay only one and still had a ball in play, Wolfe conceded the hole and was 4 down with four holes to play. They halved the next hole with fours to close out the match with Brewer winning, 4 and 3.

FOURTH ROUND RESULTS
Mason Rudolph, Clarksville, Tenn., defeated Charles Strack, York, Pa., 5 and 4.
Joe Turnesa, jr., Ferndale, N. Y., defeated Florian Weinhaus, St. Paul, Minn., 4 and 2.

Fight Mob Airs Views on Hill

D. C. Boxing Board's Proposals Encounter Plenty of Opposition

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

The fight mob invaded Capitol Hill yesterday—most of it bent on objecting to proposed changes in the local boxing law before a joint House-Senate District Subcommittee.

Really, though, the whole proceedings were duller than those fights you've been watching lately.

Redeeming feature, aside from the air conditioning in the Old House Office Building, was a brief but slightly hilarious appearance by Promotor Goldie Ahearn.

As ever, Goldie had 'em in the aisle—in this case, the fairly sedate subcommittee, with Sen. Lester C. Hunt (D., Wyo.) acting chairman.

Ahearn prefaced his remarks, "Ask me anything you like, I'll answer it."

Then he launched into a rapid-fire five-minute monologue, "I'm for anything the Boxing Commission wants. Without rules and regulations, boxing wouldn't survive."

The subcommittee smilingly listened to Goldie's lowdown on the boxing situation in Washington.

Hardly sharing Ahearn's apparent blanket acceptance of the proposed changes were Mrs. Florence Turner, rival promoter; Gabe Menendez, her matchmaker, and their attorney, Charles E. Ford.

Goldie Ahearn Turns Full Support to Goldie Ahearn Gives Commission Program

Obviously, they're much more concerned about the commission's suggested 10 per cent television bite than its bark.

District Commissioner Guy Mason, Oliver Gasch, assistant corporation counsel, and Harvey L. (Heinie) Miller, chairman of the Boxing Commission, all advocated the proposed changes.

Principally, they include:

1. Ten per cent of television, radio and movie rights.

2. Sole judgment and discretion to assign dates.

3. Collecting of all forfeit money.

Attorney Ford lashed at the television bite, "Where will it end? Why not take 10 per cent of the hot dog and popcorn concessions, too?"

Ford reiterated that the commission already has power to affixed date. He cited the decision in the suit he won against the commission in 1947. District Court Judge F. Dickinson Letts ruled that commission "had discretionary powers but abused them in denying a date to the defendant."

(Early last night, Gasch said a search of District Court records failed to show Judge Letts signing such findings. Gasch said he informed Senator Hunt of that fact.)

Edward Rosenbloom, president of the District AAU, and E. Joseph Aronoff, past president, protested that the commission was invading its field in seeking sole jurisdiction over amateur as well as professional boxing.

An added starter was Mishael Casey) Jones, president of the Negro Boxing Writers Association of Washington. Jones said, "About 85 per cent of the boxers are colored and the attendance at fights of colored people runs from 65 to 80 per cent, yet only 1 of 50 fight officials is colored."

The subcommittee members asked some interesting and intelligent questions. Senator Hunt wanted to know why the boxing commission didn't submit a budget and turn over all funds to the District Commission.

Representative John J. Allen, jr. (R., Calif.), asked if date fixing wouldn't eliminate all competition. He also said there was a danger that a hostile commission could drive a promoter out of business. Representative Allen also suggested that a 10 per cent tax on television rights might tend to drive shows out of the District in that they could be televised just as well outside it.

Ponder, Capot, Palestinian Race Today

Chicago, July 29 (AP).—The "Big Three" of the Nation's ranking 3-year-olds—Ponder, Capot and Palestinian, today were named to race four mighty respectable challengers in the $88,750 Arlington Classic tomorrow.

The field is one of the finest ever assembled for the famous mile and a quarter event, which, in former years, has resulted in stunning upsets.

Named to race against the trio which finished one-two-three in the Kentucky Derby last May are Mrs. Ada L. Rice's Admiral Lea, Joseph A. Kinard jr., Johns Joy, Brown Hotel Stable's Saint Nicholast, and David Straus and Howard Wells' Mr Smug.

Should all seven start, which seems probable, the Classic will net the winning owner $66,450. The second horse will earn $12,000, with $6000 going to third, and $3000 to fourth.

Calumet Farm's Ponder, which first established his claim to fame this year with his three-length victory over Capot in the Kentucky Derby, later yielded top honors to Capot which won both the Belmont Stakes and the Preakness. Capot defeated Ponder by half a length in the Belmont at a mile and a half and conquered Palestinian by a head in the Preakness at one and three-sixteenths miles. Aside from his Derby victory Ponder has not accomplished too much, although he has been a factor in almost every stake.

Palestinian's record is outstanding, along with Capot's. The colt won the Jersey Stakes and the Empire City Handicap besides his second to Olympia in the Wood Memorial, third to Ponder and Capot in the Derby, second to Capot in the Preakness, third to Capot and Ponder in the Belmont, and second to Conniver in the Butler Handicap.

D. C. Horses Gain Honors

By Harry de Mawby

Berryville, Va., July 29.—Morton W. (Cappy) Smith's Fair in War paced another green hunter division at the end of the first session of the well-filled Clarke County horse and colt show here today. The good looking three-year-old roan mare then held a 5½ point advantage over a top field of green hunters for tomorrow's competition.

The consistent War Fair-Isabelle filly was ridden by her owner to first place over jumps and the green hunters under saddle and took the place awards in the thoroughbred class and light weight green hunters.

Washington-owned horses got off to a good start with Dr. and Mrs. Alvin I. Kay's National Reserve champion, Portmaker, winning the middle and heavy working hunter class. Portmaker shares the lead for championship honors with Mrs. Gregory McIntosh's Miss Fauquier, winner of the lightweight class in that division.

Robert C. Lee's Donna Fille jumped her way to second place in the open jumpers event and Carol Barber's Snapshot earned a third in the small hunter class over the big outside course.

In the hotly contested open jumper division Paul Fout's sensational Leaper Golden Chance returned to form after being shut out at last week's Fairfax show, winning both warm-up and open jumpers and placing in the featured professional horsemen's trophy class to tally 12 points for the first day's lead.

Parkside Roms

Parkside walloped Ivy City, 16—5, yesterday at Langston and pulled into a tie for first place with Langston in the Metropolitan Junior League. Novaro Ballard was the winning pitcher, allowing only two hits. All runs scored against him were unearned.

Locke Beaten By Bradshaw In Irish Open

Belfast, Northern Ireland, July 29 (AP).—Irishman Harry Bradshaw turned the tables today on Bobby Locke, his conqueror in the British Open, beating the South African by one stroke to win the Irish Open Golf championship.

It was a close squeak for the cap-wearing Bradshaw, professional at the Kilcroney Club near Dublin, whose 72-hole score was 286 to Locke's 287.

Locke came up to the final hole needing a birdie three to tie. He made a magnificent effort. His 30-foot putt hit the back of the cup and hung on the lip.

Bradshaw played consistently over the 6375-yard Belvoir Park course. His stores were 70, 71, 72, 73. Locke had 71, 75, 71, 70.

Locke had beaten Bradshaw by 12 strokes in a 36-hole playoff for the British Open earlier this month after they tied over the 72-hole route.

Ax to Fall Here Today For 1600 Employes Of Naval Gun Factory

Discharge notices for 1600 employes of the Naval Gun Factory here will become effective today. More than 2200 jobs have been abolished in the shakedown. The factory now has 8600 employes and it is still this city's No. 1 industrial establishment.

Meantime, the suit filed by 17 veterans who were given layoff notices has been settled out of court. They will all retain their jobs along with 28 others in similar work.

In making the original discharges, the factory decided to abolish all machinist jobs of the floor and vice category. Notices were given 45 floor and vice machinists who had either veteran or permanent status rights. Seventeen veterans in the group filed suit in Federal court here to keep their jobs.

The gun factory then reversed itself and decided to allow floor and vice machinists to compete with general machinists for the available jobs. As a result, layoff notices for 45 floor and vice machinists were canceled and discharge notices were given the same number of general machinists.

GAO: The Senate yesterday voted down a proposed new cut in both dollars and personnel for the General Accounting Office. Senator Williams (R., Del.), while praising the work of the GAO, insisted that its budget be cut another 5 per cent. He was voted down. GAO has had to lay off about 400 employes as a result of budget slashes.

PAY BILL: The Administration's views on pay-reclassification bills will be revealed Monday at a meeting of the House Postoffice and Civil Service Committee. Frank Pace, director of the Budget Bureau, has been summoned to outline the Administration's stand on the 75 bills before the committee. Postmaster General Jesse Donaldson will speak on the many postal bills.

COMPENSATION BILL: The House-approved bill to provide more liberal benefits in cases of Federal workers who are killed or injured on the job has run into trouble in the Senate. A scaled-down bill probably will get approval of the Senate Labor Committee next week. But the Senate bill will provide fewer benefits and its cost would be well under the House bill.

WAR CLAIMS: David N. Lewis, an attorney here in the Office of the Alien Property Custodian, is slated to be named chairman of the new War Claims Commission. He's a New Yorker.

The President also nominated another Federal attorney to the $12,000 commission, Daniel F. Cleary of the Veterans' Administration. Cleary is from Illinois and he accurately predicted the outcome of last year's election. The third commission member will be Georgia L. Lusk, a former member of Congress from New Mexico. The Cleary and Lusk appointments were first tipped off here.

War Claims will have less than 100 employes. There were twice that number of applicants for the three commission jobs.

Silver Spring Installs 'Mayor' and 'Council' in Mock Rites

The Washington Post

MOTORCADE OF GREETING—Automobiles carrying newly elected honorary officials parade from the District line to the Silver Spring Postoffice, where welcoming ceremonies were held yesterday. Shown in back of this car are Einar Christensen, president of the Board of Trade and honorary councilman; Mrs. Betty Ruth McDevitt (mayor) and Kenneth Clark (councilman)

Silver Spring, which aspires to become Maryland's "second city," installed its first "mayor" in a ceremony on the Silver Spring postoffice steps.

The installation, witnessed by some 500 spectators, was a prelude to "Shop Silver Spring Week" which opens officially Sunday.

Mrs. Betty Ruth McDevitt, Silver Spring newswoman, who led the ticket in a popularity contest sponsored by the retail merchants committee of the Silver Spring Board of Trade, was installed as "mayor" to preside during the community's bargain-shopping week.

Six runners-up in the "mayorality" contest were designated as "councilmen." They are Kenneth Clark, Charles Buscher, Mrs. Helen Mason, Charles Diffenbaugh, Einar Christensen and Fred L. Lutes, all Silver Spring business and civic leaders.

Members of the "council" received keys to the city from Ralph Lutz. A separate key was presented to Mrs. McDevitt by Christensen, who is president of the Board of Trade.

In her "inaugural address," Mayor McDevitt said she had started out with a platform but "apparently I have worn it out during the campaign." In a more serious vein, she expressed the belief that the voters' participation in the mock election would be good practice for later elections when and if Silver Spring becomes a city legally. Should it become a city—officially—it would be the Free State's biggest city other than Baltimore.

Prior to the ceremonies, the "mayor" and "council" joined in a motor caravan along Georgia ave. and through the principal business section of Silver Spring. The installation ceremony was broadcast over WGAY.

D. C. Legion Turns Down Health Plan

National Insurance Program Hit as 'Socialistic' Measure On Convention Floor

Indorsement of national health insurance was voted down by the District Department of the American Legion last night after critics from the floor labeled it "socialistic."

The department convention, in session at the Shoreham Hotel, is scheduled to end tonight with election of new department officers.

During last night's session, Carl F. Kuldell, 3815 Davis st. nw., past commander of Cooley-McCullough Post No. 22, and Charles K. Dunn, 1827 Summitt pl. nw., past commander of the Sergt. Jasper Post No. 13, were nominated for the department commandership, to succeed Joseph A. Walker.

Dunn is now chairman of the department's ways and means committee.

Nominated for vice commanders on Dunn's ticket were Byrum E. Dunn, commander of National Cathedral Post No. 10; Jacob Milwit, commander General Accounting Office Post No. 48; William R. Clay, adjutant, Second Division No. 28; James B. Lomack, commander James E. Walker Post No. 26; George J. Burkett, commander Washington Building and Construction Trades Post No. 54.

Nominated on Kuldell's ticket were: Lance G. Hooks, commander, Department of Agriculture Post No. 36; Alfred Fields, commander, Government Printing Office Post No. 33; Douglas C. Rossignal, commander, Capital Transit Post No. 46; Donald M. Van Hooten, past commander, Army and Air Forces Post No. 62; William H. Talbott, past commander, Kenneth H. Nash Post No. 8.

Approximately 1,200 persons, including delegates and alternates, are attending the convention.

Among the resolutions adopted at last night's business session were ones recommending:

1. That Congress authorize release of funds held for improvement and addition to the U. S. Soldiers Home here, so that additional, needed facilities may be created immediately, and

2. That the District Commissioners include the Veterans Service Center here among the divisions of the local government.

The department's welfare advisory council reported that for the year ending June 30, 1949, it gave financial assistance to 580 cases, and service and counseling to 918 cases at a total expenditure of $25,304.37. The Council said that of this amount, $24,277.27 was received from the Community Chest, and the balance from other contributions.

Tragedy in Home

Short Circuit Kills Woman In Basement

MRS. EVA KINSEY
Electrocuted

Mrs. Eva Kinsey, 41, a laboratory technician at the National Institute of Health, was accidentally electrocuted in the basement of her home, 4506 Rosedale ave., Bethesda, yesterday afternoon.

Police said that the basement of her home had been flooded the day before by a clogged drain and that a stand lamp with a socket in the base had become short-circuited.

Mrs. Kinsey touched the lamp, they said, and apparently was knocked to the floor, the electrically charged lamp falling across her throat. She was found by Walter Himmighoefer, 14 4506 Rosedale ave., who had aided her in opening the drain the day before and returned to see if the basement had flooded further. Dr. Frank J. Broschart, Montgomery County medical examiner, issued a certificate of accidental death.

Sympathetic Judge Puts Youth on Probation

Education Plan Substitute for Jail Sentence In Holdup Case

Declaring that he was a victim of circumstances and bad companionship, Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut yesterday let off Leland T. Atherton, jr., 18, with a one to four-year suspended sentence.

Atherton, son of a Justice Department tax attorney, who lives at 9728 Bexhill dr., Rock Creek Hills, Md., will be on probation for the period of his sentence.

Looking down on the young defendant who had pleaded guilty in District Court to a $16 holdup of a High's ice cream store, at 5435 MacArthur blvd., Nw., Judge Schweinhaut said:

"You have been the victim of circumstances beyond your own power and control and with the right kind of assistance you may be all right. You must get rid of some complex you have. You need a lot of help. I have a notion that some effort has been made to push you in a certain educational direction when your talents direct you into another."

Ho Fit His 'Needs'

The judge said he recommended an education plan designed to fit Atherton's "needs and his physical makeup."

Judge Schweinhaut also commented that part of the youth's trouble was due to "bad companionship" and to "people who apparently have stronger will than him."

"I have a strong intuitive feeling," he said, "that there is an inferiority complex here that ought to be dissipated."

Court papers on the case show that Atherton now 6 feet 4, has gained 8½ inches in height in the past nine months. Also that his aptitude is for things mechanical but his parental influence has tended to direct him toward professional endeavor.

Influence Cited

The papers also show that a juvenile who was involved with Atherton in this and other holdups exerted considerable influence over Atherton.

Atherton was not freed yesterday because of detainers against him in connection with holdups in Alexandria and Arlington.

Judge Schweinhaut also gave a break to William B. Acree, 19, of no fixed address, convicted of the theft of $1916 from a Hot Shoppe at 5103 Georgia ave. nw., last August 30. A former employe at the Hot Shoppe, Acree walked in the Hot Shoppe office and stole the money.

In giving him a one to four-year suspended sentence and placing him on probation, Judge Schweinhaut told Acree:

"You have been in jail since May 1, haven't you? You don't like it much, do you? You face four years of it if you can't straighten yourself out. I think I am making a mistake but I will give you probation."

Sentence Made Conditional

Judge Schweinhaut made the suspended sentence conditional on Acree's return to his home in Kentucky and fulfillment of a pledge to receive psychiatric treatment.

Acree burst into tears at one point when his attorney, R. H. McNeill, said that his parents had been hard hit by Acree's trouble.

Other sentences imposed yesterday:

Edward J. Lindsey, 29, of 2022 Gales st. ne., got 2 to 8 years for a $152 holdup and auto theft.

Alonzo J. Crowder, 25, of 739 6th st. nw.; Henry C. Crump, 24, of 730 6th st. nw., and William E. Franklin, 28, of 85 Fenton pl. nw., got 16 months to 4 years for stealing a safe containing $1400 from the Economy Market, 2153 Pennsylvania ave. nw.

Frederick Russ, 27, of 920 F st. nw., got 8 months to 2 years on four counts of larceny after trust, involving $1748 taken from Lieut. Col. Marcus Griffin of Fort Knox, Ky. Russ was released in $2500 bond pending appeal of his conviction.

Non-County Lawyers Get Green Light

Three Montgomery County Circuit Court judges yesterday rescinded a 6-year-old court rule requiring attorneys who practice before the court to be members of the Montgomery Bar Association—with law offices in Montgomery County.

The decision was a victory for Louis Lebowitz, Washington and Prince Georges County attorney, who protested the rule as unconstitutional after he had been forbidden to argue before the court on grounds he was not a local bar member.

Yesterday's decision was given by Judges Charles Woodward, Steadman Prescott and Patrick Schnauffer.

In rescinding the rule the three judges ordered the county court clerk to receive no petitions in the future unless they contained the names and addresses of both plaintiffs and attorneys.

This new rule would make it always possible for the court to get hold of principals in cases when needed, the judges said. The new rule, they expalined, is in line with procedure adopted by the Maryland Court of Appeals in 1947 and generally used throughout the State.

Without some rule to allow the court to keep tabs on attorneys, the judges said, "it would be possible for a member of the Maryland bar living in Montana to file a suit on behalf of a client living in Maine without the defendant and court knowing where either was located."

Garners Walk Calmly to Chair For $4 Holdup of Taxi Driver

Two brothers, condemned to the electric chair for the $4 holdup slaying of a taxicab driver, walked calmly to their death in the District jail yesterday.

It was the first time in the history of the District that two brothers were executed for one crime, jail officials said.

The first to die was George A. Garner, 27, who steadfastly denied his guilt to the end. He was followed by Lawrence J. Garner, 24, who last week blamed his fate on the "drinking of wine," but made no statement yesterday.

Both men were convicted by a District Court jury June 4, 1948, for the murder of Howard Jones, 37, on the night of February 27 of that year.

They also had been charged with the slaying of another cab driver, James Hardy, 32, who was shot in the stomach and also robbed of $4 several hours before Jones met his death. At the time of their arrest, they confessed to both crimes, with Lawrence designated as the trigger man, police said.

George Garner was led into the execution chamber at 10:12 a. m.

As he started from the death cell, he turned back to Lawrence, shook hands and kissed him goodby.

After he entered the death chamber, George shook hands with Father Augustus Sauro of the Dominican House of Study, who had given both men their last communion at 6:30 a. m. Then George shook hands with the Rev. Don Shaw, jail chaplain, and the Rev. James Pinn of the Goodwill Baptist Church.

"I am innocent of any crime, but I hold no malice, and I forgive all those who have acted against me," he then said.

Smoking his last cigarette, he helped a jail guard untie his shoe laces.

The current was turned on at 10:14 a. m. for two minutes. George Garner was pronounced dead at 10:20 a. m. by Dr. Martin M. Cannon, jail physician, and Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald.

Lawrence clutched a picture of his girl friend, Mary Ann Green, as he entered the death chamber at 10:23 a. m. He walked stolidly to the chair with no show of emotion. He had nothing to say.

The current was turned on for two minutes at 10:25 a. m. He was pronounced dead at 10:30 a. m.

Even after they were informed Thursday night by their lawyer, Louis Jongbloet, that the Supreme Court had turned down their last-minute appeal for a stay of execution, Lawrence did not give up hope. His last request to Jongbloet was to convey a message to a priest asking him to appeal to President Truman.

Their death day had been postponed five times while they appealed their conviction on the grounds of insanity. They lost each appeal.

Both men rested well the night before their execution, jail officials said. They were visited by their parents, grandmother, and uncle and two of George's girl friends Thursday.

Thursday night, George had a dinner of pork chops. His only complaint was that he had eaten too much. Lawrence dined on two whole fried chickens.

Yesterday morning they both ate a breakfast of bacon and eggs, toast and coffee.

Fire Truck Minus Tiller Rams Pole

A ship without a rudder is a figure of speech to poets and politicians. But a hook-and-ladder fire truck without a tillerman to steer the hind end is a menace from the minute it starts to roll.

Truck 10 members found this out late Thursday night. Capt. E. J. Daigle said the regular tillerman was off duty and Pvt. J. A. Gateau, of 1753 W st. se., was suppposed to replace him.

When an alarm came in, Captain Daigle said, Private Gateau forgot his temporary assignment and jumped on the running board.

The driver, Pvt. Leslie E. Gurgan, of 4010 1st st. nw., shoved off pronto from the firehouse at 347 K st. sw. The front end made the turn. The back end didn't. It sheared off an electric-light pole and smashed into a tree.

Six firemen aboard were thrown off and Pvt. Gateau was the only one to suffer. He was relieved from duty because of a back injury. Damage to the truck and ladders was estimated at $300.

A Fire Department accident investigation board will make an inquiry.

CIA 'Mystery' Fire Kills Man, Injures His Brother

Information on a Rosslyn flash fire that fatally injured one man and critically burned another last Monday was released for the first time yesterday by the Central Intelligence Agency.

Arlington police and fire officials claimed at the same time, they were denied information and entry to the scene of the accident Monday by guards at the CIA motor pool garage on Lee Highway.

One victim, James Daly, 41, of 5718 Euclid ave., Cheverly, Md., died Thursday at Georgetown University Hospital. His brother, Vincent, 35, of 904 5th st. ne. is in "good" condition at Providence Hospital.

Arlington Police Chief Harry L. Woodyard said yesterday he dispatched two policemen and an ambulance after a call phoned in by a citizen at 5:05 p. m. Monday that there was "an explosion at the Navy warehouse in Rosslyn."

His men were denied entry, Woodyard said, and added: "They wouldn't give us any information. They said it was the United States Navy and they would do their own investigating."

Woodyard said a CIA official informed him by phone yesterday that "in connection with the accident on Lee Highway the 25th, they would have a report in a couple of days and would furnish me with a copy of it."

CIA Security Officer William E. Duggan said yesterday: "I don't even know the police department was refused entry. They were told we would make the investigation and submit a report to them later."

Duggan said the injured were removed in two ambulances, one from Garfield Hospital and one from the District Public Health Department, probably before the Arlington ambulance arrived.

"There isn't anything secret in there," Duggan said, but explained guards have been instructed not to admit anyone without a CIA badge, except in emergencies. He said he had not questioned the guards, but knew of "no order" to exclude the Arlington officials.

Duggan said the flash fire occurred between 4:30 and 4:45 p. m., apparently when a spark ignited a container of gasoline.

Corning Backs Army Officers For Cadets

Reestablishment of Army officers as military instructors in the public schools would be the most effective step to revive interest and enlistments in the schools' cadet corps, School Superintendent Hobart M. Corning said yesterday.

Dr. Corning also said the Army has not given the cadet training program full cooperation and support, and cited contradictory reports by Army officials as a confusing factor in the cadet corps program, which he admitted is in a "serious condition."

The superintendent's statement was made in replying to a questionnaire sent to school officials by Representative Olin E. Teague (D., Tex.), a member of the House District Committee to determine reasons for waning cadet corps enlistments, and what can be done about them.

Dr. Corning's reply, submitted to the Board of Education's student activities committee, also was approved by the board by a telephone poll of members.

Dr. Corning declared the Army had awarded merit certificates for "proficiency in military training" for the school year ended June, 1948, covering all school divisions, yet a few months later Army inspectors ranked all the schools but one as unsatisfactory.

The merit certificates, he said, were signed by Chief of Staff Omar N. Bradley, Secretary of the Army Kenneth Royall, and presented by Major General Hobart R. Gay, commanding general of the Washington Military District.

SE Residents Ask Swimming Pool Opening

Four organizations in Southeast Washington adopted resolutions this week asking that Anacostia Pool, which was closed a month ago, be opened to white swimmers.

The resolutions were adopted by officers and directors of the Eastern Branch Kiwanis Club, the majority of members of the Anacostia Lions Club, the executive committee of the Fort Davis Citizens' Association, and the executive committee of the Fort Dupont Association.

Secretary of the Interior Julius Krug had ordered the closing after a series of incidents occurred when Negroes were admitted to the pool, which formerly had been used only by whites.

The Kiwanis Club stated it would be a mistake, with the present tensions, to open the pool on a nonsegregated basis, and that there had been no trouble when only white persons used it.

The Anacostia Lions Club asked that it be reopened on a segregated basis and stated that it is wrong to deprive the white children of the use of the pool until matters can take a different trend.

Since the pool is in a white neighborhood and adjacent to two white schools, its closing has worked a hardship, particularly in hot weather, for thousands of children, the executive committee of the Fort Davis Association resolved.

The Fort Dupont Association's executive committee urged that all six of the Interior Department's pools be operated on the former basis. Four of them, including the Anacostia pool were for white persons, and two for Negroes.

24 in D. C. Receive Liens On Back Tax

A Federal tax lien notice for $39,524.87 in taxes due on 1945 income was filed yesterday against the Old Rose Social Club, a restaurant at 1848 7th st. nw.

It was one of 24 such notices filed by the Collector of Taxes in Baltimore against District residents and business establishments. Included in the group were three brothers, Nick, George and Oscar Basiliko, who owe between them almost $55,000 in back taxes on their 1946 income from their real estate investment brokerage.

The Old Rose Social Club, a former after-hours club, is located on the second floor above a clothing store. Police said it is run by Herbert Saunders. He could not be reached for comment.

Nick Basiliko, who lives at 4215 37th st. nw., and who spoke for himself and his brother, said they had been notified that the taxes were due and were making arrangements to pay them. He was listed as owing $19,288.67; George Basiliko, who lives at 10713 Georgia ave., Silver Spring, Md., as owing $17,851.71, and Oscar Basiliko, who lives at 6211 Eighth st. nw., as owing $17,537.04.

Also included in the group was Earl H. McDonald, of 2807 13th st. ne., one of the defendants in the "transom peeper" case, whose conviction on a gambling charge was reversed by the Supreme Court because no search warrant was secured first. He owes $5,496.41 taxes on income for 1944, 1945, 1947, according to the notice.

Other persons and establishments listed as owing more than $1000 were Ada Stein and Ben Stein, trading as Bensons Jewelers, 1319 F st. nw., $8884.61 on 1943-1945 income; Charles K. Gibson, 1200 I st. nw., $1400 on 1945 income; Harry Mensh, 1103 Maine ave. sw., proprietor of a fish market, $1631.86 on 1946 income; E. S. Price, trading as E. S. Price & Co., Denrike Building, 3270.57 on 1947 income; Alfred J. Scovil, 1825 G st. nw., $1039.18 on 1944, 1946, 1947 income.

Samuel L. Bullock, 1116 W st. nw., physician, $8409.25 on 1946, 1947 income; Solomon and L. Sickle, 3231 Kansas ave. nw., proprietor of clothing store, $1,377.80 on 1948 income; George Gould, 1704 W st. se., $1,157.92 on 1947 income; Daniel Geremia, 2219 Minnesota ave. se., restaurant proprietor, $2,391.36 on 1945 income.

Teacher Wins $1000 In Slogan Contest

Miss Genevieve Miller, 2601 16th st. nw., won a $1000 prize in a slogan contest sponsored by Liquid Glaze, Inc., and Oldsmobile. Her winning slogan was: "I like Liquid Glaze protection treatment best because it glamourizes as it weatherizes." A teacher in a Silver Spring elementary school, Miss Miller said she will use the money for a month's vacation.

97 Boy Delegates To Learn About House Here Today

Teen-age boys from all the 48 States here to learn about Federal Government, today, will question congressional leaders about the workings of the House of Representatives.

The 97 delegates to the Boys' Forum of National Government will hear Speaker Sam Rayburn at 10 a. m. in the caucus room of the Senate Office Building. Other speakers will be Representative Wright Patman (D., Tex.) and Hugo Sims (D., S. C.).

The fourth annual forum, sponsored by the American Legion, opened yesterday. Its purpose is to teach the youths the mechanics of democracy.

Filing of Greene Will Shows Estate Of $121,252

Dr. Samuel H. Greene, jr., who died here July 8 at the age of 74, left an estate of $121,252, it was learned yesterday when his will was filed for probate in District Court.

The entire sum is placed in trust with his widow, Mrs. Edna Greene, who is to get the entire income for life.

On her death, the trust is dissolved and the sum goes outright to the Calvary Baptist Church and Congregation, 8th and H sts. nw. Dr. Greene's father was for many years pastor of the church.

The will requests that the church use a portion of the money for the Baptist Home for Children and the Baptist Home of the District of Columbia.

Safe Burglars Flee With $150 As Policeman Fires 3 Shots

Two safe burglars escaped under police gunfire early yesterday when they were surprised at the Coast-In Pontiac Co., 407 Florida ave. ne. They stole about $150, according to Monte J. Manton, secretary-treasurer.

Police Pvt. John W. Lockwood discovered an open window at 4 a. m., and heard pounding within. He was about to enter alone, when a patrol wagon with Pvts. James Dobrzyn and William I. Williams drove up.

Lockwood and Dobrzyn went to the rear, leaving Williams to guard the front when the two men ran out. Williams fired three shots at them. From a cash drawer in one safe, $120.69 was taken, plus about $30 from vending machines. Two other safes were damaged but unopened.

Charles N. Himelright, manager of a Safeway store at 1421 Kenilworth ave. ne., reported burglars stole cigarettes, hams, butter, frying chickens and clean butcher aprons totaling $500.

Thelma Chen, 4217 3d st. nw., reported that sometime since last Friday, two jade and diamond rings, and a pair of earrings of similar design, valued at $500, disappeared from her room. She works at the Chinese Embassy.

Mrs. Shearer Dies; Music Teacher Here

Mrs. Margaret Shearer, 75, former lay worker for St. David's Episcopal Chapel and music teacher here, died Thursday at her home, 4819 Quebec st. nw.

Born in Hamilton, Scotland, on March 19, 1874, Mrs. Shearer had lived in Washington about 20 years, after several years' residence in Halifax, Va.

She had been a private tutor and music teacher in her native Scotland, and followed her profession after coming to this country as a young wife to join her husband, the late James A. Shearer. They lived in West Virginia while Mr. Shearer, a civil and mining engineer, did research and installed safety measures in coal mines.

After his death, Mrs. Shearer moved with two young daughters to Halifax, Va. There she taught music and did community work at the Phoebe Ann Orphanage.

When she came to Washington, she continued her teaching music as well as doing lay work for St. David's Episcopal Chapel.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. today at St. Albans Church, Wisconsin ave. at Massachusetts ave. nw.

Surviving are her two daughters, Mrs. Jessie Shearer Borah and Miss Margaret Ann Shearer, both of the Quebec st. address.

Col. Phelps, Ex-Central Teacher, Dies

Col. Wilbur Morehead Phelps, 72, who for ten years taught chemistry at Central High School here, died unexpectedly Thursday in Hyattsville of a heart ailment.

Col. Phelps had only recently come from Fort Pierce, Fla., to live with his sister, Mrs. Herbert F. Mitchell, 4212 Queensbury rd., Hyattsville, where he died. He was a member of the United States Army Reserves, retired.

Born July 8, 1877, in Laurel, Md., Col. Phelps was educated in the Washington public schools and was graduated from the old Columbian College, now a part of George Washington University.

He then taught at Central High Schol here, and in 1910 went to the Staunton (Va.) Military Academy as a physician.

He was one of the first members of the Medical Reserve Corps organized under President Wilson. In 1913 he left Staunton to serve under General Pershing in the Mexican "punitive expedition."

In World War I he went to France on the first Army transport as staff surgeon for the First Engineers. Later he was sanitary inspector for the First Division.

Following the armistice, Colonel Phelps studied X-ray technique for six months at the Sorbonne in Paris. Upon his return he established an X-ray department at King's Daughters Hospital at Staunton. He remained with the hospital until his retirement in 1947.

Colonel Phelps was a member of the George Washington University Medical Society, a past president of the Augusta County (Va.) Medical Association, a fellow of the American Medical Association.

He was the author of a medical history of World War I written for the Surgeon General's office.

Colonel Phelps is survived by his sister, Mrs. Mitchell. His brother-in-law, Herbert F. Mitchell, is a retired teacher of McKinley Technical High School.

The Startling Facts On A Major Social Problem

How does a Washingtonian get a divorce? Post Reporter Bill Brinkley answers this question for you in a series of frank and startling articles on "Divorce in Washington." He describes his interviews with prominent divorce lawyers; gives you actual "case histories;" and even takes you along on an "after-dark" investigation with a private detective.

Here's the true situation as it exists today . . . in this city! You'll be amazed and shocked at Brinkley's revelations, but won't want to miss them. Starting this Sunday!

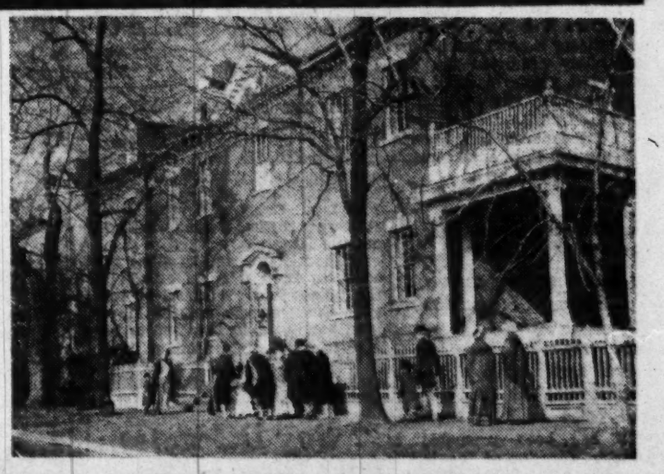
Whittaker Chambers Enters the Wadleigh Story

Henry Julian Wadleigh, the former State Department economist whose own story of his collaboration with a Communist spy ring began in last Sunday's Post, continues the narrative this Sunday with a description of the undiscovered espionage method.

Wadleigh also tells of a new and important contact he made—a plump little man with a broken front tooth who said his name was Carl. "Carl" is now well known as Whittaker Chambers.

Wadleigh's service to the ring went on for two years, and then was shockingly terminated. Read what finally happened, in his own words, in Section II of Sunday's Post.

ALEXANDRIA—A City To Live In



Alexandria is 200 years old this year and Alexandrians have plenty to celebrate. They live in a city of historic charm and atmosphere. At the same time, they live in a fully up-to-date twentieth century city, with modern apartment buildings, shopping centers, theaters.

What kind of a place would Alexandria be to live in? You'll find the answer in The Post's Real Estate Section this Sunday. Conrad Harness' feature article gives you a picture of Alexandria as a home town, with a thorough treatment of Alexandria's housing situation. Richard Lyons' illustrated story including the facts on city government, schools, and the tax rate is also a must for prospective home buyers.

Powerful Bandits Still Reign in Sicily

Romantic Sicily—"land of booted barons and pauper peasants"—is even better known as the home of the Mafia—the powerful bandit group which exerts so much influence on Sicilian life. Present-day Sicily is a battleground—scene of a constant struggle between the bandits and the Italian police.

Post Correspondent Frank Gervasi gives you a vivid picture of this situation—with fascinating facts and illuminating background material. You'll find it in Section II of the Sunday Washington Post.

Who are Washington's Most Influential Women?

Every year the influence of women in the Nation's Capital grows. They come from all over the nation—hold all kinds of responsible positions.

Who are the 12 most influential women in Washington today—and what do they do? Mary Van Rennsselaer Thayer gives you her choice—with pictures and comment on these Washington personalities. Look for her article in PARADE.

SUNDAY in THE WASHINGTON POST

'Plump Matron,' Indeed!

The Senator From Nevada Got Her Irish Up, and Her Weight Down by 5 Pounds

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

Mrs. George Malone, wife of the Senator from Nevada, describes her experiences on the Kain-Thayer diet in today's guest column for Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer.

By Mrs. George Malone

JUST PICTURE the most delicious menu ever planned for guests at a cool, midsummer retreat on the Chesapeake Bay, and you'll have a slight idea of my misery a couple of Sundays ago. Naval Capt. and Mrs. Frank Loftin had asked my husband and me to sample some of the famous Suthin' hospitality that meant succulent Maryland fried chicken, hot biscuits oozing with butter; fluffy creamed potatoes and green peas;

The drive from sizzling Washington had made me desert-thirsty, and faint from hunger. But I was on Ida Jean Kain's 10-day diet, with four more days to go; and the embarrassing presence of the Nevada Senator, who happens to be my husband, made it imperative that I rally every vestige of fortitude to keep myself in shape.

I say embarrassing presence because, while I hope he never knows the truth about this, I would have broken over without a qualm if he had not been there.

THE WHOLE strenuous diet episode had boomeranged from my concern about his increasing girth. For some time, I had quietly suggested that he count his calories. With more patience that one generally expects from the Irish, he had smiled and changed the subject—until one evening I had pressed the point

Again he smiled; then eyed my waistline with more interest than I thought the subject warranted. "You might be thinking about a diet yourself," he said finally. "You're becoming quite a plump matron, you know."

Me, a plump matron! I was horrified. I had never had to watch my weight, or let out my frocks, or stew about styles that made one appear fatter here or there. But my clothes were beginning to feel tighter; so I changed the subject.

Next day, I stepped on the scales; discovered I was 5 pounds overweight; and became another guinea-pig for Molly Thayer and Ida Jean Kain.

My supreme test arose on the Sunday at the Loftins. The tray of mint juleps hove into view. I was reaching for mine when I happened to catch a glimpse of that maddening George Malone twinkle. I knew my husband was thinking to himself, "The old girl has done pretty well the past six days, but she can't resist this!"

Momentarily, I toyed with the idea of telling him to go jump in the bay and take my diet with him. Then I changed my mind, closed my eyes to the mint juleps, and asked weakly for a glass of water. "I'm on a diet," I whispered to my hostess.

With angelic understanding, she summoned a waiter and asked him to bring me a glass of lemonade, without sugar. At luncheon, again she was helpful. I could have just a small piece of chicken, couldn't I? And one hot biscuit? And perhaps some salad, without dressing. On the first and third count, I could—and did.

But I turned down the biscuit and the potatoes, and took a mere spoonful of peas.

HALF AN HOUR later, I was rewarded. The food was out of sight, and my husband groaned that he had eaten too much. My spirits soared.

The next four days went by in a breeze of party luncheons and dinners, but I was unperturbed.

At the end of 10 days, I had lost that 5 pounds, regained my self-respect, and earned the right to ask my husband, "Did you say something about a plump matron?

Foolproof Vacation Packing

There is one foolproof method of packing for a vacation: make a list, weeks in advance if necessary. That way if you have to do some shopping to complete your wardrobe or beauty kit, you will have the time to do it without pressure.

Usually, I make a list of categories such as "sports," "beach," "evening wear," "makeup," etc., then I list clothes and cosmetics on a head to toe basis—starting with hat or shampoo whichever the case may be in its category. This way you will have everything you need at your fingertips. Then the only thing that remains is to lay everything out, and fit them together for packing.

I always wrap such things as nailpolish, nail implements, lipsticks and perfumes in cotton batting or cleansing tissues and stuff them into shoes or slippers. Also, I take packable cosmetics such as cream makeup in plastic containers, witch hazel pads which have been packed in a small nonbreakable containers (do this yourself by pouring witch hazel on small cotton squares and packing tightly in left-over cosmetics containers.

Avoid taking cosmetics in jars or bottles. Use unbreakable containers and take things which cannot spill, removing color from lingerie and clothes. If you take perfume be sure to seal the bottle top with adhesive or cellophane tape.

Ask Anne — About Classes In Correct Posture

Is there a course offered anywhere in Washington in the way of exercising and posture correction that would be of benefit to me? I am tall, too thin, drooping in the shoulders and since I am just past 30 I feel it is now or never if I hope to pick up my energy and improve my appearance. Most of the courses I have read about seem to be for the ladies who are reducing. I haven't a lot of money to spend, but I'd like to make this investment in the type of course that will offer me as many advantages as possible. R. G.

Starting October 6, the physical education department of the Young Women's Christian Association at 17th and K sts. is offering a course in corrective exercises. During the course, exercises will be prescribed to correct individual posture defects. A medical examination by a Y.W.C.A. staff physician is required before registration for the course. The fee for the examination is $1 and the fee for the course $5 for 10 lessons. You may register any time after September 1.

Also offered at the Y is a course in personality development which includes use of make-up, selection of clothes, etc. For further information about this course I suggest you call the education department at the Y.W.C.A.

I would appreciate it very much if you would advise me as to how I can clean a pair of particolored suede shoes. The colors are yellow, green, red and blue. P. C.

Light soil can be removed by dusting dry cleaning powder or cornstarch moistened with carbon tetrachloride into the suede. Allow it to stand for 30 minutes and brush it out. Treatment can be repeated if the shoes are not completely cleaned the first time. After cleaning, bring up the nap by rubbing with a rubber sponge made especially for cleaning suede or a stiff brush. If you use the cornstarch-carbon tetrachloride mixture, be sure to make it just damp, not wet.

If the shoes are very soiled, I suggest you take them to a competent commercial shoe cleaner.

I wish to make draw draperies as economically as possible for steel casement bedroom windows 10½ feet by 4 feet high and 3 by 4 feet. The windows start almost at the ceiling and have furniture below them. I would like the draperies to add color and interest to the room, but primarily to serve to keep out cold in winter and light and heat in the summer since the large window faces east. There are cream Venetian blinds, the twin bedspreads are rose plaid, the furniture is maple and Pennsylvania Dutch, the walls are now painted cream but will probably eventually be painted green, possibly with a cameo rose ceiling. The cotton reversible rug is dark beige. I had thought of using sill length draperies because of the furniture below and the large amount of material needed, since the room is very informal. Could you suggest a practical material and color? Should the design be flowered or geometrical? Would a figured cotton quilting by the yard be too stiff to drape well? E. B.

Since the bedroom is an informal room furnished in maple, I'd suggest further carrying out the Early American feeling by curtaining the windows with chintz or cretonnes in small quaint patterns. This type of drape is very appropriate made sill length. Also, a flowered drape material is particularly appropriate in this room because, with the exception of the plaid bedspread, there are no large areas of pattern. Since you plan to paint the walls green with a rose ceiling, let these colors predominate in the drapes. The background could be cream or white.

Yes, I do think cotton quilting would be too stiff to drape well. Then, too, it will almost have to be lined to protect the padding at the back and make it more attractive from the outside. This would add to the weight.

Now We Can Talk About Our Own Paul Maxwell, Father of Bride-to-Be

ONE of the handicaps of running "Father of the Bride" in The Washington Post was the composing room assistant foreman, Paul C. Maxwell.

Since the gentleman is now going through the "father of the bride" experience for the first time, he couldn't wait to read each installment in the morning's Post. Every night as the pages were going to press, Mr. Maxwell would be hanging over the "Father" page, chuckling, "That's just the way it's happening at home."

For the last several days the composing room has been relatively quiet. Mr. Maxwell is taking a vacation to make preparations for Daughter Mary Margaret's marriage to Frank Petrowski on August 6.

Getting fitted for his "zoot suit" and fixing the house have been the chief items on Mr. Maxwell's list for The Big Day. But why, oh why, wails the Father of the Bride, does the Weatherman have to be against him at a time like this. He complains he has been losing weight, and without benefit of the Kain diet.

THERE HAS been a friendly bit of rivalry going on at the Maxwell residence this week. Mrs. Maxwell, woman-like, is preparing the house for the reception with plans for punch and dainty sandwiches served upstairs. But Mr. Maxwell had a brainstorm. He is painting the recreation room downstairs where the guests can be "cool and friendly," and something "stronger than punch" will be served. It's a bet in the Maxwell family that Mr. Maxwell will have more people at "his reception" than Mrs. Maxwell will have at hers.

Mr. Maxwell, after a constant barrage of "how-to-do-it," decides to sit this one out as Mrs. Maxwell gives him minute instructions on how to paint the ceiling

And through all the family hubbub, 10-year-old Anne is right there watching her Daddy work. She might not see so much sense to all this commotion now, Mr. Maxwell says, but wait till she gets to the marriageable age.

Although she is in generally fair condition, Mrs. Maxwell, according to Mr. Maxwell, is up in the ceiling. "You gotta do this" and "you gotta do that" are the principal ways she starts conversation. Mrs. Maxwell probably has adequate cause for divorce when her husband, atop his stepladder, calmly answers, "I'm not going to do anything. THERE'S PLENTY OF TIME."

IT'S A TOSS-UP who opens the wedding presents in the Maxwell home. The rule generally followed is "who reaches the package first." But the entire family is sharing in the premarriage excitement.

The natural question to ask at this point is "what about the bride?" She's working, and very calm at this stage, according to her Daddy. Although everything has been going like clockwork and no mishaps to date, Mr. Maxwell can make one statement for sure.

"She'll be scared to death on Saturday and I will be more scared, if that is possible." More so than at your own wedding, Mr. Maxwell?

Father of the Bride

Mr. and Mrs. Banks Sweep Up the Confetti; Drink a Toast to Kay's Wedding Day

This is the last of 14 installments of that popular saga of the forgotten man, "Father of the Bride." This condensed version of Edward Streeter's novel chronicles the story of Mr. Stanley Banks as he watches the rise of the greatest show on earth (his daughter's wedding) and the fall of his bank account.

By Edward Streeter

Illustrated by Gluyas Williams

THIS WAS the scene that Mr. Banks had visualized so often during the last 25 years; the moment when his first-born would come running down a broad staircase on the arm of a muscle-bound stranger, to disappear from his life forever—at least in the role of his little daughter.

Now that it was here he only felt numbness. He had rehearsed it all so often in his mind—he had hugged his private sadness to his bosom so many times—that its fulfillment was less real than its anticipation.

Someone cried, 'Here they come," as if it were a horse race. Then Kay and Buckley, conspicuously new in every detail, were tearing across the landing and down the final flight of stairs with that hunched, headlong look of charging moose that Mr. Banks had observed in all brides and bridegrooms coming downstairs.

They were on the front walk now, their shoulders covered with confetti, their heads still lowered between their shoulders. Mr. Banks was right behind them, running in form, the ushers and bridesmaids bringing up the rear in full cry. Buckley's car stood at the end of the walk. It was amazing how these details fell into place against all odds. They were in. Kay leaned through the open window while Buckley fought off ushers on the other side.

"Goodby, Pops. You've been wonderful. I love you."

Speeding the Parting Guests

WHEN MR. BANKS returned to the house he realized that the reception had entered a new and final phase. The reception had become a party and only a few cutaways and bridesmaids' dresses recalled the event that had brought it into being.

The more conservative element began to leave. A few said goodby. The majority took advantage of the confusion and merely walked away. Officer Mullins, who had undertaken to act as parking attendant, had long since left his post and retired to the kitchen, where one or two other members of the force were already at work on material furnished by the ever-thoughtful Mr. Massoula.

And so it came about that, while Officer Mullins exchanged views on wine and women with his fellow craftsmen, the more prominent citizens of Fairview Manor locked bumpers and cursed in the scarred field behind the house.

The more prominent citizens of Fairview Manor locked bumpers and cursed

Mr. Banks felt restless. A sudden desire seized him to speed his parting guests. He wandered out of the house and across the lawn in the direction of the parking field, carefully balancing a glass of champagne as he walked. The scene which burst upon him as he rounded the lilac hedge reminded him of a picture in an old geography of sampans milling on a Chinese river front.

For the next half hour, disregarding the dangerous snugness of his cutaway, he leaped up and down on entwined bumpers, directed backing cars into other backing cars and helped angry citizens to pull their bashed mudguards free from their tires.

Then, retrieving his glass, which he had left on a fence post, he returned to the house, dirty but satisfied, feeling that for the first time in many hours he had been of some practical use in the world.

Alone With the Wreckage

THE LAST guest had gone. The last damp hand had been wrung. The bridal party had disappeared noisily to seek bigger and newer adventure. The Dunstans had left. The relatives had returned to the oblivion from which they had emerged. Mr. and Mrs. Banks were alone with the wreckage.

They sat limply in two armchairs which Mr. Banks had dragged down from upstairs. The rug was covered with confetti. Here and there on the white paint of the sills were the dark signatures of cigarettes. The floral background of the reception line obliterated the fireplace. They stared at it in silence.

"She did look lovely in that going-away suit," said Mrs. Banks dreamily. "Didn't you think it was good-looking?"

Mr. Banks couldn't remember it very well. He knew she had had on something tan. There his detail stopped. But her face was etched forever on his memory as she stood on the landing waiting to throw the bride's bouquet.

"She's a darling," he said.

"Queer the Griswolds didn't come," mused Mrs. Banks. "They accepted and Jane told me they were coming."

"I don't see how you know whether they came or not."

"I know everybody that was here and everybody that wasn't," said Mrs. Banks complacently.

Mr. Banks did not question it. This woman who couldn't remember the details of the most elementary problem for five minutes would remember now and forever everyone who came, everyone who didn't—and also those who crashed the gate.

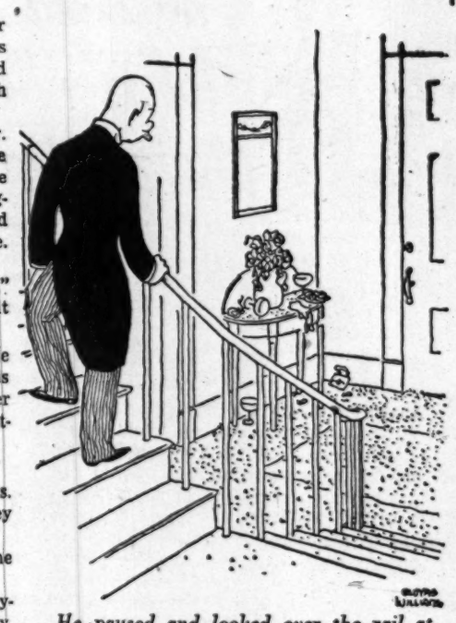
Here's Where She Stood

"I SUPPOSE," said Mrs. Banks, "we ought to get out the vacuum cleaner and not leave this whole mess for Delilah tomorrow. I'll go up and change my dress."

Mr. Banks followed her upstairs glumly. Like a fog blowing in from the sea, he could feel the first wisps of depression fingering into his soul.

Here was the place where she had stood. He paused and looked over the rail at the confetti-strewn hall. Queer about places and houses. They remained the same yet they were never the same. By no stretch of the imagination was this the spot from which Kay had tossed her flowers to the waving arms below.

He tried to shake off the cloud that was settling over him. In the bathroom a single bottle of champagne rested quietly in the washbasin. It had been put there by someone just before Mr. Massoula ran out. Heaven knew what for. It was still cold. For a moment he debated whether to open it. Then he turned, went downstairs and got out the vacuum cleaner.



He paused and looked over the rail at the confetti-strewn hall

A Toast at Midnight

AN HOUR LATER the last particle of confetti had been transferred to the bulging bag of the machine. They sat once more in their chairs in the living room gazing with exhausted faces at the banked greens in front of the fireplace.

On the floor near the edge of the rug Mr. Banks spied a few bits of confetti that the cleaner had overlooked. He rose to pick them up. There seemed to be more just under the edge. He turned back the corner and disclosed a solid mat of multicolored paper.

Without comment he dropped the rug back into place. Mrs. Banks was watching, but said nothing. He went quietly up to the bathroom and drew the cork in the last remaining bottle. From the spare room he selected two of Kay's new champagne glasses and returned to his wife.

Carefully he filled the two glasses and handed one to Mrs. Banks. Behind the floral background the clock on the mantel struck 12. The whistle of a train from the city hooted in the distance as it rounded the curve into the Fairview Manor station. A dog was barking somewhere.

"How," said Mr. Banks raising his glass.

"How," said Mrs. Banks.

If You Need Another Reason To Quit City, Here's a Fine One

By Nicha Soure

One excellent excuse to get out of Washington this Sunday after the prolonged heat wave, and to meet people from your own State, is to attend the New York State Society patriotic rally at the Woodlawn Estate.

The rally at the historic Woodlawn Estate and Mansion at 3 p. m. will feature an address by Representative Ralph W. Gwinn of New York.

The beautiful estate, which was given by George Washington to his adopted daughter, Nellie Custis, as a wedding present in 1799, is now open to the public. It is located on Route 1, 8½ miles south of Alexandria, Va.

For further details concerning the rally or the future activities of the New York State Society, contact the secretary, Miss Dorothy M. Gollinger, during the evenings at Kenmore 3-5003.

Sen. Olin Johnston Again Heads S. Carolina Society

Senator Olin D. Johnston of South Carolina was reelected president of the South Carolina State Society of Washington at a dance and business meeting held recently at the Shoreham Hotel.

Serving with Senator Johnston in the activities of the society for the coming year are Senator Burnet R. Maybank, first vice president; Representative James B. Hare, second vice president; Representative Hugo S. Sims, jr., third vice president; and Col. Harold Folk, fourth vice president.

Other officers are Mrs. James Latimer, treasurer; Representative Joseph Bryson, historian; David Jennings, sergeant at arms; and Warren Clardy, chairman of the executive committee.

Father Stack Dies; Priest For 28 Years

Maryknoll, N. Y., July 29 (Spl.).—The Rev. Joseph C. Stack, M.M., a former Washington lawyer, and a member of the Catholic Foreign Mission Society of America for 35 years, died in Ossining Hospital Wednesday at the age of 75, after a long illness.

Father Stack, a native of Washington, D. C., attended Georgetown Law School and George Washington University. Before entering Maryknoll in 1914, he had been engaged in patent attorney work in Washington with the Federal Government for nine years.

He was ordained to the priesthood at Baltimore in 1921.

Father Stack represented Maryknoll in the New York area until 1923, when he joined the faculty of Maryknoll Apostolic College, Clarks Summit, Pa. Two years later he was assigned to the Maryknoll Mission in Los Angeles. Since 1927, he has been stationed at the Maryknoll Major Seminary and Central Headquarters, Maryknoll, N. Y.

Surviving is a cousin, the Rev. J. Harrington O'Neill of St. John the Evangelist Church, Baltimore.

Funeral services for Father Stack were held today in the Maryknoll Seminary Chapel. Burial was in Maryknoll Cemetery.

Legal Specialist To Rule on Typist As African Queen

London, July 29 (U.P.).—The British government today appointed a legal specialist to decide whether a 24-year-old former London typist can become queen of an African tribe.

The British Colonial Office announced it had appointed Sir Walter Harragin, King's Counsellor of the British high court, to rule on the status of Ruth Williams, who was secretly married last year in London to Sereste Khama, 27-year-old heir to the throne of the Manangwato tribal state. The state is a British protectorate.

Their marriage set off a tribal argument culminating in a big palaver at Serowe, capital of the state. Sereste's uncle, Tshekedi Khama, denounced the marriage, but Sereste obtained tribal approval.

Sen. Taylor Quits Progressive Party

By the United Press

Senator Glen H. Taylor (D., Idaho) announced tonight that he has quit the Progressive Party and said he is convinced that the American people do not want "splinter" parties.

Taylor, the "Singing Cowboy" who threw in his lot with Henry A. Wallace to run for Vice President on the unsuccessful Progressive ticket last year, made his announcement on the Mutual Broadcasting System's "Meet the Press" radio program.

R. M. Reese Funeral Rites Set Today

Funeral services for Robert Miller Reese, 87, Alexandria civic leader, who died Thursday of a heart attack at his home at 219 South Asaph st., will be held today at 5 p. m. in the Christ Episcopal Church. Burial will be private.

A native of Baltimore, Mr. Reese was graduated from Johns Hopkins University in 1882. He worked for the Department of Agriculture from 1890 until his retirement in 1932, serving during that time as chief clerk, custodian of the buildings, real estate officer and as private secretary to a number of Secretaries of Agriculture.

He received certificates of appreciation from the Near East Relief and the American National Red Cross War Relief Fund in the First World War. He was the first president of the Welfare Association of the Agriculture Department.

After his retirement from Government service, Mr. Reese took part in many philanthropic enterprises in Alexandria. He retired as secretary of the Alexandria Red Cross Chapter in 1946 after 10 years of service. He had also served 10 years as treasurer of the Alexandria Tuberculosis Association.

He worked with the Children's Home and Day Nursery from its inauguration in 1933 until last January 1, serving first as treasurer and later as president. He was treasurer of the Land Marks Society of Alexandria.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Rebecca Ramsay Reese; two daughters, Miss Katharine Reese, of Alexandria, and Mrs. John Langdon, of Providence, R. I., and three granddaughters.

Watergate Closes on Gala Opera

By Paul Hume

The Watergate concerts by the summer orchestra of the National Symphony closed last night with a gala opera program.

Eleanor Steber and Leonard Warren of the Metropolitan Opera were stars in a program drawn almost entirely from the works of Verdi and Puccini. An audience as large as that of the great opening night was present. Only the Gershwin memorial concert drew a larger throng in this summer's dozen offerings.

Miss Steber and Warren sang arias and duets from Verdi's Ernani, Masked Ball, Force of Destiny, Trovatore, and Simone Boccanegra. Puccini was represented by the entire closing scene of the second act of Tosca, beginning with Baron Scarpia's open propositioning of the Roman singer, Floria Tosca.

This was the high spot of the evening vocally. It is a scene of real, reliable drama. Both singers are suited in voice to the music and the mood of the piece. Mitchell and the orchestra did some electrifying playing in this excerpt.

Earlier in the evening Steber and Mtchell were not always together. It is not possible for good opera to be sung unless singer and conductor can see each other. Steber's singing is as good as any now on display at the Metropolitan.

Warren brings authority and ease to the monotonous arias Verdi gives most baritones. Both soloists won encores from the shouting listeners. Steber's was Butterfly's big aria. She holds the last note eight times longer than Puccini wrote it, and thereby spoils its dramatic meaning. Warren encored with Rigoletto's ranting to the courtiers.

It was a vigorous climax to a highly successful series of concerts. Credit for the summer music is due, economically, to the underwriting of Frank Jeleff. Early in the spring, Jelleff guaranteed $15,000 to cover any deficit incurred in this year's Watergate concerts. His action made the series possible. It is pleasant to realize that if there is a deficit, it will probably be no more than one-third of that amount.

2 - FAMILY HOUSES
HOME AND INVESTMENT

"A Penny Saved is a Penny Earned"

Here is luxury, grace, excellence and common sense blended in perfect harmony. Here you live in one of these beautiful apartments and collect rent each month from the other. It is for the particular people that these Tiffey-built homes were planned and effected where a family can live in absolute privacy in a refined neighborhood . . . and yet add to income, and in this way provide not only a quick and easy method of paying for a home, but also insuring a definite income when age and incapacity necessitate retirement from active business.

Paris Fashion Seamstresses Strike Eases

Paris, July 29 (AP).—Striking seamstresses began drifting back to work today and it looked as though the show would go on after all—the Paris fashion show, that is.

Some 14,000 needleworkers walked out Wednesday in a demand for higher pay. Worried designers postponed the fall showings scheduled to open Monday.

But today there were scattered breaks in the strike ranks and the style houses announced they would display their latest creations next Wednesday, two days later than they had planned.

The back-to-work drift was not uniform and some firms had fewer seamstresses than others.

Buyers for big American dress-making establishments are already in town with checkbooks in hand. The designers were afraid they would get impatient and go home if the showings were postponed longer.

U. S. Protests To Argentina On Censorship

Buenos Aires, July 29 .—The United States Government formally protested to the foreign office today against censorship in Argentina.

The U. S. Embassy asked the Argentine government to explain:

1. Why American correspondents have been denied the use of radio broadcasting facilities since last March.

2. Why the program of the U. S. Information Service (USIS) was barred from the air July 22 and 23.

3. Why a dispatch filed by the Buenos Aires correspondent of Time Magazine on July 23 was halted.

Cast of 250 Join Pageant At Culpeper

Culpeper, Va., July 29 (AP).—A cast of 250 persons—mostly Culpeper County residents—appeared tonight in the second performance of the county's bicentennial pageant.

Celebration of the 200th anniversary of Culpeper County was launched yesterday when Vice President Alben W. Barkley crowned pretty Lucyle Dove Humphries, 17-year-old blonde, queen of the bicentennial.

Also held tonight was the Governor's ball. Tomorrow night there will be a street dance and fiddler's contest, also part of the bicentennial festivities.

Realty Dealer Loses License For One Month

The real estate license of Royce L. Parks of 3217 12th st. ne., yesterday was suspended for one month.

The District Real Estate Commission ordered the temporary revocation to become effective Thursday, on charges that Parks put a property for sale as a two-family dwelling when zoning in the area was restricted to single family units.

At a recent public hearing, Parks held that the house had been previously used for two-family occupancy.

Truman, ADA Head Discuss '50 Election

Former Representative Charles M. LaFollette, (R., Ind.), yesterday conferred with President Truman on plans for "uniting liberal forces" for the 1950 Congressional elections.

LaFollette, new national director of Americans for Democratic Action, said Mr. Truman indicated he considers the off-year balloting "important almost to the extent of being crucial."

Red Armies Press Attack From Chuchow

Hong Kong, July 29 (U.P.).—Communist armies fanned out in three directions from captured Chuchow today while hard-pressed Nationalist forces withdrew toward their "mountain redoubt" between Hengyang and Kanchow.

Changsha, important rail city north of Chuchow, was reported still in Nationalist hands, but virtually isolated.

World Labor Parley

London, July 29 (U.P.).—An international labor conference to set up a new world organization in opposition to the Communist-dominated World Federation of Trade Unions will be held in London November 28.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest O. Osborne

Jewelry From Shells

Have you admired some of the shell jewelry you have seen your friends wearing? Why not encourage your family to make some? It's really quite simple. When you are at the seashore or inland lake, spend time gathering the smaller shells that can serve as flower petals and leaves. Of course, such shells can be bought from supply houses but it's more fun gathering your own.

Let the shells stand for a couple of hours in one part water and one part household bleach. This will make them very white for dyeing or painting. The simplest method is to use household tinting dye. Art stores carry colored lacquers specially made for tinting shells if you'd rather have brighter colors.

To make the flowers, rub a little vaseline or oil on a piece of glass and drop a bit of clear household cement on the oily spot. Use tweezers to handle the small shells, dip the end of each in cement before placing it and form your flower in the drop of cement on the glass. After this has hardened, remove the flower from the glass with a razor blade.

Pins, bracelets, barrettes and other mountings can be bought in five-and-ten-cent stores. Your jewelry is finished by cementing the shell flowers lightly to the mountings. All sorts of arrangements can be worked out, and how proud the children will be of their shell jewelry!

Housewives Halt Picketing Of 'Joints'

Gary, Ind., July 29 (U.P.).—Gary housewives, picketing gambling and bawdy houses in an antivice crusade, called a halt today while the mayor denounced them for belonging to a country club where he said stripteasers and gambling are permitted.

The members of the Women's Citizens Committee said their mission of calling attention to vice was accomplished. Some prostitutes, they said, already had left town.

Mayor Eugene Swartz asked them:

"How about picketing the well-known country club frequented by many of the members of the WCC and the Gary Crime Commission, where nearly all the violations complained of in the City of Gary have taken place and continue to take place."

Mrs. Russell Griffith, chairman of the WCC, retorted that "the mayor is also a member of the club and frequents it."

One group of pickets in front of a bawdy house was approached by a foreign-speaking man who sought their services. He apologized profusely and retreated in confusion when they explained who they were.

Committee Backs Railroad to Link Alaska and U. S.

The Senate Foreign Relations Cimmittee yesterday backed a move to build a 1200-mile railroad to link Alaska, Canada, and the United States.

The committee approved a resolution asking the President to open negotiations with Canada for a study of the project. Senator Magnuson (D., Wash.), sponsor of the resolution, said the rail line would would help bolster Alaskan defense.

A similar proposal passed the Senate last year, but failed to get House approval in the final legislative crush.

Court Orders Whipping of 13 Boys by Parents

Newport News, Va., July 29 (AP).—Trial Justice W. E. Hogg believes in the old saying of "spare the rod and spoil the child."

He gave a practical application of his belief in court Wednesday. Thirteen boys came before him on charges of breaking school property and taking cash from other youngsters.

Punishment melted out was that the boys should be whipped by their parents in the presence of a police officer.

Woman Named As Swindler

Pittsburgh, July 29 (AP).—Julia Annin, a Pittsburgh waitress, identified Mildred Dearmond Torrence, 28, today as the woman she says helped swindle her out of $14,000.

Mrs. Torrence was brought here from Wytheville, Va., on a charge of fraudulent conversion. Her husband, Ernest I. Torrence, was arrested a week ago and is held by Virginia authorities in connection with alleged lonely hearts romance-swindling in various parts of the country.

The Lyon's Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK.—A Washington notable who just returned from Buenos Aires attended several dinner parties during his stay there. He learned the fears of the police state, where all telephone and dinner party conversations are guarded lest they be overheard or recorded by wiretaps . . . Evita and Juan Peron, nevertheless, were the topics of conversation at the parties he attended. As each guest arrived, the hosts would whisper the code names—"Margaret and Michael," or "Greta and George," or "Sally and Stephen"—which would be used in discussing Evita and Peron in the rooms which might have been wired, or in front of eavesdropping servants who might be Government informers.

Vincent Astor's famed yacht, the "Nourmahal," which he gave to the Navy at the beginning of the war, now is the flagship of Israel . . . The Alger Hiss retrial is scheduled for this fall . . . Ben Hecht has abandoned the writing of his autobiography. Mrs. Hecht called him off the project and told him: "You're too young to be doing that" . . . Tom Curran, the Republican leader in New York, is paying heed to every vote-getting detail for the mayoralty campaign. Curran even is wearing a straw hat—which won't hurt him in the bid for the votes of the members of Alex Rose's hatmakers' union.

Elmo Roper was offered the Senatorship vacated by Senator Baldwin of Connecticut, and turned it down. When he was asked why, Roper told the fable of the king who ordered one of his subjects beheaded for failing to ring the church bell when His Majesty arrived. Just before the ax fell, the doomed man was asked if he had any statement to make explaining his failure to ring the church bell. The man said he had 53 reasons, and listed them all—and the 53d reason was, "We have no church bell" . . . "I too have 53 reasons." said Elmo Roper, "and the 53d is that if I took the Senatorship, my wife would leave me."

Eleanor Roosevelt will support Mayor O'Dwyer in the mayoralty campaign . . . The sudden change in Britain's restrictions on dollar exports may cut short Benny Goodman's current tour there . . . Nicholas Schenck, head of Loew's, Inc., and the most powerful man in the entertainment industry, awoke in good health and spirits, enjoyed an excellent breakfast, drove from his country home to this New York office on a bright, sunny morning and said: "I'm sorry for everyone else in the world, except me." His companion asked: "Why are you sorry for everyone else?" and Schenck said: "Because they're not me."

Election Hours Set Tuesday in Falls Church

Falls Church election officials yesterday said the city, like other nearby Virginia communities, will hold its Tuesday primary election between the hours of 6:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. daylight saving time.

Alexandria, Fairfax and Arlington Counties, all of which had originally planned to open and close their polls on standard time, an hour later, made the change earlier in the week after receiving a ruling from State Attorney General J. Lindsay Almond, jr.

Part of the town of Manassas in Prince William County has unofficially adopted daylight saving time. The town, however, will vote with the rest of the county from 6:30 a. m. to 7:30 p. m. Eastern standard time.

Packers' Plants Closed On Bad Meat Charges

Houston, Texas, July 29 (AP).—The wholesale plants of Armour & Co. and Swift & Co. were closed today after both companies were accused of offering spoiled meat for sale. Managers of both companies denied the charges.

Dr. R. S. Martin, chief city veterinarian, ordered the shutdowns. He said the companies will not be allowed to dispose of any meat on hand until their entire stocks have been checked.

Inspector Lee Davis, filed in Corporation Court three charges of offering spoiled meat for sale against W. B. Wiley, Swift manager.

Doctor Suspects Ground Mole Of Spreading Polio Virus

Chicago, July 29 (AP). — A St. Louis doctor believes the common ground mole may have something to do with spreading infantile paralysis.

Dr. L. E. Rector department of anatomy, Washington University, St. Louis, said moles have shown unusual susceptibility to the polio virus in the laboratory.

Writing in the Archives of Pathology, Dr. Rector said:

"After considering the habits and the geographic distribution of the ground mole, one is struck with the possibility of this animal fulfilling four anticipated features of a natural host for poliomyelitis.

Meets Four Tests

"If a single animal or insect ever is found to be the reservoir of the disease, one may anticipate that it will be found throughout the temperate and tropical zones; that it will account for the frequently observed tendency of the disease to start and to have a higher incidence in rural than in urban populations; that it will account for the seasonal tendency in man ,and that it will be so inconspicuous as to have escaped observation to date.

"The mole is found in practically every country in the temperate and tropical zones. It is obvious that a higher percentage of the rural than the urban population comes in contact with these animals, yet the prevalence of the moles in city parks offers urban dwellers sufficient contact with them—Disregarding trips to the country."

Moles Come to Surface

He pointed out that in the hot summer months moles come out on the surface of the ground, and in hot weather people lie on the ground, frequently in close contact with mole runs.

"In cold weather moles use their deeper runs," he said. "This subterranean existence could easily facilitate an inherently inconspicuous harboring of the virus between seasons of common epidemic occurrence of the disease in man."

Bond Is Denied 'Trenton Six,' Awaiting Trial

Trenton, N. J., July 29 (U.P.)—County Judge Charles P. Hutchinson today refused to release the "Trenton Six" under bond while they await a new trial.

The six Negroes, sentenced last August 6, to die for the alleged murder of a furniture dealer, were in cells for almost a year before the State Supreme Court granted them a second trial.

O. John Rogge, New York attorney representing three of the men, argued the Supreme Court's decision knocked out the principal evidence against them. The prosecution contended the court cited flaws in trial procedure and did not determine guilt or innocence.

Judge Hutchinson said he would file a memorandum on his reasons with the county clerk in the next few days.

House Labor Unit To Vote Tuesday On Barden Bill

The House Labor Committee yesterday scheduled a showdown vote Tuesday on the 300-million-dollar Federal aid to education bill which has been bottled up behind a bitter religious dispute.

Supporters of the bill said their only hope for action is an extended Congressional session that will provide time to work out a compromise between Catholic and Protestant factions on the disputed issue of aid to parochial and other private schools.

The agreement to vote was reached after Representatives Tom Steed (D., Okla.) and Hugo S. Sims (D., S. C.), two Protestant members, threatened to take the fight to the House floor by pressing a petition to discharge the bill from the committee.

Magnets are fun. You can make many interesting experiments with them. If you have never used a magnet, get one the next time you go to a dime store.

To experiment with different metals make a collection of small objects such as nails, keys, screws, jewelry, coins, needles, thimbles and wires. We soon find that the magnet will not pick up brass, copper and gold, but it will lift iron and steel. Notice how a nail will move about on an aluminum pan if a magnet under the pan is rotated below the nail.

Try this trick on your friends. Experiment with a copper penny and the "silvery" penny that was made during the war. See the difference. When you touch your magnet to a nail, the nail becomes a magnet as long as it remains in contact with it. See if you can make a chain of nails.

BARNABY

No matter where we row the sound carries over the water—
BOOTS!
BOOTS!
BOOTS! BECOMING UP AND DOWN—
Let's pull in and investigate. It's driving me crazy!
That's fine, McSnoyd. The clams must be very annoyed indeed—Knock off for supper now. I'll send Gus out to take over. . .
About time. Me verse is giving out—
The noise has stopped. There's no one around.
Whoever it was must have gone.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Can Somebody Lend a Helping Hand?

He's from a fine old family, and used to be a distinguished scientist.

Then bad luck hit the family. Sicknesses, deaths—everything seemed to go wrong.

Eleven years ago, he himself was sent to the Home for Incurables, and he's been there ever since. About all he had was his bedside radio and his wife's love and loyalty.

And then some heartless thief made off with the radio.

If the scoundrel who took the radio should read this, I want him to know that I wish him a lot of luck—all bad.

And if some radio dealer with a heart should come across this item, maybe we can repair the damage that the thief has done.

Call me at The Post, and I'll put you in touch with the patient.

SIGN OF THE TIMES

Frank J. Kraus of 1126 16th st. nw. has been looking for a new apartment recently and has made a startling discovery.

He says that rental agents are becoming polite and courteous again!

PERSONAL NOTES

Mrs. C. C. Angel, Naval Ammunition Depot, Shumaker, Ark.: If your Washington Post doesn't start arriving within one week, let me know. Meantime, hold your fire.

FEATHERED FRIEND DEPT.

Howard Patterson of 1730 P st. nw. tells me that he and his wife have made the acquaintance of a couple of highly intelligent bluejays.

The Pattersons struck up the acquaintanceship by inviting the jays over for dinner (bread crumbs) a couple of times.

But when mama and papa jay showed up the other day, they were in no mood for dinner. They swooped about the window in great excitement, darted off down the street at intervals, and then wheeled back to the window to repeat the performance.

Pretty soon Howard understood their message. They wanted him to follow them.

So he followed along, and they led him to the spot where their baby jay lay helplessly in the path of a prowling cat.

How the little bird had gotten out of the nest remains unexplained, but the situation is now well in hand.

Howard has the baby jay in a cage on his window sill—and mama and papa jay faithfully bring it food twice a day.

SUGGESTION

Willard W. Van Allen of 4838 Park ave. nw. thinks local restaurants ought to do something about the iced tea glass that insists on dripping on the guy who is trying to drink from it.

He explains that condensation causes moisture to collect on the outside of glasses in which cold drinks are being served.

And as the drinker raises the glass to his lips—plop!

District Liner Van Allen suggests that this nuisance can be eliminated by using a "diaper" for such glasses—an absorbent "Hi-Jac" boot which would result, (as he puts it) "in house-broken cold drinks."

THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Maxine Boyd of 5405 Dix st. ne. says that the only common thing we seldom use is common sense.

STITCH IN TIME

O. Kanngiesser of 223 Stuart dr., Falls Church, Va., left his station wagon on a downtown parking lot the other night, and returned to find a penciled note under the windshield.

"You have a big nail in your left rear tire," said the note.

District Liner Kanngiesser pulled the nail out, and found that (luckily) it hadn't penetrated to the tube yet.

If he'd have driven away without removing the nail, he probably would have gotten a puncture.

"In this day of almost universal selfishness," he says, "this is a very gratifying experience. But I wish my unknown benefactor had signed his name."

MISCELLANY

Arrangements for my new radio program on WRC have finally been completed. Starting next Monday (August 8) I'll be on from 1:30 to 2 p. m. same subject matter, same format, same jokes . . . John Marcon, manager of the Metropolitan Theater, hands a bouquet to the optical company in the offices upstairs. The news vendor who sells papers outside the theater showed up for work one day recently with one lens in his glasses broken; the next night the other lens was broken, too, and taped to the frame. Dr. Dusik, who owns the optical firm, spotted the newsie's plight, said, "Come with me," and in short order the guy had a pair of brand new eyeglasses, for free . . . E. M. Barzynski writes from 5332 S. Laramie ave., Chicago, Ill., to express surprise at the "crookedness" of New York police. He incloses a news story in which this paper said: "The auto tags were reported stolen by New York State Police" . . . Much worse, I think, is the clipping submitted by Mrs. William L. Pringle of 2701 Courtland pl. nw. When Mrs. H. R. Lady won a golf title at Washington Golf and Country Club recently, our report stated that "Mr. Lady won the Women's District Golf Association Class B Tournament" . . . Mrs. Marjorie Landis of 3640 Minnesota ave. se. confirms the fact that local police issue "courtesy tags" to out-of-towners. Having just arrived with Pennsylvania tags, her hubby got a warning instead of a ticket for parking in an alley—and his reaction to the plan is to be extra careful not to break any more laws . . . G. R. Simcox of 262 N. Barton st., Arlington, Va., forwards a radio log listing from a Des Moines newspaper which unfortunately ran two programs together to produce, "President Truman, It Pays To Be Ignorant." When my program starts, it'll probably read: "District Line, Life Can Be Beautiful Anyhow."

GRIN AND BEAR IT — By Lichty

"I say the Senator is unqualified to be chairman of this investigating committee . . . he's utterly lacking in showmanship . . ."

Stage Set

Tidelands Oil Bill Is Due Next Week

By Robert S. Allen

The stage has been quietly set to try to ram through Congress a so-called "compromise" on the multi-billion-dollar tidelands oil issue.

The proposal is scheduled to makes its appearance next week in the form of a bill by Senator Joe O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.).

In substance, the measure will pay lip service to the Supreme Court's edict that these fabulously rich oil resources belong to the Federal Government, but will give the bulk of the prize to the States.

That is the gist of the "compromise" concocted in a series of secret meetings by Speaker Sam Rayburn and Representatives of Texas, Louisiana and California.

Rayburn has been the prime mover in undercover maneuvers to put through a law that would head off or undermine another Supreme Court ruling. The tribunal upheld the Government's claims in the California case in 1947. A Texas case is now pending before the court. Fearful that Texas will have no better luck than California, Rayburn and powerful oil interests are trying to beat the court to the punch by a congressional enactment.

The Justice and Interior Departments are now studying the proposed O'Mahoney bill. Its main features are as follows:

Royalties on oil from the marginal sea to be divided 62.5 per cent to the States and the remainder to the Federal Government.

Royalties on oil from the continental shelf, estimated to be the richest area, to be divided on a 50-50 basis.

Management of these oil resources to be in the hands of the States as "agents" of the Federal Government. The conservation and tax laws of the individual States would apply to their particular areas.

There is no indication President Truman favors the "compromise" scheme. In all his statements to date he has insisted on complete compliance with the Supreme Court's declaration that these valuable oil resources belong completely to the Federal Government.

Meanwhile, Senate leaders from other States are voicing sharp opposition to a "compromise."

Said Senator Ed Johnson (D., Colo.): "I am against any compromise. The Supreme Court has ruled that the tidelands belong to the Federal Government. That's that as far as I am concerned."

Bypass of House Group On Waterways Planned

In an effort to get House action on the omnibus waterways bill, Chairman Whittington (D., Miss.) of the House Public Works Committee yesterday said he is moving to bypass a hostile Rules Committee.

Whittington told a reporter he initiated a move Thursday that will permit him to call the bill up for House action regardless of what the Rules Committee does.

The Rules Committee earlier this week declined to send the big $1,114,000,000 authorization bill to the House for debate.

For Whom Did Spellman Speak?

By Drew Pearson

What may have been a significant conference was scheduled in New York this week between Cardinal Mooney of Detroit and Cardinal Stritch of Chicago, who called on Cardinal Spellman.

Pearson

What they planned to talk about is not known. But it is known that on the preceding evening, when the distinguished prelates from Chicago and Detroit attended a preview of the motion picture, "Come to the Stable," they did not appear happy over Cardinal Spellman's attack on Mrs. Roosevelt.

This brings up a highly important point now widely asked in both political and denominational circles, namely — did Cardinal Spellman speak for the Catholic Church or only for himself when he wrote his letter to Mrs. Roosevelt?

The answer may lie in the fact that Cardinal Spellman is not popular with various of the Catholic hierarchy. Catholic leaders interviewed this week pointed out that Spellman has jurisdiction only over the New York metropolitan area, excluding Brooklyn, which is under the jurisdiction of Bishop Molloy.

They also pointed out that, despite this, the New York Cardinal has shown great dexterity in placing his own friends in certain key spots where they can influence church policy. Recently, he appointed one of his proteges, Father Thomas J. McCarthy, to be chief of the National Catholic Welfare Conference information bureau which distributes news to all Catholic papers.

First American Pope

Some years ago, Spellman wrote a speech for Jimmy Roosevelt to deliver at Springfield, Mass., in favor of the child labor law—a law opposed by Cardinal O'Connell of Boston. Spellman had served under O'Connell as his auxiliary bishop, and when Spellman was promoted to be Archbishop of New York, a Catholic newspaperman congratulated Cardinal O'Connell. The much-loved prelate did not reply immediately. Finally, with a note of sadness, he said:

"Francis epitomizes what happens to a bookkeeper when you teach him how to write."

Many of the Catholic hierarchy have felt that Cardinal Spellman's frequent visits at the White House, his widely publicized magazine articles, and his various trips to Europe were part of a campaign to make him Papal Secretary and later the first American Pope.

It is recalled that when the American cardinals-designate went to the Vatican to receive their red hats, Spellman alone was kissed by the Pope. At that time, the late Cardinal Glennon of St. Louis remarked to Congressman Joseph Casey of Massachusetts, who accompanied him to Rome:

"I hear Spellman wants to be Papal Secretary. He'll have us all in hot water."

That, many Catholics fear, is now what has happened. They point to the constantly growing Ku Klux Klan and to the zooming sales of Paul Blanshard's book, "American Freedom and Catholic Power."

Tale of Two Cities

In two widely separated American cities, two attempts are being staged at encouraging people-to-people friendship—the only sure way to prevent war.

In Philadelphia—is located the oldest international house in the country, established to house and encourage foreign students in the United States.

In Jacksonville, Ala.—Is located the youngest international house in the country, established for the same purpose and objective.

Jacksonville is a small town—about 10,000. It has no great local industries, no wealthy taxpaying population, but a population which, living inland, doesn't worry too much about enemy attacks. Yet it raised the money to build its own international house for foreign students.

Philadelphia, third largest city in the United States of America, is called "The City of Brotherly Love." Philadelphia lived up to its traditions by founding the first international house in the entire country. But now, slow, sleepy Philadelphia feels less brotherly. It's international house has already cut its budget, begun to fire personnel, while down in Alabama, the Jacksonville foreign students project is going strong.

Voters Favor Women as Diplomats

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., July 29.—The average American rather likes the idea of having women serve as diplomats in the Foreign Service of the State Department.

President Truman's recent appointment of Mrs. Perle Mesta, Washington hostess, to be Minister to Luxembourg raised the question of public attitude toward women serving in the capacity of envoys.

A cross-section of voters in all the 48 States was asked this question by interviewers for the American Institute of Public Opinion:

"A woman has been named by President Truman to be United States Minister (representative) to the European country of Luxembourg. Do you approve or disapprove of having a woman as ambassador or minister?"

The Vote:

Approve	54%
Disapprove	34
No opinion	12

As might be expected, women voters are much more in favor of the idea than men. But even men favor the idea by a substantial margin.

	Men	Women
Approve	48%	60%
Disapprove	39	28
No opinion	13	12

Traffic Deaths Per Mile Hit Record Low

Chicago, July 29 (U.P.).—The Nation's traffic death rate based on miles traveled fell to the lowest point on record during the first five months of this year, the National Safety Council reported today.

There were seven deaths for every 100,000,000 miles traveled, the council said, compared with the previous low of 7.2 for the first five months of 1948.

The council pointed out the number of deaths is almost as high as last year, since the number of miles traveled has jumped six per cent this year.

In the first six months of this year 13,810 persons were killed, a 1 per cent improvement over the same period last year.

The biggest traffic toll was in Gary, Ind., with 16.3 deaths for every 10,000 registered automobiles.

Last year 32,000 died in traffic.
